FELL ON HIS KNIFE.

George Strausser on Trial for the Murder of Joseph Brandl.

STRANGE PLEA OF THE DEFENSE.

Objections to the Handsome Compensation of a Receiver.

THE NEWS OF THE COUNTY COURTS

The trial of George Strausser for the murder of Joseph Brandl on the 3d of last and the trial had taken place that evening and won the suit. Mrs. Johanna Strausser, the prisoner's mother, and Rosa Strausser, his sister, attended the trial and came back past her house. They had some words, and Brandl took up the quarrel for her. Brandl followed the women down the boardwalk to the bridge, and she heard Mrs. Strausser cry out that she had been

Went to His Mother's Assistance. She called for her son George, who came running across the bridge, He and Brandl got into a fight. She saw Brandl's arm around George's neck and saw George jab Brandl in the stomach with something. Brandl fell off the sidewalk and George ran home. fell off the sidewalk and George ran home.

Frank Stetenberger, aged 13 years, corroborated his mother's testimony, and added that Brandl must have struck the Strausser women, for they called loudly for help. Brandl stooped down and picked up a piece of wood just as George came up. George Stetenberger, husband of Mrs. Stetenberger, corroborated the testimony of the mother and son, and said that when the prisoner ran up to Brandl the prisoner had a knife in his hand and made a jab at Brandl, who fell on the boardwalk.

Killed by His Own Wenner.

Killed by His Own Weapon. Thomas Ewing, Jr., opened for the defense. He said they expected to prove that Brandl started the quarrel with the Straussers, and that he was killed by falling on his own knile, George Strausser simply coming to the rescue of his mother and sister, which any son and brother should do.

Rosa Strausser was the first witness for the delense. She said that she and her the delense. She said that she and her mother were returning from the squire's past Stetenberger's. Mrs. Stetenberger ran out the gate and commenced laughing at her because they had won the suit against George. She continued: "I said: 'You did not win nor we did not win,' and turned to go. Just then Joe Brandl threw a glass or bottle at me, and, getting a knife out of the house, started after mother and me, saying he would kill us both. I saw the knite in his hand plainly. He caught up with us near the bridge and struck me and mother both on the head, knocking us down. Mother's hand was cut in the struggle and she called for brother George to come and help us. He came and Brandl struck him help u. He came and Brandl struck him and then tripped over a pair of steps and tell off the boardwalk. I ran into Mrs. Wenner's, across the street, and when I came out they were all gone. I went home then and did not see Brandl any more."

Thomas Schapan, 15 years of age, corand so did her mother. Court then adjourned until this morning, when the testimony will be resumed. THREE NEW DIVORCE SUITS.

Six cases were argued before the Supreme Court yesterday. The most important was against the Keystone Oil Company and others, appealed from Venango county. The suit grows out of the account of a receiver murder of Joseph Brandl on the 3d of last August was begun yesterday before Judge Kennedy. Dr. Thomas, the first witness, testified that he called soon after the stabbing occurred. Brandl was stabbed in the left side through the bowels and left kidney to the back bone, which undoubtedly caused death.

Dr. Rossman, of the Southside Hospital, said that Brandl was brought to the hospital in a dying condition.

Mra Anna Stetenberger testified that on the evening of the murder she and her little boy Joseph were sitting on the boardwalk in front of their home on Holt street, Southside. Her husband and Joseph Brandl were standing at the gate talking. Brandl was in his bare feet and had nocoat or hat on. She had sued George Strausser, the prisoner, for a board bill, and the trial had taken place that evening and won the suit.
