King James' Bible Good Enough in the Eyes of a Committee of

THE EPISCOPALIAN CONVENTION.

A New Plan Rapped Out for a Central College for Churchmen.

CONGREGATIONALISTS AND THE FAIR

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—At the beginning of the business today of the House of Deputies of the Triennial General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church, a short letter from President Harrison had a very general reading by members. It said:

I have received and very gratefully appreciate the expression of the House of Deputies of the General Convention of the Protestant Episcopal Church of its sympathy with this afflicted household from the serious illness of Mrs. Harrison. It has been very pleasant to me to note the prayerful interest of all the people in the recovery of Mrs. Harrison and their sympathy with my family.

President Dix appointed a committee on the disposition of the Standard Book of Common Prayer, including George C. Thomas, of Pennsylvania. Rev. Dr. Hunt-Jardou presented a voluminous report from the Committee on Constitutional Amendment, which was made the order of the day after the Hymnal shall have been disposed of.

King James' Version Good Enough. The memorial of the Diocese of Massachusetts praying the authorization of the use of the Revised Version of the Holy Scriptures was unfavorably reported from the committee to which it had been referred. The grounds given were the controversy among the revisionists; the distortion of the new version; its cumbersome and pedantic phrases which obscure the sense and offend the ear; and the lack of that authority which clings about the King James version.

General L. W. Colby, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, passed through Pittsburgh last night on his way from Washington to his home at Beatrice, Neb. General Colby is the commanding officer of the troops in Nebraska and he led the Indian campaign against Wounded Knee, in which Sitting Bull was killed. It was General Colby who, in that campaign, found an Indian girl baby which had been deserted in the flight of the band of redskins and which was almost frozen to death. The Indian baby was, after the campaign ended, taken to Washington, where it was adopted by General Colby and is now, he says, one of the most interesting members of his interesting family. The baby is now two years old. It is provided with a nurse and is surrounded with all the care and consideration that can be provided.

"We propose educating the little one," the general said, "and we are hopeful for her future. She is now a robust, healthy baby and is as lively as a cricket. I am a firm believer in the education of the Indian, and I think the Government officials enjoy the same confidence. We have found that the best possible way to treat the redskins is to civilize them. We find that the Indians make good citizens. In fact they make better citizens than some of our races."

"There is at this time," General Colby said, "some alarm throughout Nebraska for another outbreak, such as that among the Sioux Indians. The alarm, as I am satisfied is unfounded; an outbreak is unlikely. The Government appropriation is still substantial, and so long as the Indians are well fed and well clothed they will not fight. The last outbreak among the Indians was due solely to the short appropriation, by which the Indians were starved into desperation. They were being cheated by the Indian agents, and were not at all in the battle, which was largely for food and clothing."

"Our Indians, as they become civilized and citizens, also become Republicans. Many of them are now voting, and they will materially assist in carrying Nebraska for the Republicans by at least 15,000 majority."

President Harrison will not attend the dedication of the World's Fair. His wife is ill and is suffering from quick consumption and her physicians have no hope for her recovery. She will not be much longer and the President will not leave her.

THE LOCKPORT MYSTERY CLEARED UP. Miss Julia Phillips Died Double Identified as a Chicago Girl. CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The remains of a girl supposed to be mysteriously murdered, which was shipped to Lockport, N. Y., from here as the corpse of Julia Phillips, of that place, only to be returned on the discovery that the Phillips girl is alive, were identified today.

The body is that of Alice Jennings, of this city. There seems to be no doubt that her death was the result of her being run down by a taxicab. Her father, Mr. Jennings' aunt has been helplessly ill and has largely caused the mystery and complications.

1812, 698 96 in Back Taxes Refunded. AKRON, Oct. 13.—[Special]—The biggest back tax case ever settled in Ohio was adjusted here today. Major C. W. E. Dick came from Columbus last night and held a conference with the executors of the late Thomas W. Cornell's estate, against whom suit for back taxes amounting to $168,000 was begun a year ago. The conference resulted in a compromise for $102,698 96.

THE VETERANS' DAY.

Scarred Heroes of the Rebellion Reunite at Wilksburg.

THE BOURGAIN GAILY DECKED.

Comrades of Three Regiments Sit Around the Campfire.

VOLUNTEERS OF THE 76TH CONVENT

Wilksburg echoed yesterday with the shouts and cheers of the remains of three regiments of scarred veterans, mingled with the welcome hurrahs of the inhabitants of the quiet borough. Every window and door was decorated with bunting, and from every house floated the national colors. The occasion for all this was the fourteenth annual reunion of the Eighty-fifth, One Hundred and First and One Hundred and Third Regiments of Pennsylvania Volunteers.

The day was a gala one, no weather could be more delightful and no more substantial crowd of people could have been brought together. The gathering of 5,000 was sprinkled with maidens, and every child in the locality big enough to go to school was present with a little banner. The streets were arched at every few yards with motto-inscribed banners. "They Fought Our Country's Battles," "Welcome Soldiers and Victors," and many other similar inscriptions were the silent greeting to the boys in blue.

A Private One Again. Colonel Andy Stewart was there with the rest of the veterans of the Eighty-fifth. His tall figure towered above all his comrades, and he smiled with satisfaction as he marched in the dress parade, once more a private in the regiment in which he rose to be Adjutant during active service. By his side was Squire Creelman, the main gun of the local celebrations, and High Chief Justice of the quaint borough. Every veteran of the Eighty-fifth, One Hundred and First and One Hundred and Third and their wives and their children were present.

The day was opened with reveille at sunrise. The horns blew, the drums were sounded, and in a short time everybody was up and doing. At 10 o'clock a large assemblage went to the Opera House, on Penn avenue, where Burgess J. J. Campbell delivered to the visitors and veterans an address of welcome. It was appropriately responded to by George S. Fulmer, of Pittsburgh.

At 11:30 a parade was formed by Chief Marshal William Ross, and 500 men marched through the streets behind the colors of their respective regiments. Dinner was served by a committee of ladies at Athletic Club, and every veteran partook of the repast which was dished out in genuine camp style.
