

NO ALARM IS NEEDED

In Regard to the Flurry Caused by the Speculators in Stocks.

THE EXCITEMENT IS ABOUT OVER.

And It Is Thought It Was Raised for Its Effect on Congress.

FOSTER ON THE MONETARY CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 20.—Information was received at the Treasury Department to-day to the effect that the financial flurry in New York is practically over for the present, and that there is no longer any prospect of a panic. Money is reported easy, and exchange has fallen below the shipping point, so that the heavy exports of gold are not likely to continue.

Secretary Foster said this morning that $3,000,000 in gold has been taken out of the Treasury this week, and that about $1,500,000 more would probably be lost before the week was ended. He is confident, however, he said, that this gold will soon be returned with interest, through the regular channels of trade. He said that there is really nothing alarming in the situation, and that stocks apparently unsettled now will readily adjust themselves.

No Alarm for Alarm.

Mr. Hepburn, Comptroller of the Currency, also said there was really no occasion for alarm at the state of affairs in Wall street, and that he would be surprised if the apparent stringency was not intended solely for its effect on Congress. Mr. Hepburn said that while there may be some sentiment in the situation, he was convinced that the interests of the country demanded the repeal of the Sherman silver bill.

"I think there is a popular misconception, regard to the results, so far, of the International Monetary Conference," said Secretary Charles Foster to a reporter at the Treasury Department this afternoon. "It is a grave mistake," he said, "to assume that the conference will prove to be a failure. The taking of a recess till May was expected by the administration, and the American delegates left this country, there is every reason for expecting the conference to reassemble at the date fixed upon."

The fact that Mr. Rothschild made any proposition for the increased use of silver, coming from a man who is known to have something done to insure its better use among the nations very serious consequences would follow, is in itself a very hopeful indication that the prominent bankers of the world feel the necessity of reaching an agreement of such a nature as will secure approximate uniformity the world over in dealing with the question.

All Done—We are pleased.

"As far as my personal connection with the conference is concerned, all I expected of the preliminary meeting has been accomplished. The general feeling of the conference is even more favorable than we anticipated."

Secretary Charles Foster makes no secret of his purpose of repairing, so far as possible, the damage done to the monetary system, and intends on Government gold holdings resulting from the recent heavy shipments of that metal to European countries. To that end he has renewed the policy so successfully employed by him at earlier periods of his administration, when the gold balance of the country was similarly menaced by foreign influences.

This policy, in brief, is to disburse currency of any character and denomination desired at any point in the United States, when it may be needed, in exchange for gold deposited in any sub-treasury except that at San Francisco.

Actual Transportation Selden Used.

When it is necessary to ship money to make payments the dealer is given the benefit of Government rates of transportation. The dealer desiring money at Chicago, New Orleans or elsewhere, deposits his gold at New York, and receives its equivalent, less transportation charges, at the sub-treasury nearest to his place of use. A demand here is that any large amount of money is suddenly required at non-sub-Treasury points, it can readily be observed that actual transportation of the money is rarely necessary.

It was learned at the Treasury Department that during the several weeks the bank has taken advantage of Secretary Foster's plan of domestic exchange, and have already added $800,000 to the Government gold balance in exchange for an equal amount of currency, and further, that there is every indication that the Treasury will speedily recoup nearly the entire amount of gold recently surrendered to foreign dealers.
