ALL THE LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS.

SATURDAY, Dec. 24.

A number of forces have worked during the week to unsettle confidence in the financial world and create doubt as to the position of values, and they have been of more than usual weight—the renewal of gold exports, uneasiness over the silver situation, stringency in money and the dangers threatening the French Republic. At the moment, say Henry Clews & Co., it is not easy to judge how far the serious political complications in France may become an element of financial disturbance. In the event of revolution, which seems to be more than a mere possibility, a shock to the houses of Europe would be inevitable and, considering the broad relations between Paris and London, the latter city would be exposed to suffer in sympathy with the former. In that event, whatever might be the first effect on our market, the later would be to encourage the purchase of American investments on account of their isolation from the sphere of European politics. Nevertheless, the position of France constitutes an important influence tending to produce caution in the money markets of the world at large.

The exports of gold involve a corresponding relative reduction in the local money resources of this city, which is the main source of the prevailing stringency in the loan market. As the banks will have to stand ready for the large interest and dividend disbursements incident to the season, the stringency may be expected to continue at least into the new year, when the funds thus distributed among the public at large will have reduced the banks' resources. Relief may also be expected from influx of money from the interior, which usually sets in soon after January 1. But while, for these reasons, the money market may be trusted to take care of itself, there is a deep conviction that the course of both money and investments in the near future will be the action or non-action of Congress relating to silver. On this point, leading men of finance are in entire accord, and an important factor ruling the future. Could they be sure that purchases of silver by the Government will at least temporarily suspend, confidence would prevail; but, so long as the situation is uncertain, their attitude will be that of caution. While the foregoing factors surround the money market, the general market is unfavorable to the value of securities, yet the general range of conditions is not so unfavorable as it appears. The market forms a wholesome buttress against other disturbing influences.

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT.

The statement of the New York Associated Banks, received to-day, showed a net gain of $700,000 in reserves, with a net increase of $2,000,000 in deposits, and a net decrease of $1,000,000 in loans. It was a negative statement. The changes shown follow:

LOCAL SECURITIES.

A Quiet Week With Gains and Losses Nearly Equally Divided—The Only Radical Changes Are in the Gases, Traction and Industrials.

The transactions on the local board during the week ending to-day aggregated 3,147 shares of stock, $1,000 bonds and $109,897 in currency. The volume of trading was not very heavy, mainly because of the proximity of the winter holiday season, and because of the unsettled and unsettled conditions of the money market, particularly at controlling points, the tendency of values was to be quiet. It must be remembered, however, that the market had been remarkably well conditioned generally, not conducive to buoyant values, and in view of this, the gains established must be accepted as evidence of inherent merit and indicative of the probable course of the market under normal conditions. The changes of value, as the result of the week's operations, were as follows:

absolutely correct market. The rebate system furnishes a very large amount of work, and an amount of business that would otherwise be lost.

MONEY.

A strong and fairly active 6 per cent money market prevailed in Pittsburgh last week, with the demand confined almost entirely to mercantile and manufacturing circles. Hints were thrown out here and there that the supply of loanable funds would show an excess of demand, but the best authorities believe that the market will be well supplied with money.

MANHATTAN THE FEATURE.

It moves up on the announcement that the company has little to fear from the proposed underground route—the Grangers close strong. New York, Dec. 24.—Trading at the New York Stock Exchange was limited this morning, only 7,130 shares changing hands, of which 5,200 were unlisted. The first transactions prices were generally lower than the previous day, but yesterday, but subsequently a firmer tone prevailed, due to a disposition on the part of some of the smaller bears to even up their trades. They did not care to go home with contracts on their books over the double holiday.

SPECIAL MARKET LETTERS.

The Shadow of the Holiday Season Reflected in the Efforts of the Grangers, but They Are Full of Good Things for All That. A. J. Lawrence & Co.'s letter: No one cares to review the stock situation on the eve of the holidays, and until the end of the year, they devote much thought to the future of the market. The past week was barren of striking features. The boom in Duquesne traction flattened very completely, and the price of 27 1/2 is back where it was when the heavy buying began about a fortnight ago. Without professing special knowledge relating to the play, it looks to us as though the check given to the market was due to one of two things: either the pool fund is getting the stock too heavily and has withdrawn for the present, or the followers who bought for a quick turn are selling out and taking their profits or loss as the case may be. It is our opinion that the latter is the more likely cause of the present situation. In the general railway list the grangers were particularly active, but the market was not very active. The stock market is generally quiet, with a few exceptions. The market is generally quiet, with a few exceptions. The market is generally quiet, with a few exceptions.

Close of the Market.

The holiday spirit was very strong on "Change" to-day, and those present at the last call of the week did not appear to care to do more than go through the motions of trading. The only transaction was in the market for a few shares of the local banks.
