

ONE MORE WARSHIP.

The Formidable Cincinnati Weds the Blue Waters at Brooklyn

ON A DAMP, DISAGREEABLE DAY.

Christened by the Daughter of the Big Namesake City's Mayor.

NEW KINKS IN THE LATEST CRUISER

BROOKLYN NAVY YARD, Nov. 10.—Just why, of all days in the year, after a long spell of blue skies, the rain should come down and cold northwest winds should whistle about the Navy Yard when the launching of the new United States cruiser Cincinnati was to take place, naval officers want the Agricultural Department to explain. Every one, from Commodore Henry Erben, commander of the yard, down to the humblest marine, was disappointed when he turned out this morning. But all hands made the best of the conditions and began giving the cruiser her final touches.

The new cruiser, from stem to stern, was decorated with flags. The unusual number of warships in the basin made the scene additionally attractive. The list included the new steamers Philadelphia and Atlanta, the double-turreted monitor Miantonomoh, the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, the dispatch vessel Dolphin, the training ship Portsmouth and the Giovanni Bausan, the Italian cruiser, which represented Italy in the late Columbus fete in New York. The yard was open freely to the public, an inclosure of about 30 feet around the cruiser being roped off.

Miss Mosby Breaks the Bottle. The launching was in charge of Naval Constructor F. L. Fernald. The spectators made up in enthusiasm what they lacked in numbers. Despite the unfavorable weather there were many ladies present. Secretary of the Navy Benjamin F. Tracy arrived at the yard at noon, and Mayor Mosby, of Cincinnati, and his daughter, Miss Stella Mosby, came at the same hour. Soon after 2:11 P. M. the word was given by the Secretary of the Navy, the side-piece was cut and the handsome cruiser commenced to move. Miss Mosby, with a bottle of wine wrapped in a miniature flag in her right hand, stepped up, and, uttering the words appropriate to the occasion, gracefully smashed the bottle on the vessel's steel bow. The vessel slid down the ways with increasing momentum, while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner." She shot out into the stream almost as far as the old Vermont, which lay near the Cobdock. She was then taken in charge by the navy yard tug and towed back to the wharf.

A Description of the Cruiser. The Cincinnati is a twin-screw steel cruiser of 1,333 tons displacement, with heavy protective deck, great speed and heavy batteries of rapid-fire guns. She is 300 feet long, 42 feet beam, draws 18 feet of water and has a speed of 19 knots an hour. A coal-bunker is worked along in the wake of the water-line next the outside plating in the coal bunker on the slopes of the protective deck. This will be filled with cellulose and the purpose is to seal hermetically against the influx of water any shot hole that might otherwise sink the ship. The engines are triple expansion vertical, invested and direct-acting. The collective horse power is 10,000 at 104 revolutions per minute. The rig is that of a two-masted schooner, spreading 2,810 square feet of sail. The foremast has a barbettes gallery for machine guns just below the top. The boats are all stowed on board, out of line of the fire of the guns, on skid beams. The appearance of the vessel is particularly attractive. The amount appropriated for this vessel was $1,100,000.

ALL THE SAME, ALWAYS.
