That was nearly a month ago. They told me they had special men at work looking for violators of the order, would prosecute every one of them, and that there would be little difficulty in stopping the sale of liquor.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

The Press Club Benefit Will Not Be Equaled in a Decade. The final arrangements for the Press Club

benefit have been completed. It is now a settled fact that it will be the finest ever given in this city. The house will be handsomely decorated with plants and floral designs from A. M. & J. B. Murdoch and Robert C. Patterson. Each lady present will be presented with a bouquet. A novel feature of the entertainment will be the taking of a picture of the audience by flash light. E. S. He found himself on the right track when he had taken half a bottle of Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and the headache had disappeared and has not returned. J. R. this fact, his sentiments have not changed since then unless it be in the direction of a more rigid exclusion of immigrants than he then favored. We may adopt short-hour laws in every State, as well as the nation; we may fix wage scales throughout the land; we may enact protective tariffs until the articles of foreign manufacture are prohibited, but while the tide of immigration flows on in an uninterrupted stream there will be no dependence upon short-hour laws; no reliance on wage scales, and there can be no protection to American labor that will keep the status of American workingmen higher than his brother who lives under the weight of centuries of monarchiel misrule. Your General Master Workman has no hesitation in saying that he favors the total exclusion of all immigrants who are not self-sustaining on landing in this country, he would fix a term of years—ten would be long enough—during which no immigrant should be permitted to land with a view of remaining, unless he could prove that he had sufficient means to sustain himself and those depending on him for one year.

In the second se

Rights of Native Citizens in Danger. It may sound exceedingly well to assert that we have room for all the world; that it would be un-American, that it would be un-Christian, to debar others from the benefits we enjoy. There is less danger of debarring them from these benefits than that there is that they will take the enjoyments from all that they will take the enjoyments from all of us.

I have repeatedly said that it is not to the interest of the immigrant or those who preceded him, to land him here without money, without triends and without a knowledge of the conditions which he must face in his struggle for bread. It is not because he cannot earn a livelihood in his own land that the foreigner comes here. It is because the institutions of greed of older growth have taken deeper root. The rapacity of employers of labor, the greed of the owners of steamships and the moral cowardice of our public men have prevented the enactment of legislation which would have long since relieved the strain. We can better afford to aid the European in battling down the institutions which crush him at home than to continue a system which will inevitably reduce our own workmen to a worse condition than those now experienced abroad by

than those now experienced abroad by those who are looking to this land for relief.

What will you do on the immigration question, on strikes and lockouts? During the last six months the people of this land have witnessed such attempts at making the power of aggregated wealth supreme as were never dreamed of before.

This Year's Lost Labor Battles. Whether it be at Cœur d'Alene, at Home stead, at Buffalo or in Tennessee, the in-stinct which guided the ranacious hand was the same. The underground wire which detected the attack ran to the same center from all of these places. Centralized wealth drew the scattering fire of dividend labor, and as a natural result, labor lost in each battle. If the lessons are carefully taken to heart, the sacrifices may not be in vain.

The campaign which just closed witnessed a very interesting, if not intelligent, discussion of the tariff; but there is more of a revenue illegally drawn from the mekkets of a very interesting, if not intelligent, discussion of the tariff; but there is more of a revenue illegally drawn from the pockets of merchauts, manufacturers and workmen in one moth of the year by the railroads and telegraphs than we pay in tariffs for a year. These and all other questions connected with them must occupy the attention of industrial organizations of the future, and the strike of the future must be a strike for the rule of the people. We can decry politicans we please, but we must be politicians or the slaves of politicians. We may shirk our responsibilities as citizens, but we are only piling high the wrath which follows neglect of duty. In a word, we must be law-makers or law-breakers.

When we, in the last extremity, are driven close to the wall and deprived of rights and privilege, it is done through the law. If the law is obscure or defective, a hireling Judge can always be found to construe in avor of the wealthy as against the boor. If every citizen of Pennsylvania understood and knew his rights; if he performed his duty under the law, intelligently and as he ought, no Judge would dare to charge treason recognition.

marked the shifting progress of the past. These lines must divert from and center at the ballot box-not as slaves to party, bent on obeying the will of a boss or master, but as freemen who value freedom and would maintain it should we vote. The speaker advocated affiliation with the Farmers' Alliances and other similar or-ganizations; recommended the organization of social or beneficial features of the order, and, in conclusion, said that he knew of nothing he had done during the year, that he would not do over again under similar circumstances. The report of the General Executive Board was then read, the chief points of which were as follows: The committee approves the plan, adopted last year, of requiring each member to pay 5 cents to a fund for the payment of railway expenses of delegates. Much space is devoted to the review of the trouble with the combine of clothing manufacturers at Rochester, N. Y. Troubles With World's Fair Managers. The troubles between the Knights of Labor and the World's Fair were given at great length, together with the efforts made by the Knights to settle the difficulty. It was stated that all local assemblies were, by a circular emanating from the board, urged to press upon their members in Congress that no money should be appropriated for the Exposition until the labor question was settled. The report then continues:

The local assemblies promptly acted, with the result that the proposition to appropri-ate $5,000.000 was voted down. Another con-ference between the board and the Expo-sition was then held, with the result that a satisfactory settlement was secured and an agreement entered into which, it is believed, will prevent further trouble. The House and Senate conference committees were then told that all difficulties were settled and that the opposition to an appropri-Reasona ble building and loan associations were recommended to workingmen. The suggestion is made that the order might decide upon the organization of a "Home-stead Association," provided there are no speculative features connected therewith.

The Matter of Employer's Liability. Another paragraph of the report snoke of the laws regarding employer's liability in case of accident to employes. It was stated that hardly any of these were as fair to the employes as to the employers, but that even in States where the lass were nearest to making just compensation for injuries, the laws are practically inoperative, as workingmen did not have the means to carry their cases to court, and were, therefore, compelled to accept any proposition for settlement, no matter how flagrantly unjust. The recommendation is made that the order keep on trying for the enactment of such laws, but it is stated that a far better plan would be the establishment of a protective insurance society or the assistance of the establishment of such laws whereby means may be provided members to prose cute careless or negligent employers. Secretary-Treasurer Hare reported that, including the balance on hand at the beginning of the fiscal year, July 1, 1891, the total receipts have been $60,614 19, and the total expenditures, $59,748 82, leaving a balance on hand July 1, 1892, o: $865 37. The address and reports were referred to the Committee on Distribution, and this committee will send to the various standing mittees such parts of them as come within their province to report upon.

There are from 12 to 15 cars of oysters come into the city every morning on the oyster ex-press, but it is expected that this will be increased several days before Thanksgiving to 20 or 25 cars. She came down and attempted to stop the men, but she says they forced open the door leading from the hall to the kitchen, and, after knocking her down, seized a baking of bread which was on a chair in front of the stove, and, throwing it on a table in a corner, they threw the chair out of the window. This was more than any good housewife could be expected to stand, and she attacked them with so much determination that she had one of them completely at her

He Has Met With Foul Play-He Is Known All Over the City. Conrad Werlein, aged 63 years and a paralvtic, wandered from his home, No. 7 Gist street, eight weeks ago and has not been heard of since. He has a wife, a grown son and a daughter. They have been searching everywhere they could think he might be to find him, but without success. They are now fearful he has in some way met death. The police were notified some time ago, but have not heard of the old Mr. Werlein was very lame, walking with great difficulty, assisted by a cane. SELECTING A LOCATION. The New York University Offers Induce ments to the Catholic Summer School. Father M. M. Sheedy left for New York last night to attend an important meeting of the managers of the Catholic summer school. It is outlined on the Chautauqua plan, and the main thing to be settled now is its location. The object is to select a pleasant place that possesses the advantage of a summer resort. The regents of the New York State University have offered to incorporate the school and confer its degrees upon graduates, provided they select a place in New York State. Father Sheedy was inclined to think that the proposition would be accepted. The managers will confer with the archbishops, who meet to-morrow, before giving their decision.

Another Serious Wreck. Another collision occurred on the Fort Wayne road early yesterday morning. The tast mail and express ran into a freight on the grade at Nevada, O., seriously injuring A. Krutch, the front brakeman of the freight, and Engineer Purnell, of the express. An unknown tramp was killed. A number of oysters were scattered over the track, and the farmers in the neighborhood had a feast. The tracks were blockaded for several hours and all trains were delayed.

Manufacturers Decide to Curtail the Production-The Order for the 11 Factories in the Country Will Go Into Effect January 1. The plate glass manufacturers of the United States finished an important meeting at the Anderson yesterday. They were in session two days. There are seven companies in the country, operating 11 factors, and all were represented. The object was to curtail the production within the limits of the demand.

A. U. Howard, President of the Howard Plate Glass Company, was appointed to furnish information to the reporters. Mr.
Howard said:

'Our business has been seriously affected by everyreduction and something must be by overproduction and something must be done to save it. With this end in view the done to save it. With this end in view the manufacturers got together to discuss the situation and we have unanimously determined to cut down the production on a pro rata basis in proportion to the capacity of each lactory. A committee has been appointed, with a representative from each plant, and they will agree on the sacrifice that everybody must make. A number of new plants have been built in recent years, and the result is that the supply exceeds the demand. A few statistics will explain where we stand.

"In 1891 the consumption of plate glass in the United States was 13,934,231 feet.

in the United States was 13,934,231 feet. This includes the imports amounting to 3,611,000. For the 10 months of 1892 and for the year the consumption, based on a percentage of increase for the two remaining months, is over 15,000,000 feet, inclusive of the imports, 2,225,000. The total capacity of the factories in the country is 22,600,000 feet per year. To this amount must be added the imports of about 1,400,000 feet. I need not say that we are rapidly cutting off the importations, and the tariff on our product has been the same for 30 years. Putting the consumption this year at 15,000,000 and next season at 16,500,000 feet, it is apparent that the visible supply of 24,000,000 feet yearly won't be used up. This is why curtailment is necessary, and the order for each factory will go into effect January 1." It was sumored on the streets that the plate glass men intended to consolidate their interests, but this was denied.

OPEN TO GRAVE DOUBT. The Amalgamated Association Discredit the Reported Utterances of Powderly.

No importance is attached by the Amalgamated Association to the reported utterances of Grand Master Workmen Powderly who, it is said, asserted that the Knights of Labor had nothing to with the Homestead fight. Trustee Price, of the association, said yesterday: "That Mr. Powderly made use of such an expression is open to grave doubt. Ever since the inauguration of the trouble at Homestead the Knights have been prominent as our best friends.

"Master Workmen Dempsey, of D. A.
No. 3, Knights of Labor, was indefatigable in his efforts to support the cause of the locked-out men. The very motto of the Knights, 'An injury to one is the concern of all,' would be a flat contradiction to any other than the sympathetic course which the members of that organization have uniformly pursued in connection with have uniformly pursued in connection with the Homestead men.

to-day. A congregation of striking miners around the depot after their arrival is said to have so terrified the negroes that they arranged to take the next train out of the place, which they did.

Old Prices Reaffirmed. The wrought iron pipe manufacturers held their monthly meeting at the Duquesne yesterday. Since the death of Captain Murdock, the duties of secretary have devolved upon Joseph Brown, of Allegheny. About 25 firms were represented. The trade is very dull owing to overproduction, and present prices were reaffirmed.

SHUT DOWN FOR REPAIRS. Col. Conger Denies That the American Tin Plate Plant Is Closed. Colonel A. L. Conger, President of the Diamond Plate Glass Company and the American tin plate concern at Ellwood, returned to his home in Akron last evening. When the tin plate factory shut down after the election, it was pointed to as the first plant to feel the effects of Cleveland's victory. The Colonel laughed at the report and says they stopped to make needed re-pairs. He said he wasn't ready to quit the business.

"The Democratic success," he continued, "is due to the dissatisfaction of the working people. They wanted a change. The pros-perity of the country during the next four years depends on what the Democratic policy will be. If they pass a free trade act it will bring our manufacturers into direct competition with the foreigners, and we will have to do the best we can. At least one-third of our industries would suffer greatly, if not be pushed to the wall."

THEY KEEP MOVING AHEAD!

PITTSBURG'S FIRST FAMILIES Well Represented at a Popular Charitable Gathering

TO AID ST. PAUL'S ORPHAN ASYLUM Socially and financially a success.

This was the universal verdict of the 2,500 people who attended the twelfth an nual tea party for the benefit of St. Paul's Orphan Asylum in Lafayette Hall last night. The entire evening was a continual round of enjoyment for the guests, among whom were many of the first families of the two cities. Everything went smoothly, and it is estimated that the net receipts will reach $5,000.

It was a few minutes before 6 o'clock, the time set for the beginning of the entertainment, when the carriages containing the first arrivals drew up in front of the Fourth avenue entrance. At 6:30 o'clock fully 500 people had made their appearance and were seated at the supper table in the annex.

After satisfying their appetites with the dainty repast the guests repaired to the hall proper on the floor above where Prof. Gernert's orchestra rendered some of the latest selections in classical music. According to the programme of the Arrangement Committee supper was to be served until midnight, but most everyone had arrived before that time.

The Great Crowd Present. At 10:30 o'clock 2,000 guests were assembled in the hall and several hundred were being entertained in the annex below. The committee would scarcely have known where to put the people if a number had was, the whole building was crowded almost to its capacity, and the hallways offered a convenient place for many people bent upon having a good time. It was decided that there should be a grand march at 11:30 o'clock, but it was near midnight when the ladies and gentlemen took their places to take part in the procession.

The supper room contained six tables, all of which were tastefully arrayed. To each table were assigned three ladies of the committee, and these were assisted by numer-ous aids. The room from ceiling to floor was beautifully decorated with evergreen and bunting of different colors, presenting a most harmonious contrast to the bright gas light which burned from a hundred jets. The hall proper was similarly arranged.

The same style of decorations was used.
The only difference in the two rooms was that in the hall there were two booths erected—one for the sale of flowers and the other for the distribution of lemonade and other palatable drinks. These booths were covered with white and lemon-colored cretonne here and there, held in place by bunches of smilax.

Dancing After Midnight. Shortly after 12 o'clock, when most of the guests had gone to their homes, a dance was inaugurated for the benefit of the young tolks. This amusement probably lasted a little over an hour, when it was announced that the hall would be closed. Among some force of colored men from Pittsburg was of the people present last evening were: Bishop Phelan, Fathers McDermott, Con-way, O'Neil, Canevin and Cochran, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. The Case of James P. Quinn Occupied the Attention of the Commissioner Yesterday-Expert Testimony on the Value of Property. James P. Quinn's appeal occupied nearly all of yesterday in the tax hearings before Commissioner Beal. Quinn's case was taken up Tuesday, but was not finished until last evening. A number of real estate men testified to the value of Quinn's property at Fifth avenue and Grant street. It was assessed on a valuation of $115,000. There was a big difference in the estimates.

C. H. Love fixed the value of the Fifth avenue frontage at $1,250 a foot and the Grant street lots at from $550 to $700, making the total valuation $77,800. Mr. Love had sold the Park property, diagonally across the street, at $1,500 a foot several years ago, but it was more valuable than Quian's because it was west of Grant street. Ouign's because it was west of Grant street. Two other real estate men supported Mr. Love's figures, but the Fifth ward assessors fixed the value considerably below his estimate. J. D. Coyle thought it worth from $1,200 to $1,500 for Fifth avenue frontage. He said the Carnegies had paid $2,000 a foot for the lots on which they are erecting their new office block. Like the others Mr.

Coyle said lots below Grant street were considerably more valuable than above. None of the witnesses explained why this difference existed. Mr. Quinn testified he had bought some of the property 20 years ago and the balance 11 years ago. His estimate of the value was only $70,000, and he said there had been no increase in the value in the part that the part this former at the late. had been no increase in the value in the past three years. His figures on the lots were nearly $8,000 higher than he had sworn to be their value before the assessors at the time of the assessment, but he said he had based his first figures on the assessments of other property. The City Attorney endeavored to persuade Mr. Quinn to state how much he would take for his property. A dozen questions were asked on this erty. A dozen questions were asked on this point, but he refused to fix a price, and finally declined to answer at all. The next case was that of Margaret L. Moody, whose property on Liberty street, between Tenth street and Garrison alley, is assessed on a valuation of $41,625. The county assessment was only $29,250. John W. Herron, of William A. Herron & Sons, testified that the property in the vicinity was worth more than the county figures, and some of it had sold for a sum equal to that objected to. It has steadily increased in late years. A number of other wit-nesses declined to place a positive value on the property.

This closed the day. The Seventh,
Eleventh and Fourteenth ward appeals will be taken up to-day. A SMALL BOY AND A MATCH.
