NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

Two Prisoners Are Discharged Pending the Death of a Relative Before Alderman Braun, of Allegheny, yesterday Henry Fuhs entered information Lacock street, charging them with selling are relatives of the prosecutor.

Immediately after the warrants were sworn out Alderman Braun sent down one of his constables to arrest the Dornheims. When Mr. Dornheim appeared before the Alderman later in the day he said the charge entered against him by his brotherin-law was not true. He further stated that he would like to have his arrest deferred, as his father in-law, Mr. Fuhs, lay at home dying from a paralytic stroke. The Alderman granted his request and discharged both him and his wife until further notice. B. Scott, a member of the board, in looking

They will recommend to the Legislature appropriations for each of the places visited. Dr. Biddle said last night that he con sidered the Mercy Hospital one of the best institutions of its kind in the State. He said the argument frequently used that the Mercy is sectarian should not stand. "At the Mercy Hospital they accept and treat all classes and kinds of people regardless of their religion. Their Board of Trustees is made up with a majority of Protestants and no good reason can be given why the Mercy Hospital should not get the same help from the State as the other hospitals into the wants of the several charitable in-

of this city," Mr. Biddle said. "The idea of charitable institutions asking for State aid is a bad one," Dr. Biddle continued. "I mean it is bad financially for the institutions. Whenever an institution asks the State for help and receives the help from the State just that soon the charitably disposed people withdraw their individual help from those concerns. The Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia is by all odds the richest institution in the State. It has never received or asked for help from the State and as a result it is almost receiving bequests. It is sub-stantially endowed and it is prosperous only because its friends know that the State will not be asked to help it.

"The Philadelphia hospital was chartered about the same time as the West Penn Hospital of Pittsburg. The local institu-tion has not enjoyed many substantial be-quests but the Legislature is liberal in its appropriations to the hospital each session."

Dr. Biddle says the charities of the State will ask the Legislature for about $3,000,-000 in appropriations He believes, how-ever, that the Board of Charities will Albert Whitmore Thrown to the Street but recommend about $2,000,000 for the purpose. The institutions of Western Pennsylvania will require about half the money appropriated. The Pittsburg institutions it is estimated will require about $250,000.

members were given the opportunity of individually contributing as they saw fit. At the convention a number of important questions to the organization will be brought up. The international union is a comparatively new body, and many changes in the constitution are contemplated. The treasurer at the convention at Columbus, O., last year, absconded with $1,300 of the order's funds. Since then there has been a good deal of trouble and the funds of the organization are in a rather bad condition. None of this money has been recovered and is not likely to be, as the treasurer, after compromising his case with the order, was killed in a railroad accident. Valentine

Arnold, of this city, is now Treasurer.
The officers elected were: President, John Potter; Vice President, Fred Voelker; Secretary, George Jones; Financial Secre-tary, Henry Wilker; Treasurer, Richard Moorhouse; Doorkeeper, Andrew Dugan; Trustee, John F. "Don't say anything about this," said a manufacturer yesterday in commenting on a projected building, "or I will be flooded with applications for work. All has been already published that is necessary, and if the subject is agitated I can do nothing but attend to the many who want work."

Taking this as a cue a DISPATCH reporter started to find out the condition of labor in the building trades. In some branches of the trade it was found there were too many Workmen for the positions and in others a great scarcity. A number of contractors were seen and when the subject | the annual repairs. There will be no great was mentioned expressed themselves in the same way. The laborers were out of proportion to the number of skilled mechanics, and the arrangement made it difficult to get the work evenly divided. There were several reasons advanced for of the building trades. One contractor in expressing himself said: "My observation has led me to believe that the American laborer is too ambitious to remain in the lower grades and do the work that requires no skill. This tendency has brought about such a state of things that the market is overcrowded with men who want to do the better grades of work, and as a consequence our laboring classes are now almost entirely confined to foreigners. I find this to be more noticeable each year. Another thing that has had its effect is the change in the way of building houses. A man does not need to go through an apprentice's course of instruction to fit him for a skilled mechanic. In a short time with ordinary intelligence a man can now become a fairly good carpenter and do the same work that an old hand would do. Houses are put up in a day now, as everything is made ready beforehand so that all that is necessary is to put it together." The builders have had a remarkably successiul season and have had an unusually large number of men employed during the past few months, but now with the closing of the season and much of the work having been completed a large number of men are being thrown out of employment and have little opportunity of getting work. These numbers are being increased and while the proportion of unemployed men is less among the builders than in any other calling there are still a large num-ber who have little work. The most of these caught little or nothing to do at their own trade and have to make a living as best they can at anything they can get to do. Most of these would rather get work occasionally and make enough to barely get along than go to work at something else. There are plenty of positions open as laborers, and the supply seems to increase even if ap-plicants for other occupations are being constantly turned away. WARMLY CONTESTED ELECTION.

Mrs. Sheiff said the defendant had placed a wheelbarrow filled with coal in iront of her gate. When her little boy wanted to pass into the yard he was unable to do so on account of the obstruction. She remonstrated with Brockmiller, whereupon he picked up a piece of coal as big as a high hat and threw it at her, striking her in the side. HIS HORSE RAN AWAY.

Not Injured.

There was an exciting scene on Beaver avenue, Allegheny, last night about 8 o'clock. Albert Whitmore was driving a horse and buggy, and when opposite the Pittsburg Locomotive Works the horse became frightened and ran away. He had gone but a short distance when the buggy struck an electric light pole, smashing the vehicle to pieces.

Mr. Whitmore was thrown to the street,

but was uninjured.

and the union, which numbers nearly 700, turned out almost to a man, as there had been a great deal of interest stirred up in the election. The number of candidates was unusually large, and each one had canvassed for votes most earnestly. For some of the offices there were as high as four or five candidates. The most interest was centered in the election of the delegates to the international convention at Toronto, Canada, January 9. The local union was entitled to four delegates, and there were 18 candidates. This trip was coveted by each one, and every vote was closer canvassed for the position than for the presidency of the union.
