

CAUGHT IN COLUMBUS.

Kitty Bryan, Who Jumped Bail to Escape Trial for Forgery,

IN THE TOILS AGAIN FOR STEALING

She Has Many Aliases, a Fad Felice Record and a Homely Face.

FORGED HER OWN MOTHER'S SIGNATURE

Florence Bryan, better known in this city as Kitty McNamara, was arrested a few days ago at Columbus, O., and is now in jail there awaiting trial on two charges of larceny. Mrs. Bryan will be remembered as the young woman who, being arrested here a year ago for forging her mother's name to a mortgage, was released on $1,000 bail until the case should come up for trial, and skipped the town. The bail bond was furnished by Miss Besendorf, or Hutchinson, now Mrs. McDonald, who was compelled to forfeit the money. Consequently Mrs. Bryan is as badly wanted in this city as at Columbus.

Before her marriage she had a number of aliases, being known as Kate McCarthy, alias McCarney, alias Edmundson. She was born in Ireland, her parents coming to this country when she was a child. Though decidedly homely of face her manner was attractive, and she possessed accomplishments by which she always managed to attract plenty of admirers. She is now only 28 years old and considered a bright and dangerous woman.

Caught With Purse and Money.
The first time she went on the police records, except as the inmate of a downtown establishment, was in 1887. A number of ladies had been robbed in the parlors of several of the leading hotels, but the police were unable to locate the thieves. Finally one afternoon a Philadelphia woman who was a guest at the St. James lost her purse, containing over $100, in the hotel parlor. Kitty McNamara had strolled into the place during the afternoon and the purse was not missed until after she left.

The police as soon as they heard a description of her caused her arrest. She was arrested and thoroughly searched at headquarters, but the money was not found. On being released she went home, packed her grip and was just about to take a train for Philadelphia when Sheriff Ross, who had been following, arrested her. She was again taken to headquarters and searched, the purse and money being found upon her. The police believed her guilty of the other robberies, but were unable to prove any specific fact and set her off with a year's sentence to the workhouse.

Forged Her Mother's Name.
Some time after her release she married one of her admirers and became Mrs. Bryan. She was known then as Florence Fassett. The police heard nothing of her again until the torney charge. Her mother had been left some property by her husband, and the daughter, it is alleged, forged the old lady's name to a mortgage against the property and sold it to Louis Cella, the well-known bookless man, for $200. When the case became public through Mrs. Bryan's arrest Mrs. Besendorf, hoping to reform her and help her out of the difficulty, furnished the bail bond.

Soon after her release the woman disappeared, and although efforts were made to find her, she was not heard of until September 10th. A letter was received yesterday morning from Sheriff Ross of Columbus. A photograph was inclosed, showing beyond doubt it was the same person, though thinner and somewhat homelier than when she left this city. There are two charges of larceny against her at Columbus, but no details were given. As soon as the Ohio authorities are through with her Mrs. Bryan will be brought back to this city for trial.

ANY GARMENT ILLUSTRATED IN THIS ANNOUNCEMENT GOES FOR $10.

Look at them! Aren't they beauties? Some are worth $18; some, $17; some, $16; none less than $15. All are fresh and new, and represent the most desirable styles of the season. We could easily sell them at regular prices, if we but had the necessary room to display them and wait for the ordinary course of business. But we haven't. Waiting is out of the question. You know the reason. Everybody knows it. It's because the failure of our contractor to complete our large new addition on October 15 (the date agreed upon) leaves us with an enormous stock without sufficient room to place it on sale. Our present Cloak Department, although the largest in town, isn't half big enough to hold the entire stock, and thousands of garments had to be sent to the reserve stock rooms, where they are piled up ceiling high. But they can't remain here long. They must be taken to the salesrooms and offered to our customers. This, however, can't be done until we have made the necessary room, and it is for the express purpose of making this that we will, for the balance of this week, offer choice from several thousand regular $18, $17, $16 and $15 garments FOR $10. The garments illustrated in this advertisement only represent a small number of the styles embraced in this sale, but they will suffice to give you a fair idea of the magnitude of this offering.
