

NO DOUBT OF MURDER.

Coroner McDowell Positive That Old Mrs. Dell, of McKeesport, WAS THE VICTIM OF FOUL PLAY.

No Clue to the Woman's Assailant Has Yet Been Discovered.

INTERFERING WITH A BOY WITNESS

The identity of the murderer of Mrs. Maria Dell was not established at the Coroner's inquest yesterday, but some important evidence was produced.

On his return from McKeesport last night Coroner McDowell repeated his assertion that Mrs. Dell was murdered beyond a doubt.

Several significant points were developed in yesterday's testimony. Ed Bollingburg, the young man who was the first to find and recognize Mrs. Dell, did not appear when called yesterday.

Lillie Whalen, the granddaughter of Mrs. Dell, against whom some suspicions have been directed, was clearly relieved from blame by the testimony taken yesterday.

Mrs. Mary Wilcox, of West Wilmerding, showed that Mrs. Dell had come to her house that day at noon and wanted work, but Mrs. Wilcox declined to hire her because she was in the habit of leaving without notice.

John Palquist's testimony fits in here again. At 7 o'clock Saturday night he saw Mrs. Dell at his house inquiring for Lillie Whalen, who had an hour previously gone to the station to meet her mother who was expected to visit her.

There is no evidence that anyone saw Mrs. Dell from the time she left Palquist's until Ed Bollingburg found her on the road. To reach the point where she was found in less than half an hour, Mrs. Dell must have been leaving at about a half past nine.

John Dyer, Addison Williams, Jacob Hagan, James Hamilton, and Jacob Hess, all passed along the road at 7:30 o'clock and saw Mrs. Dell sitting by the road. By their own testimony they spoke to her, asking what was the matter.

Robert Mason testified that on his return from McKeesport Saturday night, about 7:30 o'clock, he saw Ed Bollingburg in front of his father's gate. Ed called his attention to the old lady on the opposite side of the road, saying "I think it's Mrs. Dell and she's drunk."

Charles Bollingburg, aged 15, on the stand told of his brother Ed, aged 20, coming into the house saying there was a woman drunk lying out on the road. The witness took a lantern and went to the old lady lay. In response to Ed's question Mrs. Dell had said she was sick.

At this point in the testimony, Andrew Bollingburg, father of the two boys, placed his hand to his mouth and, leaning over the railing toward the witness, cautioned him with a "sh-h-h."

Bollingburg withdrew then, but when his son Ed's name was called he spoke up, saying Ed had not been subpoenaed.

Testimony of neighbors of Mrs. Dell was that she was always a quiet, sensible woman, and evidence taken showed that none of her relatives could possibly have seen or harmed her the night she was killed.

LOOKING FOR THE END. Prospect of a Settlement of the River Coal Miners' Strike.

STEADY WORK TO BE GUARANTEED. Flint Glass Manufacturers and Workers Adjust Differences.

NEWS OF THE GREAT LABOR WORLD

The outlook for the settlement of the river coal miners' strike is growing brighter, and it is thought there will be an early resumption of work.

The reports from farther up the river, where the rates will be 2 1/2 cents a bushel, are not so encouraging, but if a break is made there will be a general resumption of work.

Though the water is lower than it has been since 1887, it is estimated there are about 400 coal barges above Davis Island which could be distributed at the various mines.

The low water is proving a bonanza for the railroads, and the longer the present stage of water continues the better their trade will be.

MILLS ARE BUSY. Some Concerns Running on Double Turn. The Outlook Very Bright—Firms Being Benefited by the Strike in the Carnegie Works.

The increased activity in the iron and steel trade is compelling many of the mills to put their works on double turn and fire up furnaces that have not been running for two or three years or even longer.

John Dyer, Addison Williams, Jacob Hagan, James Hamilton, and Jacob Hess, all passed along the road at 7:30 o'clock and saw Mrs. Dell sitting by the road.

At this point in the testimony, Andrew Bollingburg, father of the two boys, placed his hand to his mouth and, leaning over the railing toward the witness, cautioned him with a "sh-h-h."

Bollingburg withdrew then, but when his son Ed's name was called he spoke up, saying Ed had not been subpoenaed.

Pittsburg Clubmen Will Camp Near Chicago Next Summer AND THUS SEE THE FAIR CREAMLY.

Their Tents Will Be Pitched on the Shore of Lake Michigan.

ARRANGEMENTS ARE NOW BEING MADE

E. C. Dunnivant, city passenger agent of the Lake Erie road, returned yesterday from a trip through Michigan and Indiana. He has taken time by the forelock in the interest of his railroad.

Mr. Dunnivant says that within a radius of from 60 to 80 miles of Chicago, there are numerous beautiful spots suitable for camp sites. They are located along Lake Michigan and the railroads.

A Cheap Way to See the Fair. Mr. Dunnivant for the Lake Erie, and W. E. Wolfenden, of the Chicago and West Michigan road, have already leased 500 acres on the banks of Papaw lake that will be used by camping parties.

The Canadian Game Laws Hurt the Sport. The Canadian hunting season, Mr. Dunnivant says, has been a failure this fall. In former years large hunting parties from Pittsburgh went to the Dominion.
