A Thousand Homestead Strikers Apply for Their Old Positions.

MANAGER SCHWAB'S LIST

Plays an Important Part in the Reinstatement of Applicants.

AMALGAMATED MEN GO BACK.

Perough Merchants Happy in the Prespect of Renewed Business.

The mechanics and laborers employed in the Homestead mill before the strike held a meeting yesterday to receive the report of the committee which conferred with the Amalgamated Association in the afternoon of the day before. The report was far from satisfactory, and a vote was taken as to whether they should obey the mandate of the Amalgamated men and still hold out or whether they should return to work. It was almost unanimously decided to apply for work and accept the best terms they could obtain from the company irre spective of the Amalgamated Association.

The meeting was no sooner adjourned than a rush began for the company's office. The action of the meeting had been auticipated by a great number, who, from the time the whistle blew in the morning, had been waiting and watching about the offices until Superintendent Schwab was at liberty to receive them. Impatiently they tramped up and down the boardwalk and around the buildings, anxious to know if they would be able to getspositions in the mill. When the door was opened there was a grand rush; every person endeavored to enter first, realizing the truth of the old proverb about the early bird and the worm. Reading the Book of Fate.

Superintendent Schwab sat at a desk in his private office with a large indexed book in front of him. This was a book of fate for a great number of the men who applied for positions during the day, for it contained the names of every person the Carnegie Company would refuse to employ. From 150 to 200 names were written on its pages. The opening of the book meant a great deal to the men, who with anxious faces looked at it while their cases were being considered. But that look quickly passed away when the deputy who was on duty in the room pronounced the sesame, "Go in and get a pass."

A great number thought their troubles were over when they passed this Rubicon, but they found it was only the beginning. After getting the passes they were directed to the department designated on the bit of paper where they were brought before the foremen. The foreman, if he thought them proper men for the work, put them on, providing there were any vacancies. Not a few of the men came out of the mill with heavy hearts, their positions being taken and nothing being offered to them. Many who have held good positions in the works when they found this out hired themselves as laborers rather than be out of employ-

Schwab, by his genial manner, won the hearts of all the men who suplied to him. In a happy way he questioned the men, and every now and then preached a little sermon from the text of experience to some who had been unusually active in the strike. Everything was taken goodnaturedly by the workmen. The Superintendent questioned each man, asking him his name, at what he had worked, and who was his foreman. Then, it his name did not appear on the black list, he was passed on to the deputy sheriff, who directed him where to get his pass.

Laborers were passed on without ques-tion, heaters and helpers with the mechanics were questioned more or less. The office force and recorders of the mills did not seem to have much chance and were told their positions were filled. Several small office boys applied to be reinstated, but were informed there was nothing for them to do. Bricklayers were also refused employment, the company having more now than they Mr. Schwab spoke to the lucky men in such a pleasant way that they went out feeling that they had at least been refused politely. He had nothing to say to most of the blacklisted men, but some he told to call around Monday, as he wanted to talk to them.

Received a Polite Dismissal.

"I am very sorry," was Mr. Schwab's way of refusing a man a pass to see about employment, "but we could not employ you under any circumstances." Then again: "Your name is on our list here and you cannot work for us again." One of the st prominent foremen applied during the afternoon to be reinstated. Superintendent Schwab dismissed him with: sorry, but foremen we cannot trust in times mble we cannot trust in times of peace; so I will have to refuse you employment." Of the thousand men who applied for work yesterday the majority were laborers echanics, but members of the Amal gamated Association were far from not havng any representation in the line. It might be said that as a fair average about one in every five or ten appli-cants was a member of the Amalgamated association. The officers of the association were desirous of obtaining the names of the men who bolted, and have a list of some 30 which will be presented at the meeting of the Advisory Board. The Amalgamated people appreciate that the strike has been lost, but do not think anything could be gained by declaring the mill open.

As Viewed by an Amalgamated Man. In speaking of the matter George Ryland said: "It was our own men who beat us. The very men who were benefited by this ciation, who never had the brains or perseverance to better themselves, are the ones who worked right against us. Now, as far as I am concerned, I was not affected by the scale, but I was fighting a good fight for principle, and some of the very men con-cerned in this dispute were the first to go back. I don't think the strike en led as it should. I think there are many other ways in which it could have been brought to a close that would have been much more satisfactory, but the matter is ended now and there is no use of discussing it."

What course will the Amalgamated men what course with the reasonable then pursue now," was asked.
"Vell, there is only one thing for them to do." Mr. Ryland replied, "and that is get positions elsewhere. There is no doubt that a good number of us could not get positions in the works if we wished, but if were applying to any firm for a situation reference I would give would be the Camegie Steel Company. you think the Amalgamated Associatic will declare the strike off?" the rehat is a matter for the people here in to decide," Mr. Ryland said. "I can-ell what they will do about it."

Pleased With the State of Affairs. The deputy aberiffs in Homestead are quite jubilant over the turn affairs have taken as they think they will be relieved from duty. The duty in Homestead has been none too pleasant for the men. For the past few months merchants have been buying in small lots, but many heavy holiday orders have been sent out in the past few days. The non-union men are commencing to go into the borough to deal, and the merchants figure that there will always be as many men in the mill as heretofore, whether union or non-union. Nearly every day families of non-unionists are arriving. Homestead has a larger population now than ever it had before, but it is bound to resume its normal condition, as the mill gives employment to only a certain number of men. Several real estate deals have been made in the past few weeks.

FROM THE COMPANY'S SIDE.

Secretary Lovejoy Expresses Himself as Satisfied With the Way Things Are Going at Homestead-Some Positions Yet Open for the Old Men.

The news of the break at the Homestead mills by the mechanics and laborers was pleasantly received at the Carnegie office on Fifth avenue. Secretary Lovejoy was in a very amiable mood last evening, and seemed WHAT THE COMPANY OFFICIALS SAY as though a great load had been litted from | which included many distinguished citimoney and would keep up the fight. He said the kindliest feelings were telt toward the mechanics and laborers, who had held out so loyally so long, but at the last moment had gone back to work. He said the time was too short yet to tell whether the present strike would have a perment or tamporary affect on the oversalization. temporary effect on the organization.

THE PRESS CLUB BENEFIT.

A Delightful Entertainment to Which Many Artists Contributed.

The Press Club benefit at the Duquesne Theater yesterday afternoon was a tremendous success in every way. The immense programme was arranged as follows: Third act of "The Bandit King;" Hamilton and Glynn, musical artists; Leonzo Bros., in "Brother Against Brother;" Frye and Hamilton, specialty artists; "Under the Lyon's Paw;" Miss Helen Russell, recitation; Mr. Willard, in second act of "The Middleman;" Miss Alice Raymond, cornet virtuoso; "Out of the Storm;" Mr. James Reilly in first act "A German Soldier;" Sam Devere's Own Company.

Every place of amusement in the two cities was represented in the five hours' en-tertainment, and a very fine andience, his mind with the end of the strike in sight. "The company," he began, "is naturally pleased with the news from Homestead this afternoon.' "Are there many positions yet to be filled in the Homestead mills?" "There are still some, but how many I do not know, as the company has not been keeping track of vacancies for the past six weeks. But the men will have to take their chances in getting their places."

"How about the Lawrenceville mills?"

"They are filled and I think few men could be accommodated." "In what department has the greatest difficulty been experienced with the new men?"

"The open-hearth and Bessemer at Homestead. The Lawrenceville mills were easy to fill. The lack of laborers has caused a great deal of trouble, and the breaking away of the laborers will put us in good trim, even should we take back none of the others. The Huns and Slavs make our best laborers, and we have accordingly desired their help. There are about 150 men who

LAWRENCEVILLE STRIKERS.

They Struck Through Sympathy for the Homestead Locked-Out Men and Have Remained Firm -Think the Strike Will Not Be Declared Off Officially.

The strikers at the Lawrenceville mills of the Carnegie Steel Company held their usual meeting at their headquarters yesterday morning. The reports of disaffection in the ranks of the locked-out men at Homestead were looked upon with apprehension. It was decided to stand out and let the men at Homestead take initiative in any movement the looking to declaring the strike off. About 350 men, members of the Amalgamated Association, are still out at these mills. Since the strike was declared less than half a dozen men have deserted the ranks and returned to work. The laborers and me chanics were never really out, and went back as soon as men could be procured to take the more responsible positions held by Amalgamated steel workers. As the work is not very complicated there was no great difficulty in securing men, and these mills were in full operation sooner than any other of the various Carnegie plants.

Until yesterday, the members of the Amalgamated Association at Lawrenceville most emphatically said they would not rework. But a change was ther noticed, and they not only talked more freely, but in a less determined manner. They were inclined to acknowledge that the strikers were losing ground, but still main-tained that the Amalgamated Association had not or would not officially declare the strike off.

One of the strikers, as spokesman for s party, was talked to yesterday. On being asked what would be done next, he said: "I don't think the association will ever declare the strike off. Things will simply run along and the men grad-ually drift to other places for work. The mills are full here and there is no other course left. We think the mechanics and aborers at Homestead held out loyally and have not a word to sav against them. They could not be blamed for returning as they did. The Amalgamated Association will go on as in the past, and with these men at work, the burden will be much lighter and our members can be cared for better, fo the strikers who were not members of the association received the same benefits as those who were. The Amalgamated Asso-ciation has withstood strikes before and will live after this one is over."

TOO SOON TO TALK YET.

The Officials of the Amalgamated Associa tion Have Little to Say.

The officials of the Amalgamated Association would say little on the Homestead strike last night. Ex-President William Weihe had left for Youngstown, O., where he will address the National Union of Iron and Steel Workers to-day. This is a new organization and it is the intention to tre to unite it with the Amalgamated Associa tion, and thus make the association so much stronger. President Garland will also be present. Secretary Kilgallon said he did not care to express an opinion as to the result of the breaking away of the mechanics and labor-ers. He said the association still had zens, enjoyed everything very much. It would be invidious to point out the choicest morsels in a feast so generously provided. Everybody was at his or her best, and the result was delightful. Baskets and bouquets of flowers were provided f or every actress. Features requiring special notice were the efficient stage management of Mr. Wise, of the "Gloriana" Company; the promptness with which the actors and scenery were transported by the Pittsburg Transfer Company; the beauty of the decorations by J. R. & A. Murdoch, and the splendid souvenir programme which was donated by the Percy F. Smith Printing and Lithographing Company.

have been received by the Postoffice Department from the postal authorities of several countries of Europe that letters from the United States addressed to those countries are received in very bad condition, owing to the very poor quality of cheap envelopes used. Persons sending letters to foreign countries should, therefore, be careful to use no envelopes except those of good quality made of strong paper which will not become worn or broken in transit, otherwise the contents may fall out and be lost.

ATTRACTED BY LOUD SCREAMS.

Two Policemen Enter a House and Prob-· ably Prevent Murder.

Loud screams and cries of a little girl in distress yesterday attracted two policemen to the house of J. G. Cowley at Forty-ninth street and the Allegheny Valley Railroad. The inside of the house looked as if a cyclone had struck it. Pieces of furniture and broken fragments of glass were scattered everywhere. Mrs. Cowley explained that it was the work of her husband, who had come home drunk, and after trying to wreck the household goods had beaten all the members of the family. Cowley, who was choking his little niece when the oficers entered, was arrested.

An Ex-Officer in Trouble.

Ex-Officer John Coslett was arrested at a second avenue boarding house yesterday morning by Captain Whitehouse. Wednesday night Coslett entered the Elba Iron Works and attacked the special officer knocking him down and, it is alleged, trie to shoot him. Manager Everson made in-formation against him before Alderman Gripp for aggravated assault and battery. He was held in $1,500 bail for court.

Two Men Badly Burned.

A gasoline pipe exploded in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards at Seventeenth street yesterday afternoon, and Edward Culhane and James McCall were badly burned, The accident was due to some overflow of easoline.

Clerks Badly Frightened. Suffering from delirium tremens Jack Bucher ran into O'Brien's store on Federal street, Allegheny, yesterday and nearly frightened the clerks into spasms by his strange actions. Bucher was arrested.

Suits Are Growing Out of the Proposed Brewery Combine.

AN AGENT'S POWER QUESTIONED.

The Western Butter Company in Court in a Bill of Iquity.

GENERAL NEWS OF THE COUNTY COURTS

In the United States Circuit Court the case of D. Lutz & Sons, the Allegheny brewers, against George Crawford, of New York, is on trial. The case is an action to recover $100,000 forfeit for the alleged noncompliance with the terms of an agreement de by Crawford to purchase the plaintiffs' brewery. Crawford, it is stated, was the American agent for the famous English syndicate, which, it was reported, was to buy up all the breweries in the United States. The plaintiffs state that Crawford secured an option on their brewery for $1,275,000. The terms of the option were that if either party violated the agreement there was to be a for either of $190,000. The defendant's agent, B. A. Elliott, it is asserted, accepted the option and afterward refused to carry it out or take the property on their tender of the tide.

Crawford contends that Elliott was unau-Crawford contends that Elliott was unauthorized by him to accept the property under the terms of the option and that the terms were not, therefore, binding on him. The plaintiffs asserted that Crawford introduced Mr. Elliott as his representative, who would act for him during his absence abroad. A note from Elliott stating they avalled themselves of the option was put in evidence. evidence.

EPPS'S GOCOA.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and natrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocca, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to discasse. Hundreds of subtle maiadies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a tatut shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a property nourished frame." """ "" "" Sevice Goustie."
