Liquor Dealers Trying to Reorganize Their Association.

BREWERS CRIPPLED THE LEAGUE.

Their Part in the Cases Against Drivers of Icer Wagons.

TALK OF THE COMING LICENSE COURT

The members of the Liquor Dea ers Protective Association are quietly at work trying to build the league up to the standard it once occupied. It has not been generally known that the association had received nearly its death blow when it tried to prosecute drivers of beer wagons for retailing beer. The Brewers' Association then got the upper hand and has held it

The Liquor Dea lers' Association has two branches, one in Pittsburg, the other in Allegheny. John O'Neil is President on this side of the river and Max Schneider is the chief executive of the Northside dealers. It was a powerful organization and carried its points every time until a few months ago. The trouble in its ranks dates back to a short time after the license court had finished its sittings. E. P. Hesser, the agent for the liquor dealers, was instructed to bring suit against a number of drivers of beer wazons in both cities, charging them with selling direct from the wagon. The Brewers Call a Turn.

Mr. Hesser made information against nearly every driver in the city. Lawyers were employed and the league was prepared to fight the cases through the Supreme Court had it been necessary. brewers are organized, and watch their in-terests as closely as the dealers. Representatives from their organization called on the league. They said the cases would have to be dropped or suits would be brought against the dealers. They said the Brewers' Association would employ detec-minors and men of known intemperate habits. This had the desired effect, as it is said every saloonkeeper in the town violates the law unknowingly.

The liquor dealers had a conference with its attorneys and Agent Hesser, and the tives and make out cases against every dealer in the two cities for selling to league thought it wise to drop the matter. The association did this and discharged its attorneys and Mr. Hesser. From then on it is said it has been lying dormant, and the members were losing interest in the organization. Mr. Hesser is said to have fought hard against dropping the cases after hav-ing worked them up. He wanted the league to go ahead with the prosecution, but it would not.

Hesser took the responsibility on himself. They came up for trial just before the Critchlow case, and the majority of them

The liquor dealers are now trying to reorganize to be ready for the coming License Court. The organization is finding this upbuilding hard work, and it will not be able to battle so well this time as in years gone by. It is said the Brewers' Association since it has secured the upper hand is keep-ing a strict watch, and there is consider-able hard feeling between the two organiza-

The liquor men keep tab on the license courts as well as they can, and already some of them say they know who will be on the bench this time. The Judges who are named as the probable dispensers of licenses are Ewing and White. There is a rumor that there are to be two courts this time and three Judges. Judge Single is named as the third justice. Many of the dealers think there will be no decrease in the number of licenses this year.
