

A TOUCHING TRAGEDY.

After Hoping Against Hope an Italian Seeks Rest in the Grave.

HE KILLS HIS MOTHERLESS BAIKNS

And Lives Long Enough to Know That They Are Beyond Recall.

FROM AFFLUENCE TO A STREET LIFE

BOSTON, Nov. 16.—Giuseppe Patone, an Italian, last night cut the throats of his two children, aged 6 and 11, and then cut his own.

Patone, who is about 30 years old, made a miserable living by selling chestnuts on the street, and even this bare pittance had lately been cut off by sickness.

Patone, who is about 30 years old, made a miserable living by selling chestnuts on the street, and even this bare pittance had lately been cut off by sickness.

November 10—Until to-day I delayed to kill my children. Now I can do so no more. It is now five months and 30 days since my wife died, who was my peace and my comfort, and who died loving her children and her husband.

My children were born with all the comforts of life, and are of good family, and are not used to living on the streets like those born in misery.

The Smead system of warming, ventilation and dry closets was adopted on Saturday last by the Battle Creek School Board for several buildings.
