A FIGHT ON CARTER,

Editor M. H. De Young Claims the Montana Man Is Not National Chairman.

BUT HE HOLDS THE PLACE.

The Special Meeting of the Republican National Committee

CALLED TO SETTLE THE DISPUTE.

It Is Claimed the Fxecutive Committee Died on Election Cav.

FACTIONAL STRUGGLE FOR CONTROL

The ostensible object of the special meeting of the Republican National Committee to be held shortly in New York is sup-United States Senators. The control of the next Senate is an important matter, and the activity of the Democratic steering organization has aroused the Republican managers. This reason was given out by members of the committee, and in view of the doubtful Senatorial situation was accepted as legitimate by the public.

However, the reticence of Chairman Carter, who issued the call, and the way in which members like Sam Fessenden and Joseph Manley dodged the issue when asked about the purpose of the coming gathering were considered strange. Yesterday the truth about the object of the meeting leaked out. There is a serious division in the committee over the national chairmanship, and it is within the bounds of possibility that Clarkson will succeed Carter. The Montana man is anxious to hold the job, but the chances are that he will be forced to the wall. In view of the fact that permanent headquarters are to be established, the position of chairman takes a big jump in importance. Indeed, in the present condition of the party, the chairman for the next four years will be practically the

The Opportunity for a Strong Man. With Blaine probably on his death bed and President Harrison overwhelmingly defeated, the cry goes up for a Moses to guide the children out of the wilderness. It is argued that not since the formation of the party has such an opportunity been presented for strong and new men to jump in and make a name for themselves. The Blaine and Harrison factions, though the names are hardly appropriate now, are well represented in the committee, and a regular lively contest is expected when the meeting takes place. Under a count of noses the Blaine men claim they have a majority of four votes, and if Carter retires a follower of the Plumed Knight. will be selected. He will have a great opportunity to steer the party his way for the next four years, and hence the great importance attached to the chairmanship at this time. The Blaine people will not permit the place to be held by a Harrison man if they can prevent it.

The Blaine faction intend to oust Carter by legal and parliamentary tactics. The point is raised that the Executive Committee, of which Carter is chairman, ceased to exist after the election. James F.
Burke, assistant secretary of the committee, was in Washington last week securing coples of the minutes of the first meeting when Campbell, of Chicago, was elected chairman, to lay before the members.

wife and refused to allow him to see her.
He called frequently to the asylum, nevertheless, but did not get to see his wife.
On Sunday of last week Westlake was taken ill, and Tuesday, when Dr. Kennedy called, he learned that Westlake had received a letter from the doctor at the asyto exist after the election. James F. man, to lay before the members. De Young Claims the Position

It is well known that M. H. De Young, of San Francisco, claims to be the Acting Chairman of the national organization instead of Carter, and the object of the meeting is to settle this dispute. De Young is Vice President, and bases his case on a resolution that was offered by Sam Fessenden last summer at the meeting in Washington when the committee organized. After several hours of hot discussion it was adopted, but was never published until now. The resolution was to the effect that the chairman of the Executive Committee should select the nine members of which it is composed after consultation with the is composed after consultation with the candidates, and that he should have full control and management of the campaign for 1892. This is the exact wording of the resolution, according to the claims of the Blaine people.

It will be remembered that Mr. Camp-down and wept hysterically. She was bell was made Chairman of the Executive and the National Committees. Owing to business engagements he resigned, sending his resignation to the Executive Committee, which accepted it, and he was succeeded by Carter. At this point in the argument the Harrison people step in and say that, if De Young's representations are correct, De Young's representations are correct, then the Executive Committee did not have the authority to accept Campbell's resignation, and in reality he is still chairman of both committees. M. H. De Young insists that under the Fessenden resolution the Executive Committee and Carter's place no longer exist, and that as Vice President of the National Committee he is the acting chairman.

Carter Only Wants the Evidence. It should be understood that the Executive Committee is always selected to conduct the active work of the campaign, and the National Committee is advisory and supervisory. It is reported that Chairman Carter has said that if Mr. De Young can produce the resolution and show that it was adopted, he will step down and out without a struggle. Mr. Burke states that he found the resolution recorded on the minute books of the National Committee at Washington, and it will be put in evidence at Whatever may be the outcome a lively "scrap" is on the carpet. M. H. De Young is an implacable opponent of President Harrison, and it is quite apparent that under the rules he can't succeed to the Chairmanship as Vice President. It was learned also that the San Francisco editor stands no chance of being elected to the place. His ability as a worker and zeal for the Republican cause are recognized by his colleagues in the Blaine crowd, but the conservative element thinks he was not born to be a leader. Besides they are not sure the meeting. to be a leader. Besides they are not sure that Mr. De Young wants the job, and may be satisfied if Carter is retired. De Young claims be has nothing against the Montana man personally, but the exigencies of politics require a new deal all around. As permanent headquarters will undoubtedly be established in New York, the time of the Chairman will be taken up constantly with the affairs of the party, and it is believed that Mr. De Young could not desert his business for the place.

Clarkson Tired of Politics.

In the meantime Clarkson is being pressed for the job by the Blaine contingent. He was in Mexico a few days ago, where a syndicate in which he is interested has bought up the street railway franchises of the city. He is now on his way back, and will be present at the special meeting. He started as soon as he was notified of the call. Mr. Clarkson has declared that he would not be Chairman again, for he was tired of politics and wanted to make some money. He owns stock in a Chicago cor-Clarkson Tired of Politics of the city. He is now on his way back, and will be present at the special meeting. He started as soon as he was not field of the call. Mr. Clarkson has declared that he would not be Chairman again, for he was tired of politics and wanted to make some money. He owns stock in a Chicago corporation and is mixed up in several deals out of which he hopes to realize a hand-out of which he hopes to realize a hand-some profit. But Clarkson's friends say that he will accept if the position is offered to him in the right way. He is very ambitious, and Blaine's defeat at Minneapolis was a severe blow to him. Carter and Clarkson are warm personal friends, and those who know him say that the Iowa wheel horse will not take any mean advantage of Thomas. Just how the muddle will be cleared up the public will have to wait patiently to see.

If Carter should find himself only Chair man in name then the same line of reason-ing will apply to Secretary M. C. Comas, of Maryland. He was chosen under the Fes-senden resolution. In short, all the officers of the Executive Committee will print the prefix ex in front of their titles unless re-elected.

As for the control of the Senate it given out that the jig is up ao far as the Re-publicans are concerned. The Montana Legislature looks Democratic, and it is con-ceded that Nebraska and Wyoming have been captured by the fusionists.

PANIC ON A FERRYBOAT.

The Craft Refuses to Stop at the Slip and Keeps On Up Street-All the Passengers Frightened and a Number of Them More or Less Injured.

NEW YORK, Dec. 26.-The ferryboat Fanwood, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, while attempting to enter her slip at the loot of Liberty street, at 12:15 o'clock this morning, crashed into the bridge under full headway, driving the bridge up on West street and breaking down the entrance to the ferry house. On board the boat were some 300 passengers, who were immediately thrown into a panic.

When the crash came four of the passen-When the crash came four of the passengers, Mra. Leamas, 65 years old, her 21-year-old granddaughter, and her two sons, Edward and Harry, were forced against the guardrail of the forward deck in the rush. The girl became alarmed. The guardrail flew open and the girl fell over the nose of the boat into the water. With a scream the old lady jumped in after her, and over went the two men into the icy Hudson. The deck hands came to their assistance at once. deck hands came to their assistance at once, and with the aid of some of the passengers and with the aid of some of the passencers the quartet were dragged back on the boat with ropes that had been thrown to them. Early this morning the party which had come from Philadelphia to spend the day at Whitestone, L. I., started for their deatination, little the worse for their midnight hath.

In the cabin of the boat several persons were slightly injured. John Mason, of Jersey City, was severely cut by glass and was injured by being thrown violently to the floor. The secident was caused by the pin of the eccentric crank getting out of order and refusing to work just as the boat reached the slip.

A SINGULAR CASE.

Death of a Man from Excess of Joy-A

Husband's Sad Fate. ALLENTOWN, PA., Dec. 26.-The body of George Westlake, who died at Long Island City, was interred a day or two ago at Catasauqua. His physician says be died of excessive joy. He was a designer and molder, and he and his wife, by 30 years' work, had saved $15,000. He had been a sufferer from heart trouble for many years, and last August they decided to return to and last August they decided to return to England and spend the remainder of their lives in quiet. Arrangements were partially completed for the trip, and, preparatory to going, Mrs. Westlake started for Boston to draw $700 she had in bank there. She got on the wrong boat, and, instead of going to Boston, landed in New London, Conn. She became hysterical when she found where he was not tore the hank books in where she was, and tore the bank books in her possession to pieces. She grew so vioher possession to pieces. She grew so vio-lent that the authorities found it necessary to lock her up in order to restrain her. Mrs. Westlake grew more violent, and finally lost her reason eutirely. Mr. West-lake was induced to have his wife commit-ted to an asylum, and she was taken to Middletown since then. Mr. Westlake had been a frequent visitor to the asylum, but recently the doctors told him that his presence only aggravated the condition of his wife and refused to allow him to see her. lum notifying him that his wife was much improved, and that he could call and see her at any time. ## A RICH THIEF.

An Aged and Wealthy Mother Jailed fer

Shoplifting in New York. NEW YORK, Dec. 26.-Half fainting and supported on either side by her two sons, wealthy Mrs. "Eladia Rubie" was arraigned in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday down and wept hysterically. She was richly dressed, said she had a fortune of $60,000, had sons living at the Knickerbocker apartment house, Twenty-eighth street and Fifth avenue, and begged 'that they be notified. Although she offered ball for herself she was locked up, but she did not sleep. All night she sat in her cell weeping and mosning.

The meeting between the mother and her sons was most touching. They engaged Lawyer Van Clelland to defend their mother. Justice White held Mrs. "Rubie" mother. Justice White held Mrs. "Rubie" in $500 bail for examination next Thursday. One son offered a check for that amount, but the Justice refused to accept anything but real estate bail; so the prisoner was committed to jail. When led away by Detective Sullivan to be locked up both of the sons kissed their mother, and as the big iron doors shut her from the world the old woman fainted. She ate her Christmas din-ner with 115 other prisoners.

CRAZED ALMOST TO MURDER.

Prominent Photographer Goes Insan and Nearly Kills His Daughter.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 26,-[Special ]-A fearful tragedy was narrowly avoided here last night. George Barker, a prominent resident here, a Mason of high degree and photographer of national reputation, suddenly went insane and attacked his daughter, Marie Barker, a beautiful girl of about 20 years. As she came downstairs Barker knocked her down, kicked her, and pulled her hair out in handfuls.

Barker turned to get some weapon to finish his daughter, when the girl flew upstairs, locked her room door, raised a window and shouted for help. Alexander Porters and a man named Richardson summoned help and Barker was overpowered and medical aid called in. Miss Barker is in a critical condition, and the police have Barker under guard. He is said to be sub-ject to these spells, but never before in such a violent form. The affair is the so-cial sensation of the day.

WIND UP OF THE FUND

Homestead Children Pleased by a Supplementary Distribution.

GRAND TOTAL OF $1,153 96. Toys Given to Delight Them, Necessities

for the Very Needy. TEACHERS WILL NOW TAKE CHARGE

From 9 o'clock yesterday morning until late last night THE DISPATCH'S supplementary distribution to the needy children of Homestead continued in one uninterrupted flow. Even then all the goods were not distributed, and the balance will be given over to the Homestead School Board, who will see that each and every little one is supplied with what is necessary.

The bulk of goods for the little ones had grown to enormous proportions, owing to the splendid success of THE DISPATCH fund. Letters from the children, with their pleading words, were published in this paper and found a wide circulation through Eastern papers copying them. As a result the fund grew and grew. At $800 it was called successful, at $900 it was a splendid affair, and at $1,000 nothing more could be asked. But this was not all. Contributions to the children's fund continued to flow in. until last night the climax and winding up figures were reached in the grand total of $1,153 96, every dollar of which came from those who gave freely and kindly, to those who received most gratefully.

Yesterday's Distribution of Necess The supplementary distribution of yesterday differed from that of Saturday in a few respects, though both were for but one object-the good of the children. Saturday's distribution, with its music, light and pleasure, was intended to add a little to the delights of a Christmas eve. To that end there was given to over 2,400 children, candies, toys, dolls, sleds, etc., until each had their fill.

Yesterday the more severe work began— that of giving away the necessities to the more needy. All afternoon and evening the rooms on Sixth avenue were sought by the rooms on Sixth avenue were sought by the deserving, and not one went away empty handed. Coats, hats, shawls, shoes, and entire suits were given to those that most appreciated them, and even then the hundreds of applicants had not exhausted the treasures of THE DISPATCH children's fund, and the rest of the goods have been given over to the care of the public and parochial school teachers, who will see personally that they do the most good possible. To complete the success of the children's fund the following were of great resistance.

One Killed and One Wounded by United States Troops. LAREDO, TEX., Dec. 26.-Considerable excitement was created here in military circles, caused by the receipt of a telegram from New Laredo over the Mexican lines announcing that Lieutenant West and his company of United States troops came upon a band of bandits en-camped near the Alazan creek and killed one and wounded another. Further partic-ulars are to the effect that the troops came upon the camp first at night fall, Christmas evening. The bandits were ordered to sur-render, but fled instead, delivering a scat-tering fire, which was returned by the A dispatch from Washington says that Canvassing Board Skipping Out Won't Count in Montana.

HELENA, MONT., Dec. 26 .- The fact that wo members of the Canvassing Board of Choteau county have skipped out will not interfere with a recount of the votes of that county, including Box Elder precinct, which was eliminated before, thereby electing a Democrat to the Legislature. The peremptory writ of mandamus ordering the recount and the assuance of a certificate to the candidate having a plurality was addressed to the Board of Canvassers, the Assessor, the Sheriff and the County Clerk to act as members of the Canvassing Board in the order named. The canvass is ordered to begin Tuesday, December 27. Two claimants for the one seat from Choteau county will, it seems cer-tain, put in an appearance next Monday.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. SEVENTH DISTRIBUTION. GIFT OF BOOKS TO SUNDAY SCHOOLS

BY KAUFMANNS. The Number Scattered About 100,000 Candy, Picture Books and Other Good Things for the Homestead Poor-

Cost of the Presents at Least $12,000.

There were many presents given and accepted in Allegheny county yesterday, but there was one feature, which, besides giving additional joy and brightness to the fleeting day, will be remembered with gratitude and pleasure throughout the year and will even stretch to some extent through the years to follow. The one Christmas gift which is useful and instructive, as well as pleasing and ornamental, is a handsome and entertaining book, illustrated in a manner to place the solid contents before the reader in the most attractive manner.

Testerday was the occasion of Kaufmanns' soventh annual free distribution of picture books to the Sunday schools of Pittsburg, Allegheny and surrounding towns. The steady growth of this enterprise has been remarkable. Seven years ago only 10,000 volumes gladdened the hearts of the little ones, and thus season the number distributed reached 100,000. Ten times the original amount were needed to meet the demands of the Work. This shows that the generosity of the Kaufmanns is appreciated by the public as well as church people. Each book contains 32 pages, handsomely bound and finely illustrated. The cost of the books cannot be less and very likely more than 15 cents apiece. This would swell the amount of this year's distribution to nearly $10,000. This is a large amount, to be sure, yet small in the opinion of the Kaufmanns when they consider the result—100,000 happy children. Verliv 'tis more blessed to give than receive. All day long men with drays carrying large boxes were busy landing the books at the church doors, and scholars and superintendents spent the afternoon arranging them on the shelves. Next Sunday the children will have a lot of new and entertaining books to read and bright and attractive stories to relate to their triends.

While these gifts were made entirely unsollicited, many letters were received by the Kaufmanns from the ministers and the Sunday schools huper intendents, praising the method adopted and the good results secured. They tell of the joy with which the c ceived by each church, ranged at the star from 25 to 1,200, according to the size of the church and the other attendant circumstances.

Some philanthropists seek to connect their deeds with the greatest amount of notoriety, but not so with the Kaufmanns. They try to avoid it. Instead of advertising the free distribution of books, they simply and quietly mailed circular letters to the ministers of the churches, asking them the number of books required for their respective Sunday schools. The distribution was made in an unoscentatious but pleasafit manner, and the gifts were received in the same commendable spirit.

All the denominations were remembered, and none were neglected. The Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, Catholic, Baptiss, Methodist Episcopal, Methodist Protestant, Episcopal, Evangelical, Lutheran and annuber of miscellaneous churches were included in the list.

And the poor of Homestead were not forgotten by the Kaufmanns.

The scene at the commissary, the little building on the corner of Fifth avenue and amity street, which had been donated for the purpose of distributing supplies to the needy families, almost baffled description. When the reporter arrived on the spot the first installment was being served, and throughout the day the influx never ceased, It had been heralded about that Kaufmannshad prepared a grand Caristunas treat for the little ones, and the eager, expectant looks on the faces of the little tots was a most pathetic one as they came trooping into the commissary one after the other, not boisterously or in a forward manner, but each one awalting his turn to be served. Grateful-eyed mothers, leading little ones of 9 and 16 years, thankfully accepted their donation, and, with tears of joy in their eyes, turned back to their homes happier than they had been for many a long day. "God bless the Kaufmanns," said one woman, whose eyes betrayed the joyous emotion she felt. "Their generosity has put good, warm clothes on my boys' backs."

Piles upon piles of candy bags lined the counters of quite a large sum of money? With this idea in mind, the writer set to work to estimate, if possible, the cost of the treat. There were, at the very least calculation, 2,000 children who participated in the distribution. As each child received one pound of delicious sweets, chocolates, bon-bons, caramels, etc., this would run the value of the candy alone up to $1,000. When this is added to about 2,000 picture books, it will be seen that the extent of Kaufmanns' contribution to the Homestead children's Christmas treat was not less than $1,200, a surprising realization when one comes to reckon it up. But this, however, is not the extent of Kaufmanns' generosity, as everyone knows. Only last week they sent $635 worth of clothing, wraps and shoes to Michael Sherren, of the Pittsburg trade council and head of the Relies Committee. These goods came precisely in the nick of time, and to-day many a man, woman and child in Homestead is comfortably clothed, who, but for Kaufmanns' timely philanthropy, would have been exposed to the cold. The fitures above can be depended upon as being correct, and thust will be seen that nearly $2,000 worth of supplies have been sent to Homestead by Kaufmanns' alone.
