

THE DUCHESS (Mrs. Hangerford)

Synopsis of previous chapters... Lord Gaston Vermer is a handsome, but unscrupulous member of society. He has tired of his young and beautiful wife... Rhoda is the little heiress... 'There is an end of grief and mirth. There is an end of all things born.'...

whispered to her that all is not well with her. 'Dear Lady Baring,' says she, and stops. She has come quite up to her hostess, and stood at her elbow for a full second (a long one)...

I WAS QUITE CHARMED WITH YOUR POSE

All the natural loveliness of her nature seems turned to gall. Vermer stands before her in the hall regards her curiously... 'I was quite charmed with your pose...' 'You are right when you call it a falsehood...'...

The beautiful story that presently she con- quered herself, Lady Caryfort hears the history of the night, and of many others. She says a good many things about Sir Gaston before it happens to her to remember... 'This is the secret of the secret.' 'I am thinking, I am thinking.'...

SECRET OF SERENITY. All Things Work Together for Good to the True Christian. THE PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION. Most of the Unhappiness of the World Comes from Wrong Thinking. WAITING UPON THE DIVINE WILL.

SECRET OF SERENITY. All Things Work Together for Good to the True Christian. THE PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION. Most of the Unhappiness of the World Comes from Wrong Thinking. WAITING UPON THE DIVINE WILL. Dwares and Giants. The Little Trees and the Big Wrestlers That One Sees in Japan. PINES TWO CENTURIES OF AGE. Rice the Food of the Athletes Who Sometimes Weigh 400 Pounds. HUNTING THE ORIENTAL CHIN DOG.