New York's Board of Trade Seeks Information in Pittsburg.

UNCLE SAM MUST ASSUME CONTROL

The Special Committee on Quarantine of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation is at work collecting information, data and opinions from those expert on the subject, touching the advantages, if any, of establishing a uniform system of quarantine in the United States. If the returns are favorable to such institution suggestions will be prepared for Congressional legislation on the subject.

In answer to a request from the committee for his views upon the matter, Dr. J. H. McCielland, President of the State Board of Health, following the line of inquiry laid out, has written as follows to the committee:

"My observation of quarantine administration in foreign countries (extending over most of the countries of Europe and Northern Africa) would lead me to question their superiority over our own, with the single exception of the advantage secured by a uniform administration, under strong general governments.

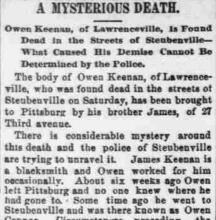

"In most countries of Europe, notably England, quarantine supervision is weak and inadequate, only rising to an occasion such as a serious cholera outbreak offers. The present status of quarantine administration in the United States is far from satisfactory, because of a lack of uniformity which must inevitably obtain where authority is divided up among municipal govgraments.

Necessity of a Uniform System.

"The system (or want of system) of quarantine existing in the United States leads to increased cost-an assertion easily substantiated-increased interference and restrictions to travel, each representative of a separate government having to be satisfied, and making a strong probability of less security in and owing to misunderstandings where authority is divided.

"All of which leads me to declare unequivocally in favor of a quarantine under National administration. Leaving to others the discussion of the effects upon imports and commerce, it would seem to me plainly and broadly within the province of the National Government to deal with a procedure so distinctly international. Quarantine regulations and questions arising there from must inevitably provoke negotiations between foreign powers and home government, and nothing short of the diplomatic and consular service will suffice for such international dealings. It seems almost absurd to ask foreign governments to open negotistions with this or that municipality. There are questions of health, mitation and even quarantine which may

BETWEEN CAPITAL AND LABOR. A Day Set Apart to Consider the American Peace Society's Aims.

ENDING ALL STRIFE.

The American Peace Society set apart esterday as a day for the churches of the Connor. Circumstances preceding the discovery of Keenan's body tend to country to consider its aims. Rev. J. L. discovery of Reenan's body tend to complicate the mystery as to the manner of his death. There were no wounds or marks on the body, other than an abrasion on his hip, which was probably caused by his falling on the pavement. When found he had no hat, nor has his hat Andrew, who is a member of the Executive Committee of the society, preached at Carry University yesterday on the approach of universal peace. Mr. Andrew said: "War has been a great if not indispeusable factor in the world's progress. It been found. Late Saturday night he was in a Steubeuville saloon, and there he had may also be that before peace shall be his hat on. Half an hour later he appeared universally triumphant civilized nations at the Washington street railroad tower, hatless and asked to come in. He said somebody had attacked him on the street, may again see many repetitions of the horrors of war. Yet it is nevertheless true that the desire for peace is constantly growand that they struck him with something, and in the squabble he lost his hat. He was in the tower until about 4 o'clock Sating and the mania for war is visibly declin-

"That peace, with its necessary preequisite, is eminently desirable, no man will gainsay. The reluctance with which European nations cherish the idea of a possible war in their midst shows that distinguished statesmen experience great dread over its possibility. The evils of war are too fearful to be incautiously incurred, and the more complicated civilized life becomes the more disastrous will any war be. "War paralyzes industry and commerce and makes all financial speculation more or less risky, especially in regard to the weaker party. This is not a mere mercenary reason for not desiring war. But A Big Jubilee Meeting of Railroad Engithe arrangements and instrumentalities of modern civilisation are so artificial and are JACKSON, MICH., Dec. 18 -Between 500 so completely at the mercy of financial and 600 locomotive engineers met in this confidence, that even many of our commoncity to-day for a jubilee meeting behind est wants would be unsatisfied if war closed doors. There the main cause of the jealousy and hatred between those nations. So was it for cenwere no greivances to consider. While ad-dressing the meeting, he declared that dur-ing his 19 years as Grand Chief, he had never seen a more prosperous state of turies between France and England. So fully were the average English people under this feeling that until a half a century ago each rising generation was taught 'to hate the French as they would the devil.' Now this feeling, we must admit, is neither humane nor religious. The Christian religion will not have made the conquest of human nature until all bitter-ness and strife, for all causes, is banished from its moral consciousness "There are many in all lands who believe that a nation should always be jealous of its honor, and be quick to resent all insults. But it is no more creditable to a nation than it is to a man to be vindictively Jurgens, wholesale grocer, was totally destroyed by he early this morning with several of the adjoining buildings on either side. Patriotism is not greater, nor even as great a virtue as humanity. This is the fundamental teaching of Christianity.

All Europe in One Federation. "It is a sorrowful confession that we must make: that so-called Christian nations must make: that so-called Christian nations are even yet distinguished for their war-like propensities, thus perpetuating the miseries attending large standing armies and imposing grievous burdens on the al-ready oppressed laboring classes. It may be some comfort to us to reflect that we have not yet reached the climax of civil progress, and that the present state of af-fairs in Europe may be necessary and pre-paratory to a far higher form of govern-ment than now exists. "Conclination and consultation are often necessary between employers and employes. Misunderstandings may be removed by a free exchange of ideas. Where these means fail, arbitration should be resorted to, and in case of either party failing to submit to arbitration heavy penalties should be im-posed. All classes see that peace-able methods are always preferable to those that are belligerent. In many instances, even in this State, strikes and lockouts have hear prevented or sneedily terminated have been prevented or speedily terminated by the intercession of the officers of the Peace Union, and satisfactorily to all parties. "If Christianity has any voice or mes-sage in our day it is that men should strive after peace; that, as far as it is possible, we should live peaceably with all men. In view of the dangers incurred by hostile feelings between nations or between social and industrial classes, peace is necessary to prosperity. If we are to give due promi-nence to the virtue of patriotism, its significance is largely to be found in the effort to produce peace, to make men feel that they are all brethren, and that all their interests are inseperable."

FIRST ITALIAN CHURCH.

Dedication of St. Peter's-A Handsome Tempie Erected by the Italian Roman Catholics of Pittsburg-Large Attendance at the Services.

St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church, the first edifice built in the city for the exclusive worship of the Italian Catholics, was formally dedicated yesterday. The services were conducted by Bishop Phelan, who was assisted by Rev. Father Bandini, of New York, and Fathers Murphy, McTighe, Bernard, McDermott, Stager and Molinari, of this city, the last named being the pastor of the new church. The new edifice was crowded with the Italian residents of this city; in fact, there was such a crowd present that the capacity of the church was saxed, and many had to content themselves by lis-tening to the services from the outside. The dedicatory sermon was preached by Rev. Father Bandini, who is President of St. Raphael's Society of New York, an organization whose object is the care of Italian immigrants coming to this country. Father Bandini took his text from the psalms: "Heaven is the throne of glory; the temple His throne of maxes" psaims: "Heaven is the throne of glory; the temple His throne of mercy." Rev. Father Murphy, of the Holy Ghost College, delivered a short address. He paid high tribute to Italy as a nation. He said that the world owes Italy a debt not only for Christianity, but also for its arts and sciences, and Americans, instead of despising the Italians, should extend to them the hand of welcome and he proud of them the hand of welcome and be proud of them.

The new church building which stands on the corner of Webster avenue and Tun-nel street is a substantial building of brick and stone. It was built at a cost of $35,000, of which one-half has already been paid. The interior of the church is simply decor ated, and is at the same time very pretty. In addition to the main altar there are two smaller side altars. The building is one story, with a basement, the upper floor be-ing the church proper and the basement be-ing used as a school room and for Sunday school. On the arch in front of the altar there is a very handsome allegorical paint-ing, representing St. Peter being delivered by the angels. The pastor of the church is Rev. Father Molinari, who is a missionary priest, and the assistant is Rev. Father Berto.

Must Be Under Government Control,

"The quarantine laws of the United States should be administered by the Government of the United States.

"Finally, there should be prohibitory regulations against trade and immigration in toto from the districts permanently pestilential; as, for example, where cholera has its habitat. We legislate against Chinese; better legislate against pestilence." Having had control of the quarantine regulations of the State during the recent chol-era scare, Dr. McClelland was in a position where he way brought constantly into confliet with the various governments, and his opinion on the advantages to be gained by having a national quarantine is based upon the knowledge he has acquired by experience in dealing with the difficulties.

A PREACHER BARRED OUT.

The Detroit Presbytery Boldly Defied by a Congregation.

DETROIT, Dec. 18 -It certainly looks as though the congregation of the Thompson Presbyterian Church were entirely in earnest when they stated that it was their intention to stand by their pastor, the Rev. Mr. Welton, who had been suspended by the Detroit Presbytery, and to resist any action on the part of that body to fill the pulpit which it had declared vacant.

That this attitude of the congregation was not assumed without the intention of maintaining it, was conclusively shown this morning. The Prosbytery had declared the pulpit vacant and accordingly had ap-pointed a pastor to appear at the church for the purpose of preaching; the congrega-tion, or rather the majority, said the pulpit was not vacant, that the Presbytery had erred in its action and that if their pastor, Mr. Welton, could not preach there on Sunday, no one should. This was the situation this morning, and naturally there was a great deal of interest shown in the outcome. The congregation maintained their position; they certainly did exactly what they said they would do. They locked the doors of the church, and posted a notice on each door in the name of the members of the congregation to whom the church and the property had been transferred while the present difficulty is pend-ment than now exists. It may a mere dream. But may we not cherish the hope, with some degree of assurance, that in the future, although it may be very remote, one grand Federal government may control the destinies of all Europe. Should it ever happen it will not be due to war, but to the marvelous development of the arts and sciences and to the paramount necessities of trade and commerce among European nations

"Civilization makes man a more peace-able being. Thoughtful men are not likely to be warriors. Napoleon could never have raised an army if the French of his day were intelligent. Knowledge makes a man careful of his life and renders him sceptical as to whether the welfare of humanity de mands such awful sacrifices as war produces. Patriotism is something besides a mere desire or willingness to sacrifice one's life for his country. It involves the exercise of intelligence-an intellectual recognition of our country's needs, of hu-ity's welfare, and how they both may be met.

Aims of the Peace Union. "The Universal Peace Union, which is represented in every country in Christen-dom, aims not only at the cessation of mere hostilities between nations, but advocates the use of means necessary to secure and preserve peace between the conflicting interests and elements of society in every land. Its policy, which is rapidly gaining ground and securing the assent of the greatest minds, is this-that war shall, as far as possible, give place to arbitration. So human and sensible is this that it is doubtful if any right-minded man will oppose it. How much more exalted and noble is it to exercise reason and the better qualities of our nature than it is to appeal to numerical strength and military strategy to carry our ends. War demoralizes any nation that follows it. "The great field of war-of war unceasing and relentless in our day and in every land -is between capital and labor. The hostility latent in every man's nature here finds its outlet. The jealousy and ill-will between employer and employe constitute nothing less than a veritable conflict. It is the great question of the hour, but this ani-mosity may be lessened and the evils resulting therefrom prevented. Legislation is yet very defective on this subject. The rights of labor and the rights of capital are not properly adjusted. That each has rights equally sacred and equally inviolable, must be admitted. How to prevent illegal or unjust encroachments is the supreme
