

A BOOM FOR ROADS

Prominent Pennsylvanians Moving for Better Country Highways.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

To Be Invoked to Aid in the Passage of a Suitable Measure.

PATTISON'S OPINION WANTED

A Desire to Satisfy the Governor and the Rural Residents.

WHY THE LAST ROAD BILL WAS VETOED

Charles F. Ellis, the executive officer of the old naval commission, was in Pittsburgh yesterday on his way to New Castle and Erie. It will be remembered that the commission spent considerable time and money in preparing a bill providing for the permanent improvement of the State highways. It was passed by the last Legislature, but the granger influence was strong enough with Governor Pattison to persuade him to veto the measure. The farmers were afraid of a make, and the Governor's main objection was the manner in which the annual appropriation was to be distributed among the various counties.

Drafting a New Road Bill

Now the chances are that the members of the old commission at their own expense this time will draft another bill and present it to the Legislature. Mr. Ellis said he had talked with several of the members lately, and he found them as enthusiastic as ever on the subject of better roads. He is positive that the granger influence will be lessened, and he is confident that the commission is willing to contribute his time and money in a second attempt to carry the Legislature and the Governor. "I expect to be back here in a few days," said Mr. Ellis, "to have a talk with Mr. McCargo. I know how he feels about the improvements, and I have no doubt of his hearty co-operation. I saw Stanley Goodwin at Bethlehem in a few days ago. He is anxious to make another attempt. He complimented THE PITTSBURGH DISPATCH and said if other papers in the State took as much interest in the road question as THE DISPATCH the problem would be speedily solved. There is no reason why the State should not appropriate annually $1,000,000 for permanent improvements of the roads. I don't mean to spend the money for patch work. We have had enough of that. We need a system of betterment. I wouldn't care whether the road was macadamized, or some other plan adopted, as long as the improvement was substantial and made the roads passable during all seasons of the year.

Governor Pattison's Objections

"In the bill we prepared we provided that the money should be divided among the counties according to the enterprise displayed. We had no objection to a man working out his taxes when he did it at one time, and not in a jerky manner, as so many farmers do, working a little now, and then quitting to return to the job some day later. We thought the best basis of distribution was in proportion to the amount of road tax paid in cash, and Governor Pattison took exception to this proposition. The members of the Road Commission are so interested in this subject that they are preparing a bill themselves or through his friends. It indicates what kind of a bill he will endorse we will gladly draft it according to his ideas, and do our best to push it through the Legislature. "It is useless for us to do anything toward preparing a bill until we know who is appointed on the different committees and how they are going to proceed. Then we will certainly go to work and prepare a second bill. I intend to issue a circular letter shortly to the newspapers of the State asking them to say how much money they think should be appropriated annually for improvements, and how it can be best distributed among the counties. I expect to receive the views of all of them in return. The newspapers are the great educators, and we intend to look to them to stir up public enthusiasm.

Thirty of Money to Spare

"So far as the money is concerned I know the State can easily spare $1,000,000 yearly. The last Legislature appropriated $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 annually, and the coming Legislature will advance the sum to $5,000,000. This is a great deal of money, and I have no objection to increasing the amount of money spent on school work. It is a good thing, but that is no reason why other great interests of the State should be neglected. The money should be used for the State Treasurer, the Auditor General, the Secretary of Internal Affairs and the Tax Commission that with all the income of the State there will be enough money left to spend $1,000,000 annually on the roads. Some uniform system of improvement should be adopted, and the roads should be carried out from year to year until not a bad road is left in the State.

THE PITTSBURGH FILTER COMPANY

No. 30 Sandusky Street, Allegheny, Pa., Manufacturers of the Davis Filter. Our new unadorned supply of clear, pure, wholesome water at all times. Send postal for catalogue and price list. 475 East Pennsylvania Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PLANS! OIGANS!

Special Holiday Prices. New organs at $30. New pianos $225. Second-hand organs at $15. Second-hand pianos at $75. Easy payments. Every instrument fully warranted. LAUCHLIN & SCHROEDER, 69 Fifth Avenue.

Solomon & Ruben's

Is becoming the favorite shopping place for pronounced novelties in boys' and children's suits and overcoats. Come in to-morrow. A large consignment will be opened and sold on sale. Unexceptional values in this department.

345 suits of natural wool and camel's hair made to order. Weights, suit-to-morrow suits at $10.00. Suits at $12.00. Corner Sandusky and Diamond streets.

BOTH SIDES STICKING

But a Change in the River Coal Miners' Strike May Come Soon.

THE EFFECT OF BOATING WATER

Old Employes Replacing Non-Union Workers at Homestead.

NEWS OF THE GREAT LABOR WORLD

The close of the eleventh week of the river miners' strike finds both sides firm. The strike was declared on a reduction of half a cent a bushel asked by the operators, so as to put them on an equal footing with the railroads. The operators have been claiming that the strike was practically over for the past month, but there has been no considerable break and the fight is being pushed with vigor on both sides. At a special meeting of the Coal Exchange yesterday considerable business was transacted. Much of the time was spent in considering the strike and hearing the committee's report on the number of men at work. Some men were reported to have returned, but there are only a few working in each mine. These are principally engaged in driving headings and turning rooms. No coal of any consequence is being mined, and the operators are very uneasy, as the season is much advanced. The Effect of Barge Water. Water is expected at any time, and when it does come it will be in large quantities. It will be sent out, so that the market will be practically left to the railroads. The price for this fuel in the Southern markets is high and the demand good. This leaves the operators in a bad way, and it is no secret that many of them are becoming very uneasy. In order to break the strike many of them are trying to get the operators to give in, but their efforts have not been successful, as in some instances the new men being driven out by the strikers. Captain I. N. Brown, in speaking of the outlook yesterday, said that the operators will not give in and pay 1/2 cent a bushel more for their coal than the railroads are now giving. It simply means death to the operators if they do not give in, but before giving in, but from reports I don't think anything like this will be necessary, as I think the mines will soon be at work at the reduced rates. Reports point to that, and I see no reason to doubt them. I think the strike will be over before December 1.

THE COMET DUE TO-NIGHT

Wise Men Are Squabbling Over the Visitor's Paragance. The long-looked-for comet is due between 9 and 10 o'clock night, and astronomers big and little are expecting a great treat. This visitor, which is so soon to arrive, has not been christened yet. The wise men are still squabbling over its paragance, but it will probably go down in history as Holmes' comet. Great efforts are being put forward to prove that it is one of the Biela system. There is still a reasonable doubt. Prof. Verr, of the Allegheny Observatory, has been a close observer of this unnamed expected visitor. He says it has become very hazy in appearance and indefinite in shape. This makes it difficult to determine its center or head. During the last two or three nights the comet has increased in size, but faded in luminosity. This is credited to the fact that it is approaching the earth, and the haziness is accounted for on the principle that a faint object is more distinct a great distance. Meteoric showers are expected to follow in the wake of the comet.

WANT A CITY HOSPITAL

The Coroner's Jury Recommend It in the Beach Inquest. The inquest was held in the case of William Beach yesterday. He is the man who died at the City Farm. Beach had erysipelas and none of the hospitals would take him. He had to be taken overland to the City Farm, and the exposure is said to have led to his death. The jury recommended that the city establish a hospital for such cases. This is a scheme that Superintendent Baker, of the Health Department, is favoring, and Coroner McDowell is helping him in as much as possible. The City Farm is the only place to send such cases, and then they have to be taken overland, as the railroads will not carry them. Coroner McDowell thinks, from the fact that the new farm is to be farther away than the present one, the city hospital should be erected at once.

HE WOULD NOT WORK

George A. Young Arrested for Deserting His Young Wife. George A. Young was arrested on the Southside yesterday by Officer Sprout on charge of desertion and non-support made by his wife. For several months past he has neglected to provide for her. She had no means of support and had been reduced to destitute circumstances. Becoming tired of the delay she went before Alderman Griep on November 7, and swore out a warrant. Young heard of it, and left for Ohio, where he remained until yesterday, when he began working at a twenty-second street ferry. His whereabouts becoming known, he was arrested and locked up for a hearing this morning.

Fell From an Electric Car

John M. Pinkerton, of 58 Baker street, Allegheny, fell from a Pleasant Valley car at Jack's Run yesterday afternoon and was seriously, but not fatally, injured, about the face and body. He was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital.

Her Story Didn't Go

Mrs. Thomas Deering was at the Department of Charities yesterday and wanted help. She told a very pitiful story and said her husband had deserted her. Her story was not believed, and it was soon learned she was an impostor.

A Perfect Piano Is a Lasting Pleasure

Mellor & Hoene, 77 Fifth Avenue. Such a piano can only be secured through the intelligence of the buyer, coupled with the services of a reliable dealer. Such a faith is the portion of those who patronize the firm of MELLOR & HOENE.

THE GREATEST SIXTETTE IN THE WORLD

Henriks Music Co., Ltd. If you wish to hear a musical treat go to 101 and 103 Fifth Avenue, where you can hear the greatest sixtette in the world. WEISS, WERBES, LINDENAU, STUBBART, PLANOS, assisted by a full orchestra and the famous Palace organ. Any of the above ladies will make a splendid present for Christmas. Special low prices will be made and payments arranged to suit the purchaser. Call and see the finest and largest music store in the State. Watch newspapers for grand opening to take place December 7 and 8. 101 and 103 Fifth Avenue.

THE LAWRENCEVILLE STRIKERS DECIDE TO NOT DECLARE THE STRIKE

The strikers at the Upper and Lower Union Mills of the Carnegie Steel Company held another stormy meeting yesterday morning. The committee appointed to see what terms could be secured from the company should it decide to declare the strike and return to work, reported they all want to return in a body, and should the company consent to this, the strike would soon end and no questions would be asked. The meeting was secret and was attended by the men, fairly two-thirds of the strikers being present. The Chairman had considerable difficulty in keeping order. There is now a considerable number who want to get released so as to get back their old positions without being deserters. For this reason they want the strike declared off. After about four hours of discussion a vote was taken. The result showed that 120 wanted to continue the strike and 43 wanted to declare off the strike. The men adjourned to meet again Monday. The strikers still receive benefits from the amalgamated Association, and feel that something will still turn up to allow them some advantage.

Will Incline Knights to Better Work

Master Workman Hugh Dempsey, of District Assembly No. 3, Knights of Labor, yesterday stated that he hoped to secure the services of T. B. McQuire, of New York, to stir up more enthusiasm in the district and awaken the Knights to their full duty. Mr. McQuire is making a strong fight against the Troy Laundry Company, of Cleveland, O., which is bringing him into prominence in labor circles.

To Help the Homestead Men

McKeesport is coming forward as willing to aid the destitute Homestead ex-strikers. The men at the Homestead are in a very bad way. They have no money and no food. The Homestead men are in a very bad way. They have no money and no food. The Homestead men are in a very bad way. They have no money and no food.

TAKEN TO DIXMONT

John Ellis, Crazed by Detective Stories, Placed in the Asylum.

WANTED TO KILL A PRETTY NURSE

He Claims to Be on the Trail of a Notorious Train Robber.

RELATED TO THE FAMOUS JACK RAMSAY

Inspector Eichenlaub, of the Allegheny Department of Public Charities, yesterday afternoon took John Ellis, the demented young man who has been confined in a padded cell at the Allegheny General Hospital for the past three days, to Dixmont. Ellis, who was crazed by reading detective stories, imagines that he is a great detective and that the hospital authorities tried to thwart him in his search for a notorious train robber, whom he thinks is hiding somewhere in this section. He became extremely violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury of a demon. The hospital authorities could do nothing with him, and they asked the Department of Public Charities to have him sent to Dixmont. Ellis got it into his head that Inspector Eichenlaub was a famous detective, and will be caught by him. He became very violent yesterday morning and in his rage tore the pads entirely off one side of his cell and raved and fought with imaginary enemies with all the fury