Rev. Mr. meteorite falls to the earth it generally Diekey said: Dickey said: I have resigned to maintain harmony in the church. The trouble really began more than six years ago in the choir. This quieted down, and about a year ago a prominent member of the congregation and his wife took offense at what I said in a sermon. That difficulty is felt up to this day. Then other members of the church are dissatis-fied because I am not a social hon, but I have never neglected to visit a side or dying member, or failed to go where my pastoral duty called. To sum the whole matter up, they want a new pastor. I suppose, and I will not remain longer than until next April. The next assembly of the Presbytery will be held then, and I will present my resignation. Charles J. Peschall, an attorney of Jersey (iv, was in Pittsburg vesterday and spent shint three hours with Judges Acheson and maington asking for a writ to prevent the execution of Edward W. Hollinger, who is neutronced to be hanged at Jersey City tomarrow. Hollinger is a colored man and a native of Ireland. About three years ago he killed his wite in Hudson county, N. J. He accused her of untaithfulness. She denied the charge and he cut her head open with a hatchet

When arraigned Hollinger pleaded ity. Since that time four different dates have been fixed for his execution. Probably no other case in the country has been tbrough as many tribunals in the same length of time. Mr. Peschall has had it in every court that had jurisdiction and in some that hadn't. He has been successtul in saving his client's neck three times and is now engaged in making the fight for the fourth time.

Two days prior to the time first set for the Supreme Court of New Jersey on a con-Judges of the Inferior Court of Common Terminer, before whom all murder cases should be tried.

Mr. l'eschall argued that Hollinger had not been heard at all before the court as it should have been constituted, and his argu-ment convinced the Supreme Court and the man was not executed

Another day was fixed for the execution. A day or two before Mr. Peschall went into e zecution was stopped on a point raised by hum. A third day was fixed for the hangter of Hollinger, and then Mr. Peschall t into the United States Supreme Court another constitutional point. The nion handed down was one of the first ritten by Justice Shiras, Mr. Peschall reld that Hollinger should have had a jury trial, according to the provision of the Fourteenth Amendment, which guarantees in all citizens equal protection under the aw. But Justice Shiras held that, while it ntight be necessary to give a man a jury trial in some States, in others it would not. Another point was then raised that saved

Hopes to Fool Them Again.

"The gallows have been torn down three times without hanging that man," said Mr. Peschall. "They have them up again by this time, but I think we will fool them again. I believe that crime should be pund, but I tell you that no man's duty to s client is done until the latter has been
