GROVER GREETS BUFFALO BOYS,

A Personal-Political Speech by the Democratic Presidental Candidate

TO SOME OLD FRIENDS.

A Plea for His Party and Incidentally One for Himself.

The Ex-President Sees Around Him Several With Whom He Used to March While Carrying a Torch-He Is More Interested in the Campaign of To-Day Than He Used to Be Thirty Years Ago-Mr. Cleveland's Side Partner Addresses a Large Audience in Brooklyn-Other Speeches Made Yesterday and Last Night.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.-The reception at the Imperial Hotel to-night given to ex-President Cieveland by the Buffalonians' Cleveland Club, was attended by about 200 persons, consisting of members of the club and a few invited guests. Mr. Cleveland's arrival was the occasion of applause, and all those present remained standing until the speeches of the evening, which lasted for almost an hour, were over.

After a preliminary speech calling the meeting to order the guest of the evening was introduced as one whose name created enthusiasm even when mentioned in a Republican meeting.

What Mr. Cleveland Said to Friends. Mr. Cleveland spoke as follows:

I hope it is not necessary for me to tell you how much I enjoy being with you to-night, and how exceedingly gratifying is every reflection suggested by this occasion. Its best and most pleasant feature is, of course, the presence here of many old Buffalo friends, presence here of many old Buffalo friends, which recalls to my mind incidents and associations which have been and will always continue to be the things most carefully kept by memory for my deligns.

You have among you one at least, who 32 years ago, belonged with me to a Democratic club which had in hand the task of electing Stephen A. Douglas to the Presidency. Many a night we marched side by side, in yellew capes and bearing torches. I do not believe that either of us supposed for a moment that our candidate could be defeated, provided we marched far enough and made noise enough, and had enough of kerosene oil running from our torches down our backs. I am thus reminded of a time when my participation in the activities of polities meant enthusiasm for a man or a cause, a great deal ticipation in the activities of politics meant enthusiasm for a man or a cause, a great deal of excitement and noise, plenty of hope and confidence, generally followed by bitter disappointment, soon forgotten. I bardly think you will be surprised to know that in 1892, when my relation to politics has a rather more sober complexion, I recall my share in the campaign of 1890, and all its work and disappointment, with comparative pleasure. Others do the marching and shouting now, but I believe they are enjoying the campaign more than I am. Somehow the thing looks more serious to me now, and I cannot help thinking that I am rather more closely related to the present campaign than I was when Douglas ran for 'resident. [Laughter.]

Reminders of His Legal Work in Buffalo. Another of your members was a student my Buffalo law office. This reminds me of the days when, in the city of Buffalo, I tempted by the practice of law to obtain mest a living as was possible in that siness. Those where pleasant days, and I o not mind confessing that they were badly exchanged, so far as my personal comfort and enjoyment are concerned, for the per-plexities and troubles of public life. I must not neglect to mention the further gratifynot neglect to mention the further gratifying circumstance that the appearance of the name of this member upon your rolls indicates the probability that his politics has improved, as well as his knowledge of law, since he was associated with me in Buffale. I knew another young man when I lived in Buffale who was a jolly, pleasant fellow, but who, from a Democratic standpoint, and especially from the standpoint of Democratic defeat, was one of the most goodnaturedly aggravating Republicans in the city. I want to emphasize the dominance naturedly aggravating Republicans in the city. I want to emphasize the dominance of his good nature and good-heartedness over his former partianship by mentioning the fact that I have lately received from him, as your secretary, an invitation to join this organization, which I understand to be pledged to the support of a Democratic candidate for the Presidency.

Other Buffalo Friends All Around.

At the head of your club I find a con paratively new acquaintance whose generosity as a friend, and whose success in business were fully explained to me when I found that he formerly resided in Buffalo, and had been educated in her public schools. I will not refer to the other members of your organization whose presence here brings to mind pleasing incidents of former your organization whose presence here brings to mind pleasing incidents of former days, but will do myself justice to say that my sensations are such at this moment, and in the atmosphere of personal friendliness that pervades this occasion, that I nearly forget that this organization has political plans and purposes occur to my mind they merely add to my grateful appreciation of your personal kindness. You encourage me to believe that, though you have associated together in support of certain political principles, the fact that an old Buffalo friend is in trouble on account of his political opinions, and needs your help, has something to do with your organized political activity. [Laughter and applause.]

Therefore, while my heart is full of gratitude to the iriends I see about me. I cannot forbear the suggestion of my belief that your organization not only demonstrates your personal friendship for an old townsman, but it also indicates that you are fully alive to your duty as good citizens. You know how devoted I am to the principles of the Democratic party, and your knowledge of me will, I am sure, acquit me of insincerity when I express the opinion that the result of the pending political struggle means more to our country and our people than any in which you or I have ever been engaged.

He Taffics the Masses.

He Taffles the Masses, On one side the claim is defiantly and ar cogantly announced that the functions of our Government may be used directly for the benefit of certain special interests, with it best a very remote regard to the welfare of the masses of the people. In opposition to this an appeal is made to our fellow citizens to hold fast to the doctrine that their Government should at all times be admin stered directly for them, and that they should not be oblized to receive, as their inare of the blessings of the free Government they maintain, the small portion which nay filter through to them in the process of making special beneficiaries rich. In other words, the Democratic party is insisting ipon the honest application of the rule that I Government by the people should be a jovernment for the people. [Tremendous upplause.]

It is as needless as it is foreign to my purpose to discuss in the control of the process of the control of the people.

It is as needless as it is foreign to my purose to discuss, in detail, before those so houghtful and intelligent as my Buffalo riends, the differences between the politial principles and purposes presented to our copile for their approval. I only desire to usure you that the gratification which your personal attachment affords is greatly enjanced by the consciousness that it is the ttachment of those who are thoughtful and atriotic, and by the conviction that the atriotic, and by the conviction that the apport you give in an organized way to your old townsman cannot create in your ninds the least suspicion that snot support in aid of principles at all inconsistent rith your highest duty as American citi-iens.

It only remains for me to say that, what-It only remains for me to say that, what-wer may be the result of the pending cam-sign, I shall always remember as its most deasing incident this occasion and the vidence it furnishes of the consideration and devotion of the Buffalo friends I see Democratic nominees. The rest of the evening was spent in social conversation and handshaking. All the speeches were applauded heartily.

STEVENSON IN BROOKLYN.

A Large Audience Listens to Grover's Running Mate Talk on the Issues. BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 26.—The Dem-ocracy of Brooklyn turned out in force to night and held a great mass meeting in the Academy of Music, where General Adlai E. Stevenson, the Vice Presidental candidate, and Congressman Isadore Raynor, of Mary-land, spoke on the issues of the campaign. Over 4,000 persons, many of whom were ladies, were crowded in the spacious amphi-theater, and nearly 500 prominent Demo-cratic citizens occupied seats on the stage. General Stevenson received an ovation as he stepped forward to deliver his speech, the great audience rising to its feet, waving handkerchiefs and wildly cheering. Throughout his remarks, General Stevenson was re-peatedly applauded, and every mention of Cleveland's name was greeted with deafen-ing cheers. Among other things he said:

Cleveland's name was greeted with deafening cheers. Among other things he said:

At the close of President Cleveland's administration the surplus in the Treasury, exclusive of gold reserve, was in round numbers $83,000,000. It will be remembered that during the latter half of the administration an important question was: What shall be done with the surplus revenues? In view of the fact that the annual revenues of the Government were then $100,000,000 in excess of its expenditures, the question was one of practical interest to the American people. What is the condition which now confronts us at the end of 3½ years of Republican administration? On the basis of revenues to the Government as estimated for the present fiscal year, and of the liabilities of the Government on account of the annual and permanent appropriations for the same period, there will be a deficit of $52,000,000. Upon the assumption that the law requiring $48,000,000 for the sinking fund will be complied with, there is no escaping the deficiency I have mentioned. The bankruptcy which now threatens the Treasury is the result, first, of the enactment of the McKinley tariff law; and second, the lavish appropriations of the last Republican Congress, which has gone into history as the billion-dollar Congress, far exceeded that of any of its Democratic predecessors.

40,000 IN ONE AUDIENCE.

An Enormous Crowd Listens to Govern McKinley at Danville, Ill.

DANVILLE, ILL., Oct. 26. - Probably the largest crowd ever seen in Eastern Illinois assembled in Danville to-day. The attraction was Governor McKinley, of Ohio. A perfect autumn day lent pleasure to McKinley's visit. The city was profusely deco-rated. Special trains from Springfield, Decatur, Shelbyville, Lafayette, Craw-fordsville, Champagne, Watseke, Paris, Momence and other points rolled in loaded to the guards. When the Governor arrived he was conveyed to Ellsworth Park, where an assemblage estimated at between 35,000 and 40,000 yelled a tremendous welcome. Mr. McKinley, introdu ed to the audience by Hon. J. G. Cannon, said among other

Mr. McKinley, introdu ed to the audience by Hon, J. G. Cannon, said among other things:

There is resting upon us an important duty, that of choosing an executive who shall serve the people for four years and a House of Representatives who shall make our laws for two years. The Democratic platform contains two striking and astounding declarations. First, it is proposed to abolish the 10 per cent tax on State bank issues. This tax was avowedly imposed by Congress to destroy and retire this currency, and now after 30 years it is proposed to rehabilitate it. Under the policy pursued by the Democratic party, which gave us as the acme of its legislation this State bank money, two things had to be ascertained: Is the bank solvent? Is, the bill counteried? Our present currency is good the world over, wherever American trade goes. A dollar is worth 100 cents. Why? Because it has the best Government in the world behind it. No class suffers so from poor money as the poor man. The rich can protect themselves. The Democratic platform makes another declaration for British free trade. No party was ever so brave before. Mr. Democrat, do you say you are not for free trade? Then you are not a Democrat this year. [Laughter.] You say you are for a tariff for revenue only. That is the way England raises $100,000,000 every 12 months.

Throughout the address of an hour and a

Throughout the address of an hour and a quarter the preatest enthusiasm prevailed. Governor McKinley left on a special train at 5:30 for Terre Haute, where he spoke tonight to a very large audience.

the Trouble at Homestead. ELWOOD, IND., Oct. 26.-The great Democratic demonstration and celebration of the Macbeth lamp chimney factory of this city was held here to-day. The barbecue feature was given up at the last moment, and the multitude who came here expecting to be fed went hungry or bought their dinners at the hotels and restaurants. Elwood never saw such a crowd. The speakers of the day were Hon. James E. Campbell, of Ohio: Hon, W. D. Bynum, of Indiana; Hon. George W. Houck, of Ohio, and Hon. John W. Lamb, of Indiana.

The speaking began in the grove north of the city at 2 o'clock, Hon. James E. Campbell delivering an answer to Major McKinley's speech in this city September 13 last, in regard to the issue of protection. It was a restless crowd that filled the grove and stood under the drapings listening to the leader of the Democratic party of Ohio as he hurled defiance in the face of the Republican stronghold of protection, its anchor, and the political party that champions that Ex-Governor Campbell discussed the Homestead affair, and denounced Carnegie as the source of the trouble that ended so disastrously there. He briefly referred to the force bill, and in closing claimed New York and Connecticut as sure for the Democrats at the approaching election. To-night a monster torchlight procession was given on the streets of Elwood, fully 6,000 men being in line.

REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—Chauncey M. Depew spoke here this evening at the Academy of Music, under the auspices of the Union League, to an audience that taxed the building to its greatest capacity. Mr. Depew's speech was a campaign ora-tion in favor of protection and the prin-ciples of the Republican party. Throughout Mr. Depew eschewed deluging his audience with torrents of statistical figures, and confined himself to a general exposition of his party's principles.

Samuel B. Huey, Vice President of the Union League, introduced Mr. Depew, who was received with great applause. An abstract of Mr. Depew's speech follows:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Citizens: It always gives me great pleasure to come to Philadelphia, but especially to-night, as the representative of the Union League of New York bringing greetings to the Union League of Philadelphia. If there ever was a time when the mind of the country should be educated in regard to its real interests it is now. The most impressive sight I ever Is now. The most impressive sight I ever saw in my life was 150,000 people gathered together in one building, being the Chicago Columbian celebration. I saw a million and two, more or less, on my way to the building. All seemed happy, prosperous, and to have plenty of mouey. I saw no beggars; met with no rags; everything indicated that they represented a phenomenally prosperous country. And when we were gathered together I listened to the ablest Republican speech I byer heard delivered by Henry Watterson, of Kentucky.

Watterson's Tribute to Protection Watterson is the ablest Democrat in the country to-day, and introduced the free trade plank in the Chicago platform. Yet Watterson, in the glowing oratory of the fervid South, described the phenomenal growth and prosperity of the country since the civil war. It was a proud picture of a growth and prosperity of the country since the civil war. It was a proud picture of a proud people celebrating a proud event, and calling upon the world to look upon their prosperity.

For some reason I went from Chicago to Indiana. I then bade adleu to my old friend, "General Apathy." At every station was the entire population. At Indianapolis every prominent Republican from every county had gathered to meet us. The Republican State Chairman assured me that the greatest enthusiasm was felt, and that Indiana was safe for Harrison. The one peculiarity of this Presidental canvass is that of the many people who have paid little attention to it so far. There was a reason for this, and it was general apathy, and this seems dangerous to me. It is 19 years since we have had a panic in this country. It is because the Republican policy has made panics impossible. We have had furries, like the Baring failure, but a panic that reaches all through the community, affects every man, woman and child, and makes half the community tramps, we know nothing about. It is the Republican policy of protection that has done this. But try our policy, say our Democratic friends. We have not had a chance since 1860. [Thank God.] But why should we change? Our Democratic and mugwump friends say change, there is no danger in a change.

Egan Finds a New Defender.

We have had recently for our edification the testimony of converts. My friend Mr. MacVeagh, whom I greatly admire and love, has recently become a convert. When my has recently become a convert. When my friend MacVeagh calls upon me to vote against Harrison, I say: "Mac, old boy, what's the reason? Why should we change our policy?" and Mr. MacVeagh replies: "Because Patrick Egan went to Chile." I met Patrick the other night. MacVeagh might have eaptured me, if I had not met Patrick. I dined with him, rode to the station with him, and talked to him. I then came to the conclusion that if I was President of the United States I would send Egan back to Chile or promote him to a better place.

the United States I would send Egan back to Chile or promote him to a better place. Then there is my old friend, Carl Schurz. There is no man living who can use better English, more to the point and more epigramatic than Schurz. It took him is columns of the Evening Post to tell 19 mugwump gentlemen in Brooklyn why they should vote for Cieveland.

The Republican party has a glorious past. It is the only party that can proudly claim that it saved the country in the hour of perill. It has never had a man in its ranks who fired a shot at the national flag. It is the only party that has struck the shackles from the slave. It is the only party that ever imperited its existence against a popular craze, that the people might have honest money.

But why bother shout the past say our money.

But why bother about the past, say our Democratic friends. Well, let the past go. When I came out I made a bargain with the Democrats that if they would not tell lies about the past of the Republican party I would not tell the truth about the past of the Democratic party. Stevenson and Reid Compared. He then instituted a comparison between Mr. Reid's past record on National ques-tions and that of Mr. Stevenson's, and declared that Mr. Reid was the safest man of the two to elect. Continuing, Mr. Depew the two to elect. Continuing, Mr. Depew said:

I have nothing against my friend, Mr. Cleveland. We judge him by his declaration of what he intends to do if he is elected President, and what if he has a Democratic House and Senate to help him. Any one who knows Mr. Cleveland knows that he would carry out his convictions.

As your Chairman said at the beginning of this meeting, there is no one in this yast audience—made up, I suppose, of men of all political parties—who does not extend to the President in his present affliction his tenderest and most heartfelt sympathy. He has our sympathy, and especially because we have seen and studied his family life. He has stood so purely and so notly for the American home. In his devotion to his wife and his love for her, well or ill, in the simplicity in which they lived and in the full blaze of publicity, in all the virtues which decorate and adorn the fireside and the family circle, Benjamin Harrison stands to-day before his countrymen the best type of American manhood, dignifying the name and adding luster to the life of the American father and husband. He can take no part in the canvass. I will say for his opponent that the letter he wrote declining to attend the Chicago Columbian celebration was in the finest spirit of reciprocity and in recognition of the sorrow that had fallen on his antagonist. Accidents will happen, but the ranks will close up and the survivors must move on to victory for America for Americans.

DETROIT, Oct. 26. -The Boards of Registration began their sessions to-day, and will continue sitting for four days. Already there are reports of fraudulent registrations. It is stated that Lou Burt, Chairman of the consolidated Republican city and county committees, this morning went from one Registration Board to another in the river districts of the First, Second Third and Fourth wards carrying a kodak, with which he caught the pictures of persons marked by detectives in the em-ploy of the Republican Committee as either ploy of the Republican Committee as either repeaters or aliens. They are persons who have taken up quarters at cheap lodging houses along the wharves and who intend, it is said, to register and vote the Democratic ticket. KER BEATS M'ALEER.

The Latter's Name Will Not Be Printed as the Democratic Nominee

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.-Judge Simonton, of the Dauphin County Court, to-day decided that the nomination papers of W. W. Ker were valid, and that Mr. Ker's name should be printed on the ticket as the Democratic nominee in the Third Congressional district. This is the district represented during his life by Samuel J. Randall. William McAleer, Democrat, is the present Congressman from the district. Mr. Ker obtained the nomination of the "regular" faction of the Democracy at the convention, defeating McAleer. McAleer's friends immediately held a convention of their own and named him. The Republicans later on indorsed McAleer and placed his name on their banner, whereupon Mr. Ker withdrew, leaving the field to his opponent. He failed to withdraw his official nomination papers, however, and under the new ballot law he was still a candidate.

Mr. McAleer sought, in the Harrisburg court, to compel the omission of Mr. Ker's name from the official ballot. Meanwhile the latter became angered at abuse heaped upon him by some of the faction opposed to him, and he vigorously fought the proceed-ings, with the result that to-day he was de-clared the official candidate of the Demo-crata. The district is Democratic by over 5,000, and although Congressman McAleer is very popular, he will be handicapped by the fact that, while he is a Democrat, he will appear on the official ballot as the Republican candidate. Therefore, Mr. Ker stands a chance of securing the Congres-

The Ex-G. A. R. Chieftain Is With Grover on the Veto Question.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 26.-The great sensation in political circles here to-day is the an-nouncement that Judge John P. Rae, ex-Commander in Chief of the G. A. R., and a Commander in Chief of the G. A. R., and a lifelong Republican, has come out for Cleveland and Lawler. It had been arranged to spring the Judge at the Democratic demonstration Monday night, but business prevented and the fact of the conversion was not known until yesterday. The Republicans are astounded, and refuse to believe the story, but Judge Rae confirms it with his own lips.

Judge Rae's conversion was primarily brought about by Mr. Cleveland's pension vetoes. To a reporter he said to-day: "There was so much talk in Grand Army circles on the subject of these pension vetoes that I determined to look it up for myself. I did so thoroughly and the result is that I will show what I think of them by voting for Mr. Cleveland. I fail to find a single veto that was not based upon princisingle veto that was not based upon princi-ples of right and justice and I honor Cleve-land for his upright and manly course."

AN APPEAL TO M'LEOD

Not to Let His New Railroad Be Abused by the Democracy.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 26.-Senator Chandler to-night sent the following dis-

To A. A. McLeod, President Reading Railroad,

Two years ago the State of New Hampshire was flooded with half a million dollars for corrupt use by the Democratic party, which money had been unlawfully taken by President Frank Jones, of the Boston and Maine dent Frank Jones, of the Boston and Maine Railroad, from the Maverick National Bank of Boston. As an inducement to the bank to turnish the money half a million of Boston and Maine Railroad funds were placed therein, and the deposit existed when the bank made its criminal failure in October. 1891. To-day the Boston and Maine Railroad is again being used as a great political machine for the Democratic party. I appeal to you, now the leader of the new railroad combination, to put an immediate stop to this prostitution to political uses of the powers of the Boston and Maine Railroad, and to make it a non-nolitical enterprise. Will you not give a public assurance that you will do so?

CAUGHT AND MADE TO PAY THE PRICE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.] NEW YORK, Oct. 26. - Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., pastor of the Twenty-third Street Baptist Church, started out yesterday morning on a little gunning expedition. It proved, no doubt, to be the biggest one-day trip he had ever taken. The voods of Staten Island was where Mr. Dixon chose to shoot. He was accompanied by a colored boy, who carried his shooting jacket, leggins and rubber shoes packed in a valise. His breech-loading, double-barreled gun he carried himself.

Arriving at the island Mr. Dixon donned his shooting clothes and entered the wood, accompanied by the colored boy. He beat along to the south, and the crack, crack of his gun could be heard for a mile sround. When he emerged from the woods it was evident that he had got something. His face was radiant with smiles, and the colored boy chuckled and bestowed looks of admiration on his employer. To change his clothes and pack the valise was only the work of a short time, and then Mr. Dixon and the boy were prepared to start for

Mr. Dixon carried the gun and the boy lugged the valise containing clothes and birds. At the ferry slip at St. George, at the arrival and departure of every boat, there stands a State fish and game protector. Many persons don't know this, and there stands a State fish and game pro-tector. Many persons don't know this, and Mr. Dixon was one of those persons. Game Protector John W. Lisk was standing there when Mr. Dixon got off the train. He noticed the tall preacher walk-ing toward the boat, but would probably have let him go had not the colored boy attracted his attention. For no other reson than that the boy accompanied the man did he look again, and then it was that he saw that Rev. Mr. Dixon carried a gun partly concealed.

Lisk approached Mr. Dixon, touched him on the shoulder, and said, "Come with

"I guess you had better come along," said Lisk, who was getting a little tired. He caught Mr. Dixon by the coat, but the preacher, so Lisk says, broke away and ran for the boat. Lisk caught him before he reached the boat. Then the game protector draw his club and noked the preacher with drew his club and poked the preacher with

Two policemen who had seen the little scuffle, ran to Lisk's assistance, and Mr. Dixon gave in. He said he did not know the gentleman was an officer or he would not have resisted.

"I am a minister," said Mr. Dixon, "and I've got a meeting at my church to-night. Can't I fix this up with you?"

Officer Lisk said he did not care who he was, he would have to go along. The colored boy had to go along, too. The trio started for Justice Acker's office, in New Brighton, a distance of over a mile. While on their way. Mr. Divers pleaded with the on their way, Mr. Dixon pleaded with the officer to let him go, saying he was ignorant of the game laws. He didn't know that any bird except a quail was game, and for that reason he ought to be released.

Anxious to Know the Cost. Dixon repeatedly asked what the officer thought it would cost. He asked Lisk not to press the charge of resistance, as he was a minister, and Lisk softened and said he

Justice Acker was not in his office, so a carriage was called and the trio were driven to the justice's house. The carriage fare was $1. Mr. Dixon only had 75 cents, but he borrowed 25 cents from the colored boy.
Justice Acker returned to his office, and Mr. Dixon was arraigned.

When the valise was opened 31 song birds were found wrapped up in a paper with three sparrows. There were 24 robins, 3 thrushes, 3 sparrows and one yellow wren. Justice Acker read the law, and said he would be obliged to fine Mr. Dixon $5 for each bird and $10 for shooting on Staten Island without a license. Mr. Dixon pleaded hard to be let off, and he seemed to feel so bad that the Justice did not impose the $10 fine, and the costs, amounting to $2 50, were paid by Officer Lisk. Mr. Dixon did not have $155 with him, so he offered his check. After much consideration the Justice accepted the check.

Wants Some of His Money Back. Mr. Dixon wanted to know if there was no one higher in authority who might give him some of the money back. He was re-ferred to Edward P. Dodge, the Secretary of the Fish Commission. Mr. Dixon took his address and said he would call on Mr. Dodge. As he started away Mr. Dixon said: "Can't I take the birds with me, Lisk smiled and said he could, but if he was caught going on the boat with them he would surely get the dose repeated.

"Don't want them! Don't want them!" exclaimed Mr. Dixon. After Mr. Dixon had gone away the Justice happened to notice the paper wrapped around the birds. It was a sporting paper, and on the first page was a copy of the game laws.
