KICKS ON JAIL FOOD,

Mrs. Marsh and James McIntosh, Brought From New York, Now in Prison.

THEY COULD NOT GET BAIL.

The Prisoner Wants an Extra Bill of Fare, but It Is Refused.

DETECTIVES SAY THEY'RE SMART.

She Hints at Disclo ures to Be Made on the Witness Stand.

J. G. WEIR SAYS THERE'S NOTHING IN IT

Mrs. Jennie Marsh and James McIntosh are in the county jail awaiting trial on a charge of larceny preferred by Harry Fehl, administrator of the estate of the late Superintendent of Police Gamble Weir. They arrived from New York yesterday morning, where they were arrested, in charge of Detectives Sol Coulson and Robert Robinson. The arrest of the prisoners seemed to be unexpected by their friends, as no one was at the depot to meet them. At the jail Mrs. Marsh was in rare good humor, greeting Warden McAleese with a smile. Mc-Intosh did not seem to relish the idea of being locked up again.

During the afternoon Mrs. Marsh was visited by her husband with the attorney who will have the case in charge, but there was no effort to secure bail. Marsh talked with his wife for a long while. When leaving he said: "Now, you just keep up your spirits and go right along."

Wanted Good Things to Eat.

"Well, you'll send me something to eat, won't von?" asked his wife. I can't eat this stuff they give me here." With that she began a tirade against the jail food. One of the deputies, who was standing near, said: "What are you complaining about the food for? It is the same as I est and I find no fault with it. It is doubtless better and cleaner than you could cook. As you are making such a fuss we won't allow anything to be brought into you at all, so you will have to be satisfied with what the others get."

After this Mrs. Marsh quieted down and returned to her cell.

At Marsh's request he was allowed an interview with McIntosh. As he approached the bars McIntosh said, "Hello, Harry!" which was answered by "Hello, Mac," from Marsh. They engaged in conversation for quite a time. A reporter asked Marsh and McIntosh if they had anything to say for publication. Marsh replied: "You papers have roasted me ever since this trouble began, and I won't tell you anything." McIntosh said he hadn't a word to say.

The attorney who has been employed is making a careful investigation in the case, and declined to talk until he should have all the facts in his possession.

Flowers From the Sheriff.

At the Richmond county, N. Y., jail Mrs. Marsh made quite a friend of the sheriff, who, as she left the prison, presented her with a large bouquet of fine flowers, which she proudly carried until she reached the jail in this city. On the way from New York the woman and her companion were kept under close her companion were kept under close surveillance by the detectives, the privilege of a sleeping car being denied them. The detectives talked to them and were impressed with the cunning they displayed.
McIntosh was particularly careful in his speech. Detective Coulson said of him:
"McIntosh is a smart fellow, and if he is guilty it will take careful work to prove it. I don't think I ever talked to a sharper person then Mrs Marsh."

son than Mrs. Marsh."

Mrs. Marsh hinted strongly to the detectives that she will give away some sur-prising secrets when her case comes to trial which will seriously affect those whom she calls her persecutors. County Commis-sioner Weir, when informed of this, said he cared nothing about any statement Mrs.

Marsh might make.
"She is a smart woman," said be, "and is probably concocting a story to tell, but I think my record in this county is proof against any statement coming from such a person. If, as she says, she can produce receipted bills for every article of furniture taken from Gamble's room and claimed by taken from Gamble's room and claimed by her I am free to say she will astonish us very much. The administrator, Harry Fehl, who is making this prosecution, has a few bills in his possession which I think will be conclusive evidence. No," said Mr. Weir in conclusion, "I don't care what Mrs. Marsh may say. Her stories will have no effect upon me."

Colonel S. Bonnafou, of Philadelphia, is in the city on business pertaining to the founding of a National War Museum. The idea of establishing a repository for all the old battle flags, memorials and relics of the late war was originated by the Loyal Legion. The original purpose of the Legion widened, until now the scheme provides for a war library and a general headquarters for all military organizations resulting from the war. The structure, which is to be most magnificant, is to cost $300,000, and will be located in Philadelphia. The site has not been chosen yet. The greater part of the money necessary will be obtained by individual subscriptions. Some $60,900 has already been advanced by members of the Loyal Legion. It was for the purpose of seeing the members of the association regarding this part of the matter that Colonel Bonnafon came to this city.

Mollinger's Estate. Another heir to the estate of the late Father Mollinger put in his claim yesterday. This time it is a nephew. Yesterday Register Conner received a letter from James Miller, of New York. The writer raid that he had seen by an old newspaper an account of the death of his uncle, Father Mollinger, the priest and doctor. The mother of the writer was the oldest sister of the deceased. She died when her son was 23 years of age. She often told him, he said, that if he outlived Father Mollinger has not better the property by right he ought to have all the property by right of heirship, as he was the only heir. He asked the Register to let him know if Father Mollinger had left a will or what had been done about the property.

If the writer is really a nephew of Father Mollinger he will come in for a share of the estate. He will be asked to bring forward his proofs of relationship, etc.

The Randall Club Bridges Their Threatened Disruption.

SOME QUIET POLITICAL WORK. The Southsiders Have a Try at the New Voting System.

OTHER INTERESTING POLITICAL NEWS

The trouble in the Randall Club, which for a time threatened to disrupt the old political organization, was temporarily adusted last night, and the club will, it is aid, continue in existence. The trouble in the club arose out of the failure of the club to pay to ex-President Weixel nearly $1,000 which he had advanced the organization. Mr. Weixel recently entered suit against the club to recover and for a time it was feared the club's possessions would be put to a forced sale.

Last night the whole matter was referred to a committee composed of the directors of the club. The committee was empowered to act in the matter. Friends of the organization immediately tendered sufficient money to pay all the indebtedness and to place the club on a sound financial basis.

Caused by Disappointment. The trouble in the Randall Club began in the contest for officers nearly a year ago. At that time a bitter fight occurred, and since then, it is claimed, an effort has been made to disrupt and disor-ganize the club. The regular meeting of the organization was held last night. The resignations of T. B. Foley and Samuel P. Beliman as trustees were accepted and the position of John O'Neil as trustee was declared vacant. F. P. Iams, James H. Wallace and Charles P. Scott were elected to fill the vacancies. An invitation was received from the Democratic Committee of Morgantown, W. Va., requesting the club to attend a grand reunion of the West Virginia Democrats.

Will Meet Their Brothers. A letter was received from the W. L Wilson tariff students of Wheeling, W. Va., stating that they would reach this city on Saturday at 6 P. M. to participate in the parade. The club will meet them at

A public meeting to boom the High School idea was to have been held last night in a lodge room on Fifth avenue, but a misunderstanding about the hall caused a postponement of the meeting until a later date. The intention is to have the meeting addressed by residents who are thoroughly acquainted with the situation and to get up a petition to Councils urging that the market property be given to the High School. The Police on the Lookout.

A telegram was received at police headquarters from Sheriff A. H. Burnet, of Mercer, Pa., asking that the police look out for Joseph Lewis, a Russian 22 years old, who escaped from the Mercer jail at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.
