WESTMINSTER ABBEY CROWDED,

And the Throngs Affected by Reading of the Laureate's Poems.

LEWIS MORRIS A POSSIBLE SUCCESSOR

[BY CABLE TO THE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Oct. 12 .- [Copyright.] -- Stately simplicity marked the ceremony with which England committed to sepulture the monarch of verse of her Victorian age. The proud burial place of Kings and ot kingly intellects cherishes no finer clay than that with which its vaults were enriched to-day. The tribute of the living was the highest that the nation could pay, the silent reverence of a vast host which represented, as perhaps no assemblage ever did before, England's greatest in science, in art, in letters and in statesmanship. That wealth of greatness which made it impossible for hundreds ordinarily accounted leaders in the various walks of life to obtain admission to the ranks of the mourning multitude shut out almost entirely the representatives of the humbler admirers of the dead poet. This fact gave an appropriate significance to what seemed to many in the great throng of eminent mourners a blot upon the chaste solemnity of the occasion.

Thousands in the Great Abbey.

When the great abbey had been filled by the assembled thousands, and the first notes of the organ had sounded the approach of the entering procession, there ap-peared far above the heads of the people, in the arches of the triforium over the preacher's desk, the figures of three men. They were not curiosity seekers, but honest artisans, clad in the working clothes of their trade. They wore overalls, white with lime, and jackets, brown with earth.

It is said they were masons who had been at work till morning light fashioning the grave in the adamantine cement where the poet was to lie. They had asked the poor privilege of remaining in an unobserved corner to witness the burial of the man whose genius commanded their humble adwhose genius commanded their humble admiration, back in the recesses of the triforium. The floor, many feet below, was invisible, so they stood out between the arches at the dizzy height and watched the solemu ceremony. All through the service they stood there, clear-cut, rugged figures, typifying and representing the love and the veneration of the plain people. A Great Rush to the Tomb.

The rendering of Lord Tennyson's poems by the choir greatly affected the vast congregation. Immediately after the service was concluded there was a great rush to the grave. A number of stalwart policemen were obliged to torm themselves in a cordon were obliged to form themselves in a cordon about the grave to prevent the crowd from pushing those in the front line into it. The services in the abbey began at 12:30 and lasted exactly an hour. Hundreds of people flocked to the regular early service, hoping that they would be allowed to remain during the funeral services. They were disappointed, however, for the abbey was cleared before 11 o'clock.

Hallam Tennyson looked pale and worn.

Hallam Tennyson looked pale and worn. The pallbearers all wore black frock coats. Lord Salisbury, looking ill, wore a dark gray overcoat and a skull cap. He walked just behind Lord Roseberry. Outside the abbey the crowd eagerly watched and discussed the notable persons as they arrived and de-parted. Hawkers were plentiful in the vicinity of the abbey yelling a tawdry me-morial card and cheaply-printed copies of "Proving the Bar" "Crossing the Bar."

The Star this afternoon makes a covert attack on the Prince of Wales' absence from the services. It was announced two days ago that the Prince would be present, but he did not attend. The Star prints a letter saying that the Prince of Wales present to go should be year. ters to go shooting or to attend the New-market races to attending the funeral of such a man as Tennyson.

In the interesting controversy already begun over the succession to the laureateship no voice will be regarded as more authoritative than that of the great master himself, who was buried to-day. While waiting in Westminster Abbey, to-day, for the entrance of the funeral procession, I had a conversation with an aged and well-known Englishman who enjoyed close acquaintance with Lord Tennyson. He made this re-markable statement: "Tennyson's own choice of a successor would have been Lewis Morris. He said to me and to members of my family, more than once, that he has hoped Morris would succeed him as laur-eate. He has said so to others also, priv-ately, but he would never say it publicly." This reported preference of the late laur-este will not surprise many to whom Ten-nyson's appreciation of the work of the younger poet is well known. Morris' "Songs of Two Worlds" and "Epic of Hades" have won him an acknowledged place in the literary world, but the more because the erratic verses of his namesake, William Morris, commanded greater popular admiration.

Lewis Morris has some taste for politics, being named as the Liberal candidate in a Welsh district in the last election, but afterward withdrawn. Possibility of No Successor At All.

It may be said that the popular opinion is gaining strength that there is no fit successor of Tennyson, and that none should be appointed. There is said to be good reason for believing that such is not the view taken of the matter by the Queen, and that Mr. Gladstone will be expected to assume the delicate task of naming the next wearer of the laurel.

The pressure for tickets to the funeral ceremoules at Westminster Abbey to-day was something unheard of. Americans, no matter how eminent, fared poorly. It is an incident of common report that neminister to act as one of the palibearers there were sent to the legation six tickets of admission to the abbey. Importanate requests for the influence of the legation in securing tickets had come from many Americans. When Henry White, Secre-tary and Charge d' Affairs, received the allotment from the managers, it is said that he exclaimed in an attitude of mingled despair and indignation: "Six tickets! What are six tickets for 60,000,000 people?"

TREATMENT OF CHOLERA.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate. Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. Charles Gatchell, of Chicngo, in his "Treatment of Cholera," says: "As it is known that the cholera microbe does not flourish in acid solations, it would be well to slightly acidulate the drinking water. This may be done by adding to each giass of water half a teaspoonful of Horsford's Acid Phosphate. This will not only render the water of an acid reaction, but also render boiled water more agreeable to the taste. It may be sweetened if desired. The Acid Phosphate taken as recommended, will also tend to invigorate the system and correct debuity, thus giving increased power of resistance to disease. It is the acid of the system a product of the gastric functions, and hence will not create that disturbance liable to follow the use of mineral acids."

DE VERE IS A FAVORITE.

The Public Make Special Demands of Her -What She Will Sing During the Week -Voting Schools Opened at the Exposition To-Day. Mile. De Vere drew great throngs at the Exposition last night. She had no trouble in making herself heard through the entire building and she was the recipient of much leserving applause.

In response to a request coming from many people she has promised to sing several of the more popular and familiar airs during this week. These she will sing at concerts. They will probably consist of "Home, Sweet Home," "Suance River," "Old Folks at Home," "Last Rose of Summer," and other songs of a like character. Chairman Gripp, of the Republican County Committee, vesterday opened a voting school at the Exposition. It Chairman Brennen, of the Democratic Committee, gets his tickets down in time to-day, this will be set aside as Cleveland's day.

Prof. Brooks had a very pretty programme last night. Miss Raymond made a decided hit in her rendition of "Hear dem Belis," and was compelled to respond to a couple of encores.

A VISITOR'S IMPRESSIONS OF PITTS-

From an Open Letter. MY DEAR CLARA-I am now here staying with auntie for a few days, and I hasten to give you my impressions of Pittsburg and with auntie for a few days, and I hasten to give you my impressions of Pittsburg and the Exposition. The city is nothing like so dirty as I expected, and I am agreeably disappointed. The Exposition is very fine, and the music is simply delightful. By the way, I must tell you of a delightful shopping experience I had. I went shopping yesterday, and was told by auntie to go to "The People's Store," on Fifth avenue. I expected to have to run around to lots of stores, but was agreeably surprised. I was in "The People's Store" for three hours, and when I came out I had purchased my entire fall wardrobe, from shoes to millinery. I had no idea there was such a store in this part of the country. You know my aversion to ready made suits. Well, it has been overcome. When I saw the lovely suits they have (by the way, they are all made in the workrooms of this store) I determined to try-on one that had just caught my fancy. When I had tried it on I decided at once to take it. There is a little alteration in the sleeves, but they are doing that free of charge.

My bill for entire outilt amounted to less than $90. This is nearly $40 less than I naid last year at home, so you may imagine I am well pleased.

I wish mamma was here to see the lovely carpets and curtains they have. I'm sure she'd be tempted to buy. No more at present.

Your loving Iriend,
P.S.—You ought to come down beere

P. S.—You ought to come down before that interesting event in December. You could save lots of money on your tronsseau. P. S.—Couldn't you manage to come down while I'm here? We could have a splendid time, and you could more than pay your expenses. JENNIE.

PRESERVES AND PICKLES,

The H. J. Heinz Co. Fruit preserves in pails, bottled fruits, sauces; catsups and pickies shown at this stand in south gallery all go to prove how many of nature's products have been utilized to add to the enjoyment of the table. These wares are of the highest grades and These wares are of the highest grades and are good beyond compare. The business carried on by this company is a vast one, taxing even their huge establishment to the utmost to keep the supply equal to the temand. By making only the best articles them have won for themselves a great reputation, and as a matter of course have simply taken all the best or first medals at American and foreign expositions. It is a big record, but they intend to keep it up on this line for unlimited years.

HEAVY IRON MANUFACTURERS.

Taylor & Dean, 203 Market Street. A few days only left in which to see the harming exhibit of iron and copper wire articles at the Exposition, but the perma nent display of iron staircases, fire escapes will continue at the warehouse. In addition will continue at the warehouse. In addition to the above will be found lawn and porch furniture and ornaments, stable fixtures, bank and jail work, doors and shutters, bank and jail work, doors and shutters, "Granity Fire Extinguishers," grille, feneing, railings, sieves, tools and the immense lines of wirework, among which are fire gnages, decorations for cemeteries, flower stands, dressmakers' medels, and a list too long for mention. No time like the present for inspecting these valuable and useful affairs,

The Brightest Spot At the Exposition is the mirror display of Conroy, Prugh & Co. This is due to the unusually fine plate glass, skillfully silvered, that reflects so brightly the lights, people that reflects so brightly the lights, people and other exhibits. From the main door one may judge accurately from the mirrors in the band stand just what are the chances for seats in the Music Gallery. In Machinery Hall, at one of the stands, all the objects placed upon the mirrors are endlessly multiplied, and so it goes that at all points the effects of Conroy, Prugh & Co.'s splendid work are felt and appreciated. The firm deals also in plate window glass and beveled and plain plate door lights and general architectual and ornamental glass, Stores 41 to 47 Western avenue, Allegheny.
