JOSEPH HORNE DEAD

The Great Drygoods Merchant Dies Buddenly at Danville

WHERE HE WAS HUNTING HEALTH

The Story of the Dead Man's Successful Business Career.

HIS LASTING MONUMENT ERECTING

Joseph Horne, head of the great Pittsburg drygoods house of Joseph Horne & Co., died at Danville, N. Y., at 10:45 o'clock on Wednesday night. Death came to the successful old business man like evening to a calm and pleasant day. The weight of his accumulated business affairs had broken Mr. Horne's health. A month ago he went to the Danville Sanitarium where he sustained a stroke of apoplexy and the end followed speedily.

Nearly two years ago the deceased suffered from an attack of the grip, from which he never entirely recovered. His whole system was shocked by the ailment. He suffered intensely. He called to his relief the best physicians known in medical science. He traveled far and near. He spent the summer of 1891 at Long Branch and returned to Pittsburg during the winter. Before the spring, however, he went on the advice of his physicians to Brunswick by the Sea, where the skill of the medical profession en-deavored to sustain and cure him. Much improved in health he returned to Pittsburg again in the early summer, but about a month ago he went to Danville. His family were not with him when death overtook him. They were summoned by telegraph and all of them left for Danville on Wednesday night.

His Death Was Unexpected. Mr. Horne's death was sudden and unexpected. His business associates on Wednesday morning received a letter in which it was written that Mr. Horne was growing stronger, and up until the last day he kept himself in touch with the affairs of his business. About once ench week while the merchant was at his Allegheny home the heads of the different departments in his wholesale and retail houses reported to him personally and reviewed the books and accounts, and he seemed to know every movement of his great concern as well while he was absent as when he was personally guiding his mammoth enterprises.

Joseph Horne was a remarkable man. He was an untiring worker. His energies were boundless, and the mammoth business block now erecting at Fifth street and Penn avenue, a magnificent pile of stone and iron, will stand a mighty monument to his cherished memory. From an humble clerk in a country store to the head of a firm whose business aggregates $5,000,000 a year is the story of his thrifty life. While climbing to the summit of a proud career he was generous, honest and fair.

Brief Review of Mr. Horne's Life. The deceased was born in Bedford, Bedford county, Pa., on January 13, 1826. In early life he studied medicine but on ne-count of delicate health he abandoned that count of delicate health he abandoned that profession and became a clerk in a Bedford store. In 1848 he came to Pittsburg and was engaged as a clerk in C. Yeager's store on Market street. About a year later he entered the employ of F. H. Eaton. He was popular with his new employer, and was promoted several times. In 1852 Mr. Eaton and Mr. Horne became business partners. Later Mr. Horne bought out Mr. Eaton, who retired, and C. B. Shea became a member of the firm of Joseph Horne & Co. The partnership still exists. Colonel O. P. Burchfield a short time after also entered the firm, and for years has superintended the wholesale denartment of the firm. Durbin Horne, the eldest son of the firm. Durbin Horne, the eldest son of the deceased, is also a member of the firm. He manages the retail department of the company.

Joseph Horne & Co.'s store was first located on Fourth street. Increasing business demanded larger quarters, and the store was moved to 77 and 79 Market street. In 1879 the retail house was moved to Penn avenue, the present location, and in 1880 the wholesale house was moved to Wood the was not been the way are not be the way and the way are not be the street and Liberty avenue, its present loca-

A Friend to Liberal Education Joseph Horne was born and raised a Methodist. His grandfathar served in the Methodist. His grandfather served in the Revolutionary War, and was a licensed exhorter. The deceased was educated in the Bedicrd Classical Academy. He became a member of the Liberty Street M. E. Church in 1847. He was one of the founders of Christ Church, and has been its class leader, Sunday school superintendent and trustee. He was a trustee of the Allegheny College of the Western University and for College of the Western University and for many years was a trustee of the Pittsburg many years was a trustee of the Pittsburg Female College. He was a trustee of the West Penn Hospital and the Dixmont Asylum, and to all the charities and religious efforts he was a liberal giver.

Mr. Horne was first married to Miss Shea. Durbin Horne, Joseph O. Horne and Mrs. J. G. Holmes are children of his first marriage. His second wife was Miss Emma Galway. She survives him. Bernard 8. Horne, 23 years old, is the son of the second marriage.

The arrangements for the funeral of the late Mr. Horne have not yet been com-pleted. The remains will be brought to Pittsburg to-day or to-morrow. A Columbus Parade of Dollar Bills. If the assets of the Equitable Life Assurance Scolety (in dollar bills) could march in the parade, they would make a parade themselves 16,120 miles long. Insure in this society and get a few yards of dollar bills.

DAHOMEYANS PRESSED HARD.

French Troops Still Advancing and Winning Victories in Africa. PARIS, Oct. 20.—A telegram to the Gov-ernment from Colonel Dodds, dated October 17, says:

We continued our forward march on the 18th inst., and having turned the enemy's position, occupied an important point which they had recently evacuated. The Dahomeyans afterward attacked our bivouse north of the village of Kato. We defeated this attack and a series of others, and finally inflicted heavy loss by taking the enemy between two cross-fires. These battles occupied October 14 and 15. Our loss was 18 killed, including one officer, and 25 wounded, including ten officers.

On October 16 we established a bivouse west of Akpa. When revicunded and munitioned, we shall make an attack along the line of the river Kato, which covers the enemy's lorces, including King Behanzin's camp. We continued our forward march on the Silk Fing Presentation. The school children of Rev. Father Mc-Keever's parish in Lawrenceville were resterday presented with a handsome silk flag by J. M. Guffey, the oil and gas man. The flag was regulation size and was very handsome. Joseph F. Guffey, son of ex-Sheriff Guffey and nephew of the donor, presented the flag in an eloquent and patriotic speech.

A Free Chautauquan Lecture On Monday evening Dr. J. T. Edwards, Principal of Chamberlain Institute, New York, will deliver a free address at the Smithfield M. E. Never in the existence of our city have the decorations of buildings and windows been equaled. Notable among the number is the window of Mesara John R. and A. Murdoca, 508 Smithfield street. A beautiful miniature floral ship, the Santa Marta, has been placed in a sea of graceful maiden hair ferns, mosses and stately paims. It is indeed an artistic window, showing the excellent taste and skill of this well-known firm.
