Republicans Parade in the East End and Democrats in Homestead.

RED FIRE AND BUNTING Used in Profusion in Honor of the Thousands of Marching Men.

JOHN F. COX IS VERY CONFIDENT.

Ropes Already Being Laid for the Legislative Speaker.

HEINER FIGURES OUT HIS MAJORITY

A rosy light tinged all the sky above the East End for several hours last night. There was a sulphurous smell in the leaf-streets, and no end of noise from bands and marching men and more than all the exasperating tin horns. On some of the streets the illuminations were so extensive as to seem as if Aladdin had actually built a series of palaces since sundown; Chinese lanterns of all shapes and sizes were strung from roof to door-step, and the romantic shadows of innumerable porches perished for the noise in floods of light.

The first Republican parade of the campaign in the East End was the scene for all these pretty displays. It was in honor of the underlying principles of the Republican party that patriotas went out upon the lawn when night came on and burned red fire on a spade, and for the same glorious cause the younger members of the family burned more red fire and their fingers, and let off rockets by the score.

The result of a fine display of fireworks, as well as one of the prettiest political parades of the year, was given to the East End.

As usual with all the parades of the campaign so far, the column which formed on Center avenue with right resting on Negley avenue, was considerably over an hour late in getting under way. That didn't matter much, however, for in the front of the spectators awaited its coming on their own doorstep. The people who came from town to see the parade mostly congregated on Penn avenue, and the only densely crowded district through which the procession passed was East Liberty proper.

It was just 9:40 when the head of the parade swung around the corner of Ellsworth avenue into South Negley amid a blaze of red fire from all the houses near. Eight stalwart park policemen in gray and finely mounted had nothing to do in the way of clearing the streets of this point, but they made a handsome language.

A Bright and Handsome Parade. Colonel Percich, the chief marshal of the parade, followed by a staff of 20 mounted aids, came next. Then the G. A. R. band woke the echoes with a rousing march as they entered the Americas Club, with umbrellas up and marching better than they've done before this year. The parade and marchers, for in the front of the start. The Twenty-first Ward Club carried red and white lanterns to relieve the white severity of their hats and coats. The cadets and their preparatory school were in a color, for their uniforms were red. A cannon, a donkey cart and a goat wagon were brought along by the cadets, and one of their preparatory school, "If We Can't Vote Our Daddies Can."

The Young Men's Republican Club of the Fourteenth ward, marched 20 men front, and a formidable line of boys in their uniforms. The horsemen in the parade were unusually fortunate in their mounts, and they would have made a respectable show for the parade, for there were at least 250 of them in line.

Drilling With Musket Lamps. The marching of the Eleventh Ward Club, armed with musket lamps, was one of the most notable features of the parade. The Allegheny River boys, in their uniforms, like in like fashion, also went through elaborate drill very cleverly. The Colonel Stone club, of Allegheny, and the Conkling Club were all in numbers in the parade and fine in appearance. The Tariff Club marched well, and the business-like suits of the Fifteenth ward, Republican Club did not prevent them from marching as well as like veteran soldiers. There was the warmest kind of greeting for the marchers wherever they went, red fire everywhere, and cheers as they passed.

The parade was the most complete and homogeneous one yet seen this year, and the East End received it splendidly. Outside towns were well represented in the line, Bradock, Bridgeville, Etna, Sharpsburg, Mansfield, Brunsford and Wilkingsburg all having clubs present.

The procession filed on Center avenue, with the right resting on Aiken avenue. The line of march was: Center avenue to Ellsworth avenue, to Ellsworth avenue, to South Negley avenue, to Collins street, to Broad street, to Frankstown avenue, to Park avenue, to Mayflower street, to Larimer avenue, to North High land avenue, to Bryant street; counter-march to Stanton avenue, to Negley avenue, to Penn avenue and passed in review on Penn avenue to the Allegheny river.

The Formation of the Line. The order of parade was as follows: Chief Marshal P. J. Percich, Chief of Staff Joseph H. H. Percich, Chief of Staff G. W. Horn and 100 Aids. Twenty-first Ward Republican Club, Captains W. D. Low and 80 men. American Republican Club, Captains Hubby and 10 men. Film Cadets of Twenty-first Ward, Captains Soper and 20 boys. MacGonigle Cadets of Twenty-first Ward, Captain Lemon and 20 boys. PITTSBURGH DIVISION. Fourteenth Ward Republican Club, Captain Carleton and 120 men. Escort to Marshal and Staff. Marshal James McKnight, Chief of Staff McCall, a Captain George Wilson and 100 Aids. Bradock Republican Club, Captain Sheehan and 30 men. Republican Pioneer Juniors of Bradock, Captain Bowman and 20 boys. Bradock Juniors, Captain Kirkpatrick and 24 boys. Eleventh Ward Republican Club, Captain J. A. A. Brown and 120 men. Twentieth Ward Republican Club, Captain Retch and 80 boys. Bridgeville Club, Captain Hughes and 20 men. Twenty-second Ward Republican Club, Captain Loge and 80 mounted men. Etna Club, Captain Hubbard and 100 men. Young Men's Republican Club, Captain Ewing and 120 men and 60 Carriages. Eleventh Ward Republican Club, Captain Klein and 30 men. Wilkingsburg Republican Club, Captain Murray and 20 men. E. M. Bigelow Cadets of Twenty-first Ward, Captain Moore and 20 Aids. American Republican Club, Captain and 80 men. Fifteenth Ward Republican Club, Captain S. J. Brown and 120 men. Twelfth Ward Republican Club, Captain Whitteyer and 80 men. ALLIANCE DIVISION. Marshal, George N. Loomis, Chief of Staff, R. S. Ingham, Adjutant General, R. W. Brown, Chief of Staff, R. S. Ingham.

A NEW COOL GANG.

Pittsburg Robbers Who Work Similar to the Famous Bandits.

A WIDOW IS THE LATEST VICTIM.

Thieves Take Charge of Mrs. Wolf's Home on Bluff Street.

THEY CARRY OFF MANY VALUABLES

The neighborhood up around Holy Ghost College is undergoing an attack from a gang of daring thieves. Almost daily reports come to the Police Department that some house up in that section has been robbed. The robbers carry on their nefarious work very much after the style of the now extinct Cooly gang.

The latest victim of these midnight attacks was Mrs. E. Wolf, of 22 Bluff street, right under the shadow of the Holy Ghost College. Mrs. Wolf and her two daughters live alone in a rather large house. Friday night they retired early, after having locked the house securely. It was about 1:30 yesterday morning when Mrs. Wolf was startled from her slumbers by a noise.

She awakened her daughter, who was sleeping with her, and told Miss Wolf that some one was trying to rob the house. The daughter thought her mother had only imagined that she heard a sound. They talked the matter over, and finally Mrs. Wolf commenced to think it was only an hallucination.

The Robber Is Discovered. The two ladies were just dropping off to sleep again when they both heard a noise in the room underneath. This time there was no mistake. Mrs. Wolf sprang from her bed and threw up the window overlooking the back yard. She saw a light that caused her great fright. The whole yard was bathed in light which was shining from the first story windows. The mother cried to her daughter that there was some one in the house. Miss Wolf needed only to look at the light in the back yard to convince her of this. Then the most critical moment was reached by the ladies, who were there to do. After a short consultation the younger lady opened the chamber door and timidly called: "Whose light is that?"

The two ladies at that time were nearly dead with fright. Summoning all her courage Miss Wolf again made bold enough to inquire who the visitor was. The question had hardly died away when the kitchen door went shut with a bang and a man was heard running down through the yard.

The Neighbors Alarmed by Screams. This did not give the ladies courage enough to go down stairs. Woman-like they resorted to that strong fort of theirs—a scream. Running to the front part of the room under the window. For the next two or three minutes the neighborhood knew that Mrs. Wolf and her daughter were in need of help. The neighbors came flocking to the Wolf house, and the police were called. They were hastily told. Mrs. Wolf was called to come down and open the front door, but she insisted that the recurring party should make an entry to the kitchen and the bedroom. The men in the party did not like the idea and even though Miss Wolf assured them that the robbers were all gone, they would not enter the house.

Mrs. Wolf, her daughter and the rescuers found a strange condition of affairs. From every gas jet in the lower part of the house a light was blazing high. The house was ransacked completely. Every drawer had been rifled and the contents were strewn over the floor. The robber got away with considerable silverware from these apartments. The family do not know exactly just what he did take. In the back yard an entry was made to the kitchen and the police were called. They were hastily told. Mrs. Wolf was called to come down and open the front door, but she insisted that the recurring party should make an entry to the kitchen and the bedroom. The men in the party did not like the idea and even though Miss Wolf assured them that the robbers were all gone, they would not enter the house.

Every Potato in the House Stolen. The collar and laundry were next visited and the contents of the drawers existed than on the floor above. The family had put up considerable fruit of one kind and another. The robber had gotten away with the contents of the drawers, and had not taken to his pocketbook. The woman made a vigorous resistance and succeeded in knocking the man down, but she could not tell the extent of his injuries.

Krierley's head is badly cut and the doctor fears it will be broken. Patrol wagon No. 3 was called and the injured man taken to his home in the rear of 101 Charles street. He was suffering intensely with the pain in his head, and his limbs and for this reason the doctor fears his back is broken. Krierley is about 50 years of age and has a family of three grown-up children.

THE REPORT DENIED. Secretary Lovejoy Says There Was No Conference With the Strikers. Secretary Lovejoy yesterday denied that any conference would be held with the Amalgamated Association. He said the Amalgamated Association were running satisfactorily and conferences were unnecessary. He denied that there had been a conference between the business men of Beaver Falls and Chairman Frick.

THE GENERAL SENTIMENT among the Amalgamated Association is that the strike would have to be made first at the Homestead mills, as the men at Beaver Falls had simply struck through sympathy. It was suggested that should the move toward the Beaver Falls mills, the move would prove disastrous to the cause of the other strikers.

A Hat Swinging a Claimant. A Polish woman, while at the Southside market last night, was assaulted by a man who attempted to steal her pocketbook. The woman made a vigorous resistance and succeeded in knocking the man down, but she could not tell the extent of his injuries.

Henry Rodgers Will Sue. Henry Rodgers, a hod carrier at the Carbon Iron Works, fell off a scaffold yesterday and sustained a severe scalp wound. He states that he intends to sue the Carbon Iron Works for the amount of $100,000, as the scaffold had been put up in a faulty manner.

Money. Next to good health and a clear conscience, one of the most valuable possessions on earth. It is hard to get and harder to keep. Next to good health and a clear conscience, one of the most valuable possessions on earth. It is hard to get and harder to keep.

Solomon & Ruben have opened a Stamp Savings Bank and intend to expend a great many dollars in order to disseminate such knowledge on the subject as will encourage and induce the masses to save and keep their money in a bank. There it will grow by accumulation and the aid of 4 1/2 per cent interest per annum. This interest working right and the naturally increasing the principal. A number of the most enterprising, accommodating and reliable druggists as well as other merchants in both cities and in some countries are kindly requested to place stamps on sale in their stores. A full list of these various agencies will be published in very little time. This means banking facilities are brought to the door of every home, school and workshop. It is a safe, reliable and profitable method of banking as a measure to teach the young generation the value of money and cultivate habits of thrift and prudence. To employers of labor it affords an opportunity as a correction of wasteful expenditures of small amounts in profitless ways by their employees.

ONE FARE IS ENOUGH.

The Mayor Pickling a Veto on a Street Railroad Ordinance.

WHY HIS HONOR OBJECTS TO IT.

Property Holders Protest Against Granting a Franchise.

A MEASURE DEFEATED IN COMMITTEE

Mayor Gourley has signed every document passed at the last meeting of Councils except one, the ordinance granting the Bellefield Street Railway Company the right to lay tracks on Center avenue. As more than the regulation ten days' time has passed since this ordinance reached the Mayor's hands, it is fair to presume he has a veto in picking for Councils when they meet again, a week from tomorrow.

Since the ordinance was passed the Mayor has been visited almost daily by John McGinley, T. B. Aterbury, Calvin Wells and other members of the Central Traction Company who have presented the claims of that company to the route mapped out for the Bellefield line. They showed an agreement with the Central Company signed by the presidents of the Duquesne and Craig Street railways under which the Central Company was to have the privilege of using the Duquesne tracks between Neville street and Negley avenue whenever the Central was ready to continue its line out Center avenue.

The Mayor Objects to Two Fares. The ordinance of the Bellefield Company provides a route from Herron avenue to the Duquesne tract at Neville street. The Central people claim they presented an ordinance to continue their line over the same route on the same day the Bellefield ordinance was presented, but that as a letter was for the Duquesne Company their ordinance was pigeon-holed in committee and the other returned and passed. They claim the Duquesne Company does not intend to build a line on the route if they get the privileges, their object being only to shut out a competing road, and that even if they do build the road it will be a disadvantage only to the residents of Herron Hill, who will be required to pay two fares to reach the East End.

The Central Traction Company should be required for the full length of the line. In his veto of the crossroad ordinance of the Bellefield Company, which was a few months ago the Mayor expressed an opposition to a system requiring two fares for one ride, and it is considered more than likely he will do so again in this case.

Property Holders of Station and Sheridan avenues nearly filed Select Council chamber yesterday afternoon to file their protest against the Morningstar and Hilland Park railway ordinance, which was before the last night but for trouble connected. It was feared that some hostile demonstration might be made.

KNOCKED DOWN THE SHAFT. A Workman at Bissell & Co.'s Fatally Injured by an Elevator. What may probably prove a fatal accident occurred shortly before 12 o'clock yesterday at the store works of Bissell & Co., at Robinson and Darragh street, Allegheny. Something got wrong with the elevator, the cable struck between the second and third floors and John Krierley, the blacksmith, started to adjust the difficulty. He was working with the pulleys when the cage dropped, striking the man and driving him down the elevator shaft into the cellar, the cage falling with him. An iron case used for casting small articles was on the ceiling of the shaft and it fell on his head, crushing him. He was removed in an unconscious condition and a physician called to attend to his injuries, but he could not tell the extent of his injuries.

Krierley's head is badly cut and the doctor fears it will be broken. Patrol wagon No. 3 was called and the injured man taken to his home in the rear of 101 Charles street. He was suffering intensely with the pain in his head, and his limbs and for this reason the doctor fears his back is broken. Krierley is about 50 years of age and has a family of three grown-up children.

THEY LACK NERVE. Dr. Fellows, of Chicago, Says Women Don't Make Good Surgeons. Dr. H. B. Fellows, Dean of the Hahnemann Medical College, in Chicago, was a passenger on the limited last evening going west. His school is pending, but he frankly admits that he thinks women should not practice medicine. He says some of them want to become surgeons, but at the critical moment they lack nerve and fail. In some departments of medicine the women are very well adapted, but he has been demonstrated that where great skill is required the male doctors are the best.

Dr. Fellows says homopathy is gaining ground among the better educated women in Chicago, he claims, the worthy people prefer physicians of the homeopathic school.

A Woman's Wild Ride. Annie Kerr went into an Italian fruit store parlor on Penn avenue at Twenty-eighth street last evening, quarreled with the proprietor, and began throwing everything in reach at him. Officer Wilkoffsky placed her under arrest.

Henry Rodgers Will Sue. Henry Rodgers, a hod carrier at the Carbon Iron Works, fell off a scaffold yesterday and sustained a severe scalp wound. He states that he intends to sue the Carbon Iron Works for the amount of $100,000, as the scaffold had been put up in a faulty manner.

WITHOUT A MOURNER.

The Body of the Miller's Grove Suicide Identified and Buried in the Potter's Field.

His Brother Declines to Contribute Toward the Funeral.

REFUSES TO ATTEND THE INTERMENT

The remains of George Retenauer, the suicide whose body was found hanging in a barn at Miller's Grove on Thursday, were laid away in the Potter's field yesterday. Not a prayer was said, not a mourning relative was present. The interment was a cold, matter-of-fact piece of business, conducted by the employees of the morgue, who have had so many similar duties to perform that they have become case-hardened to them.

That Retenauer was not more solemnly interred was not because there were no relatives to do it. Philip Retenauer, his brother, is a resident of this city. It was he who positively identified the body as the morgue yesterday. Later, at the coroner's inquest, he told the coroner, while under oath, that he would not bury the dead man, contribute to his burial, attend his funeral or, in fact, have anything to do with him. The coroner, indignant at such a display of indifference, and seeking to save the county the expense of the funeral, endeavored to stave off the matter by doing it as a creature of civilization, but he had his trouble for his pains. The man declared he could not afford to bury his brother and that he had no money similar duties to perform that they have become case-hardened to them.

According to the testimony of Philip Retenauer, his brother was 36 years of age, a native of Prussia, single, a pudler by trade, and last seen in Philadelphia, Pa. at the body was not in condition to be kept any longer the coroner ordered it interred at once at the same time inviting the brother to attend the funeral. He refused to do so. Philip Retenauer resides at 2508 Larkins alley. When he appeared at the morgue yesterday he was well dressed and proper looking, and was accompanied by several friends who were equally well to do in appearance.

COLORED FOR WEAVER. A Prominent Politician Says There Is No Doubt of His Success. Captain D. W. D. Freeman, of West Middlesex; J. H. Stevenson and J. R. Aiken addressed a meeting of the People's party at West Elizabeth, last night. About 100 voters were present.

Complaints Have Not Been at Police Headquarters in the Past Few Days by the Keepers of Disorderly Places in the First ward that young men visit their houses and create disturbances when they are refused liquor, many of them declaring the refusal to sell is only a bluff. Last night Henry Thomas, George Heller and Frank McQuaid were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct. They threatened to do up all the people in the house at 12 Third avenue.

SHORT SCENES OF LOCAL NEWS. A Large audience was present at the 1922 fire concert in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. Owing to a dense fog yesterday morning, the Baltimore and Ohio road was tied up for several hours.

THE JOB of replacing the Temperance bridge with an iron structure was completed yesterday. The work was commenced three months ago, and one track could not be used, thus impeding traffic. Both tracks will be open to-day.
