OCTOBER DISPATCH. THURSDAY. 27, THE PITTSBURG

The New England Surely in It.

A dispatch from Philadelphia says: Much elation and excitement was manifested among Reading officials to-day when rumora became current that Presidenty of the Boston and Mine mad Vice Boston Name. George W. John Ada M. Leve.... and Maine road. Vice President Young made the following official announcement

A. A. McLeod was this afternoon elected President of the Boston and Maine Rallway. At the same time, and as an incident to the same transaction, friends of the Philadel-phia and Reading Company have obtained control of the New York and New Enziand Railroad. These important rallway connec-tions, in addition to the Poughkeepsie bridge, now also in the control of the Read-ing, give that system its own channels of access to New England and the Canadas.

THE NEW KING OF THE RAILWAY WORLD

Boston, Oct. 26 .- A great railroad combination, rumors of which have been in the air for several weeks, was consummated today. Parties largely interested in the Boston and Maine and the Philadelphia and Reading Railroads have made a friendly alliance. This explains the surprising activity and sharp advance in the market price of Boston and Maine stock during the past

Vanderbilt interests were not the purchasers, as was currently believed, but President McLeod, of the Reading, his friends and associates; and it is known that they have acquired large blocks of the stock.

This resulted to-day in the resignation of William T. Hart, a director of the Boston and Maine. The vacancy was filled by the election of A. A. McLeod, President of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad. President Frank Jones, of the Boston and Maine

Railroad, then tendered his resignation, and Mr. McLeod was unanimously clected to the Presidency of that corporation. The position of Chairman of the Board of Directors was created, and Mr. Jones was chosen as that official, being charged with the executive management of the Boston and Maine system, as heretofore. He was, also, chosen relationship have been under consideration. but they were not fully formulated until last Monday, when President McLeod met representatives of the Boston and Maine in New York, and matters were brought to a satisfactory conclusion. It is said that for several months this alliance has been under consideration by Mr. McLeod at the earnest solicitation of parties interested in Boston and Maine, though he was reluctant to take upon himself cares and responsibilities other than those now resting upon him; but after looking over the situation carefully, and believing that such an alliance would be greatly to the advantage of both prop-erties, he decided to take hold and give whatever assistance he could to its practical development. The Boston and Maine has a large water

Vice President.

While the Boston and Maine system has in recent years made great progress in tonnage and revenue and has become the greatest infircad system in New England, yet it has remained isolated, comparatively speaking, from many sections of the country. It is well known that the manufacturing induswell known that the manufacturing indus-tries on its lines are more numerous and exceed in output and value these of any system in the country, and if they are to continue to expand they must extend and enlarge their markets. On the other hand, the network of railroads controlled by the leading covers one of the most populous regions of the country, and would consume, if the New England industries had access to them, probably a greater proportion than any other section in the United States, to say nothing of the vast territory beyond more easily reached by the Reading lines than any other. The relations will be very much of the nature of that now existing between the Boston and Maine and the Canadian Pacific, which has proved so ad-Canadian Pacific, which has proved so ad-vantageous to both companies.

A Like Deal With the Canadian Pacific.

Much of the traffic I refer to must be moved by rail. There is no better evidence of the need of the Boston and Maine for additional trunk line connections and their value than the connection with the Canadian value than the connection with the Canadian Pacific, the northernmost of all, which has brought to the former a large traffic which it did not formerly eight, and which has proved to be very remunerative. The alliance will greatly add to the passen-ger traffic of the Boston and Maine, not only from the travel incident to the commercial and business interchange, but through an efficient and united through service similar to that now in operation over the Reading between Washington and New York. The alliance, having control of the only through all-rail route, will command a vasily in-creased proportion of the travel between the southers portions of the country and the crast and the lakes and woods of Maine. This alliance will form one through line over its own rail, extending from the Great Lakes to the St. Croix river, and will give to Beaton and vicinity a new and independent turk inter on the under the Borton and the bar Boston and vicinity a new and independent trunk line of railroad to Buffalo and the Hon. Frank Jones, the new Vice Presi-dent and Chairman of the Board of Directors, said:

It is the greatest thing that could have happened to the Boston and Maine. Only bear one thing in mind: There is no amai-gemation of the two systems. There is no exchange of stock; there is no traffic ar-rangement. In fact, there is no arrange-ment of any description which will merge the two companies into one corporate or-empiration. ganization.

Mr. Jones Dodges the New England Phase.

Mr. Jones was asked what position the New England Railroad occupies in the ar-rangements as now contemplated. He re-plied: "I must decline to enter into any explanation at this time. The New England property was a necessity in certain directions, and it was thought expedient for the friends of the Reading system to own a majority of its stock." Hon. W. C. Whitney, of New York, snid:

Hon. W. C. Whitney, of New York, said: I have no interest in the Reading com-bination and never have had. As a Boston and Maine director, I think this will help the property. In the first place, they are not in the same territory and do not com-pete for the same business; therefore one cannot be run to the prejudice of the other. They are both interested in the develop-ment of the joint business, and not in the suppression of the business and not in the suppression of the other. I am assured that there is no intention to saddle the Boston and Maine with the New England in any form, nor with any other property. It can-not be done without legislation; without the general concurrence of the stockhoiders. general concurrence of the stockholders. When that is proposed will be the time to consider and fight it.
