

WEDDED TWO SISTERS.

Thomas Cummins Has a Peculiar Marital Experience, Which

L'ND S HIM IN THE PENITENTIARY.

A Man Released From the Workhouse After Leading Gaily.

THE NEWS OF THE COUNTY COURTS

Thomas Cummins, the man who eloped with his wife's youngest sister and married her, pleaded guilty to bigamy, adultery and perjury yesterday, and was sentenced to nine years in the penitentiary and one year to the workhouse. The couple came from Washington county to the Southside and lived about a year when wife No. 2 died. Cummins then returned to his first wife and lived happily with her for about a year. One day his wife ran across an undertaker's bill among her husband's papers, which exposed the circumstances of her sister's illegal marriage and subsequent death. The husband's arrest followed.

In the case of Henry Bloch, charged by his wife, Florence Bloch, with cruelty and desertion, the case was allowed to be withdrawn on payment of the costs by the defendant. There was a Lack of Harmony. The case was on the trial list for last Saturday, but the defendant did not put in an appearance. His attorney, Leon J. Long, promised to have him in court to-day and the case was continued. Bloch was formerly leader of the orchestra at the Western Museum in Allegheny and lived with his wife at 283 Robinson street, where it was claimed he abused her most brutally and finally deserted her. Mrs. Bloch appeared in court yesterday with her attorney, Mr. Hamsey, who stated in answer to Judge Kenyon's query as to why the case was to be dropped, that Bloch's bondsman was to pay Mrs. Bloch a sum of money.

Joseph Brooker, who was charged with illegal liquor selling, was acquitted and the costs of the prosecution placed on the county.

A Workhouse Sentence Revoked.

Roger Feeney, who pleaded guilty to larceny last Saturday and was sentenced to the workhouse for 60 days, had his sentence revoked and was allowed to withdraw his plea of guilty. A petition was filed in his behalf stating that in the absence of his attorney he had been induced to enter a plea of guilty and representing that the prosecutor, Thomas Willoughby, admits he has no case against Feeney. William McGinnis, who was charged with larceny, pleaded guilty and sentence was suspended on payment of cost. James Elliott, charged with larceny, was declared not guilty, by reason of insanity and was sent to Dixmont on an order of court. William Valentine, charged by Charles Ezer with felonious assault and battery, who was tried on Thursday, was found not guilty. Peter Madden was convicted of assault and battery. T. W. Gorman was convicted of perjury. Mrs. Della Marshall pleaded guilty to keeping a disorderly house at 23 River avenue, Allegheny, and will be sentenced to-day.

To-Day's Trial List.

Criminal Court—Common Pleas vs Michael Banko, James Grier, George Grier, Leonard and Casworth, Wm. Dororo, Wm. S. Grier, John Howard, Henry R. Morris, Lawrence Lavelle.

The Hum of the Courts.

JOSEPH ESLEY entered a suit yesterday in Common Pleas Court No. 3, for damages, against Isaac McCloskey. The plaintiff alleges that McCloskey beat him on August 23.

A MOTION for a new trial will be made this morning in the case of George Strasser, who has been convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Joseph Brandt on the Southside.

ELLA PARROT yesterday entered suit against Joseph Miller for $10,000 damages for the death of her husband. It is claimed she was enticed to the plaintiff's husband liquor and he died from the effects.

Humane Society Versus Chief Bigelow.

Chief Bigelow, of the Department of Public Works, and Humane Society Agent O'Brien are disputing over the use of calks on horsehoes. The Chief claims that calks are injurious to the streets and are not a necessity. Mr. O'Brien claims to the contrary, and says that every man driving horses with no calks on their shafts will be prosecuted for "cruelty to animals." Mayor Gourley takes Mr. O'Brien's side in the matter.

Fell From the Bridge.

John Johnson, of Buffalo, employed on the new Sixth street bridge, was probably fatally hurt yesterday. An iron stringer upon which he was standing broke and he fell into the river. In falling the stringer struck him on the head. He was removed to the Allegheny General Hospital, where at last accounts he was still unconscious. Johnson boarded at No. 38 Sandusky street, Allegheny, and is a single man.

His Leg Severed From the Body.

W. R. Lamon, a brakeman on the Pennsylvania road, fell from the top of a moving freight car yesterday at Walls station. His leg extended across the rail, and it was severed from his body just above the knee. Lamon is a single man, 25 years of age, and is now at the West Penn Hospital.

A NEW ENGINE HOUSE

For the Protection of Downtown Property Nearly Completed - Strengthening the Fire Department - Chief Humphries' Problem-Making the Award for Fire Apparatus.

The new double fire engine house in the First ward will be completed and the contractors, William Kerr Sons, will turn the building over to Chief Brown. There is no immediate prospect of getting new engines in the building, as the contract for them has not been let, but some of the old equipment will be pressed into service once for reserve duty. The old Niagara engine has been overhauled for this work. While not a first-class machine, it is in excellent order and capable of good work. One of the old hook and ladder trucks, remodeled and lightened in weight, will also be placed in the new building for the present.

Councils last Monday approved a contract for the purchase of a Champion chemical engine which will be delivered in three weeks. It will complete the temporary equipment of the new engine house. Chief Brown says the arrangement will strengthen the department downtown considerably until such time as the new engines are ordered and delivered. Chief Engineer Humphries is still struggling with the question of which engine will be used. The Amoskeag Company's bid was the lowest on second and third class machines, but the other companies bid only first class, and their figures are lower than the Amoskeag's first class bid. He will decide can only be conjectured, but as Councils must approve his award, and they won't meet regularly for nearly three weeks, the Chief will have plenty of time to think the matter over. Under the terms of the advertisement the company which gets the contract will have 100 days after it is approved by Councils in which to build and deliver the engines. As soon as the new machines come the chemical engine will be removed to where the No. 1 patrol wagon is now on Liberty street, the patrol wagon transferred to an old house on Oak alley, which has been leased from the Pennsylvania Railroad and is now being remodeled for the purpose, the old Niagara will be shifted to one of the hill wards on the Southside, and the new engines will be installed in the big house on Second avenue.

TWO BOYS AND A BEAR

Have a Lively Time Under a Chestnut Tree in Wyoming County.

A CUR CAUGHT IN BEDSHEETS, And Makes Such a Noise That Its Mother's Attention is Called.

CONDITION IN WHICH SHE WAS LEFT

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. SCRANTON, Oct. 14.—Ollis Butler and Asa Hurd, 15-year-old lads of Forkston township, Wyoming county, came pat upon a young bear in the Pollett woods, last Sunday. It was crunching nuts under the limbs of a chestnut tree, and the approach of the boys scared it so that it ran up the tree and clung to a branch. The sight of the cub excited the lads, and the desire to catch it and take it home made them lay plans for its capture at once. The boys had gone to the woods to gather chestnuts. They had a couple of bedsheets that they were going to spread under the limbs to let the nuts drop on when they went up and shook the boughs. They also had a long pole with a sharp spike in the butt end of it, and with that they intended to shake the nuts from the lower limbs. While the young bear was clinging to the limb that Asa had to go to the top of the chestnut tree to shake the bear loose, and Asa stood ready to throw the other sheet over the cub the instant it landed. Then he was going to keep the cub covered until Ollis came down, when they intended to wind both sheets around the cub and carry it home.

How the Boys Caught the Cub. When Ollis had climbed pretty well up to the crotch the cub took fright and crawled so far out on the limb that Asa had to move the sheet on the ground. The cub's weight made the limb sag two or three feet, and when Ollis had got into the tree top he found it would not be safe for him to go out on the limb far enough to shake the cub off.

For a little while the lads didn't know what to do. Finally Asa thought of the pole and getting it threw it up to Ollis. Ollis caught the pole and Asa took his former position under the cub. When Ollis reached out with the pole and poked the cub with the spike, the little bear squealed and clung to the branch for a moment and then it curled up and let itself drop. Asa threw the sheet over the cub the instant it struck the other sheet, covered it and let his whole weight on it. The little bear scratched and bit and tore the sheet till it got its head out, when it began to squeal and whine. Asa threw the other sheet over it and the cub tore its head out at once and set up a squeal of distress. It scratched and bit Asa's hand, but the plucky boy hung to it and again covered its head with the torn sheets. Then he shouted to Ollis to come and help him. Ollis was taking a rest in the crotch of the tree, and he said he would be down as soon as he had the pole. He had to get down the limb. Just then the cub again tore the cloth away from its snout and began to squeal in spite of the bag, and the next instant the cub's mother came tearing and snarling through the undergrowth and made straight for Asa.

A Spike Stops Mrs. Bear's Progress.

Asa did not hear the angry bear on account of the noise the struggling cub was making, but Ollis did hear her from his perch in the tree, and he yelled to Asa. He had just turned the pole for the purpose of letting it drop, and when the noisy bear dashed under the tree close to the trunk. Ollis dropped the butt end of it on her back. The weight of the pole drove the long spike deep into her flesh, and instead of looking for the cub the old bear went roaring and bounding past Asa as though she had been fired at with a shotgun. The spike stuck in her side and every little while she stopped and tried to nip at the sore spot. The pole was dragged behind her when she went out of sight. The boys could hear her roaring down toward the creek some time after she had disappeared, and they tied the cub's legs with strips of sheet cloth and lugged it home.

On Tuesday Mr. Hurd found the pole.

On Tuesday Mr. Hurd found the pole, 3 1/2 miles from the chestnut tree. The spike was gone, and the supposition is that the old bear is still carrying it around in her hide. Massachusetts Heard From.
