New Trial Asked for George Strasser, Convicted of Murder.

JUDGE EWING ON HUMANE AGENTS. Two Cleomargarine Dealers Lose Their Votes This Fall.

MARCHING CLUB DISASTER IN COURT

Attorneys W. A. Hudson and J. M. Friedman yesterday filed their reasons for asking for a new trial in the case of George Strasser, who was convicted of murder in the first degree for the killing of Joseph Brandl. They allege that he is not guilty of a higher degree of homicide than voluntary manslaughter at the most; that from the character of the testimony on the part of the Commonwealth the prisoner ought to have been acquitted. They also claimed the Court erred in overruling the offer of the prisoner to show the violent and vicious character of the deceased and the threats he made against the prisoner; that newly-discovered evidence shows testimony of the Commonwealth was false, and for a last reason, that the Commonwealth failed to call Henry Wenzell, an eye witness of the killing, who testified before the Coroner. Judge Kennedy directed the paper to be filed.

Before Judge Ewing J. K. Dain was tried on a charge of cruelty to animals. The case resulted in some pertinent remarks by the Court directed at the agent of the Humane Society. Dain was charged by W. J. Backhouse, agent of the Humane Society, with cruelty to horses at the Sewickley Dairy Farm in not feeding them enough, Judge Ewing's Caustic Criticism.

There was but little in the case, and Judge Ewing remarked that there were many of these so-called agents who are poor judges of law and justice, and go around seeking against whom they may bring charges in which there is neither law nor justice. The purpose of these societies is a good one, but some persons seem to enter them for the purpose of getting into other people's business, at least it seemed so to him from cases that had come before him. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and divided the costs between Dain and Agent Backhouse. Judge Ewing remarked that it was a just verdict. W. C. Staving and Albert Braun, dealer w. C. Staving and Albert Brain, dealers in the Allegheny market, were each fined $300 and sent ten days to jail for selling oleomargarine. The men, with others, were prosecuted by J. M. Anderson, the detective in the employ of Emil Winter, who is seeking to make the oleomargarine law obnoxious by enforcing it. Several days are they went into court and releaded police. ago they went into court and pleaded nolie contendere. The Court, as it has been doing. suspended sentence until the Supreme Court decides the cases now pending before it upon the men agreeing not to sell any more eleomargarine. The defendants promised to sell no more, and then, it is charged, returned to their stands and at once commenced seiling. The Court was informed of this and they were sent for yesterday and sentenced. The fine was the maximum and the imprisonment the minimum for a first offense. On the second offense they can be sent one year to prison.

SUING FOR THE PENALTY.

Oleomargarine Cases Argued Before the Supreme Court Justices.

In the Supreme Court yesterday arguments were heard in a number of cases. The cases of the Commonwealth for use of G. W. Russ against W. C. Staving, Charles E. Shirley and Roberts & Cook, appeals from the Common Pleas Courts, were heard. The suits were to recover the civil penalty for violating the oleomargarine laws. They were appealed and the constitutionality of the oleomargarine law attacked. Upon the the issue of these cases a number of criminal cases well depend. D. F. Patterson appeared for the appellants and Colonel A. Blakeley for the Commonwealth.

The other cases heard were: Henry Rea. Jr., vs V. Ganter, an action for rent; Morton Hunter vs C. A. Anderson, an action on a contract to sell property; J. A. & Sallie O. Phillips vs St. Clair Incline Company, a suit for damages for obstructing access to property; J. M. Shields et al vs T. D. Casey, an action on an agreement; John Elmendorf, trustee, vs George L Whitney, an action on a contract; appeal of J. G. Ralshouse from Orphans' Court, an action on an Orphans' Court sale; A. W. Halt-house vs. G. B. Rynd, a suit on an agree-
