Conscience - Stricken Henry Eggers Confesses to Being a Deserter

AND PENSION DEFRAUDER.

He Gave His Government Money to His Boy and Was Fearful

THE INNOCENT MIGHT SUFFER.

A Rather Pathetic Story of a Wanderer and Ilis Many Woes.

SERGEANT GRAY'S IMPORTANT ARREST

Henry Eggers, haunted by his own disloyalty and crazed by the belief that justice, long evaded, was about to overtake him, fell into a trap of his own making last night, and is now locked up in the Central police station. By his own confession Eggers has been a deserter from the regular army since 1874, yet he has been drawing a pension from the Pittsburg agency since 1882. He was locked up under peculiar circumstances. When driven to the wall he told to Sergeant Gray a pathetic story of his woes and wanderings.

Eggers is a rather good looking German, He is 42 years old. He applied at the Central police station for a night's lodging and in the course of inquiry that followed his application his rather sad story developed. He said he had recently lived at several different places in Pittsburg, and one question after the other from the Sergeant so confounded him that he finally broke down. For the time he became a mere child.

Was an Old Soldier. Eggers said he had served in the Union army. He was wounded in the back at Gaines' Mills. When the war closed he returned to his home in Illinois. During his absence his wife had died. One of his two children died shortly after his return. He wandered about for a time, but finally decided to return to the army. He enlisted in New York and was assigned to duty on the Second Heavy Artillery at Fort McHenry. He remained in the regular army until 1874, when he says he went off on a furlough, began drinking and was afraid to return. From Baltimore he went to New York, and from New York to Cumberland, Md., and from there he went East to where his only child lived.

Later on Eggers says he came from the West, bringing his boy with him, and both went to Dunbar, where he worked for the Dunbar Furnace Company and at the coke works of the Cambria Iron Company. In 1881, while at Dunbar, he says he applied for a pension and in 1882 a pension of $12 per month was granted him. He says he received no back pay, and that he has been drawing his money regularly at the Pitts-burg pension office since then.

His Conscience Was Troubled. The prisoner save his conscience troubled him continually and night and day he was restless through fear that the United States officers would overtake him. He says he always gave his pension money to his boy. Three years ago he became suspicious that he was being too closely watched and decided to come to Pittsburg. On arriving in this city he went to work for the Union Ice Company. He remained with them for a short time. Again his discontent drove short time. Again his discontent drove him into the world. For a long time he lived on Second avenue. He afterwards went to live on Water street. From one job he went to another. Finally he says he became alarmed lest his boy, to whom he had been giving his pension money, might be dragged into his doings and might be arrested for receiving the money.

Two weeks ago Eggers says he quit his last job. Since then he has not worked, and absolute want had driven him to the prison for protection and forced from him the story of his desertion and his pension

Eggers will be turned over to the United States authorities this morning. He says they can do with him as they please, as any punishment would be a relief from the life he has been leading for 18 years.

DREW A BROTHER'S PENSION.

The Alliance G. A. R. Uncovers a Bogus Veteran, Who Is Arrested.

ALLIANCE, Dec. 28 .- [Special.] -- Samuel S. Mountz, a well-known resident of this city, about 50 years old, was arrrested this morning by United States Marshal Haskell, of Cleveland, for defrauding the Pension Department. The accused impersonated a half-brother named Sylvanus B. Mountz, of Illinois, who enlisted from this place in 1863. Last spring Samuel Mountz wrote to the War Department for a copy of the halfbrother's discharge papers, representing himself as Sylvanus Mountz and claiming that he lind lost the original papers. He got what he wanted and then joined John C. Fremont Post of the G. A. R. in this

His next step was to apply for a pension through a Washington agency, basing his claims on alleged disabling wounds received in the service. He was allowed a pension of $6 a month and back pay of $1,400. The money was sent him several months ago. Some members of Fremont Post, who had earned that he was receiving mail under the names of Samuel and Sylvanus Mounts, suspected some crooked business and had the matter investigated. Then his arrest was arranged for, but the comrades of the post which he had broken into under false pretenses wanted the satisfaction of expos-ing him before the post and at last night's meeting he was uncovered and denounced as a fraud. His arrest immediately tol-lowed. After his arrest the fellow turned over $90 to the marshal who took him in custody, thus making a virtual confession.

The boys were all more or less injured, but Willie Bond suffered the most. He was picked up in an uncon-actions condition. His head was severely cut and it is feared he is internally hurt.

in some cases, runs five or ten feet under the river. Over the mouth of the river end of the tunnel a coffer dam or bulk-head of logs and loose stones is built, through which the water per-colates into the tunnel. The cofferhead for drinking purposes a coke filter can be put into the coffer dam. The advantage claimed for this system is that the tunnel or dam does not get clogged with sand or other impurities as pipes do. The sides of the well and tunnel are lined with brick and cement, and sometimes great difficulty is experienced in boring through quicksand tures on Kindergartens.

Miss Lucy Wheelock, of Boston, deivered an interesting talk to "mothers" on the kindergarten system at the Alinda preparatory school, Fifth avenue and Craig street, yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Miss Wheelock was greeted by even a larger audience than yesterday and commenced with a sketch of the father of the kindergarten system, Friederich Troebel, who was born in Germany.

His childhood, the speaker said, was miserable and lonely, his mother having died when he was very young. He had no companions of his own age. High stone walls surrounded the parental house, which he often tried to scale and soar into the world beyond. "It was the utter misery of my early childhood," Troebel often said in after years, "that moved me to do something for the alleviation of childhood misery such as I experienced." Two of Troebel's great maxims in his kindergarten system were that all development comes through the child's self activity, and the mother should understand the course of race development.

He Was a Born Imitator. "One story of Troebel's childhood is very touching," said Miss Wheelock. "A church was in process of erection opposite his father's house, and he begged the carpenter for chips to fashion one himself, child, which is made such a strong point in kindergarten work. Herbert Spencer has said that if every vestige of man were suddenly swept away except his school books, enough would be left to tell about everything relating to the human race ex-

The rumbling and jarring of the railway trains at the West End works is a source of great annoyance to the excavators. A great many Pittsburg mills are contracting to get their supply of water by this system. Frank Wilcox, Chief Engineer of the Pittsburg waterworks, thinks cept parentage."
Symbols are principally used in teaching in preference to the theoretical system, Miss Wheelock claims that an hour's Miss Wheelook claims that an hour's teaching with symbols is worth a week's theoretical teaching. The kindergarten teaches a child's physical development, but not in the old fashioned way. Children are not told in a military tone of command, to stand with their heels together and their arms stretched at full length. They are asked, instead, how the branches grow on a tree, and to illustrate it with their hands. Consequently what would be torture to them is only play. it is a very fine system, but says the pipe system is cheaper. In Chicago the tunnel runs out under the lake for eight miles to get a purer supply than could be had nearer shore, and at Cleve-land the tunnel is four miles long.

torture to them is only play.

The children are taught to keep a record of the weather in a very original way. At the head of the page, Sunday is represented by a drawing of a church. Tuesday by a ball—that is the day the boys play ball. Saturday is represented by a lot of toys, as that is play day. A dry, wet or snowy day is also pictorially represented. The Humane Society Takes Action to Pre vent Accidents.

The Humane Society held its regular weekly meeting in the dispensary building yesterday afternoon. After due consideration it was ordered that signboards reading "Drivers will please lower their checkreins before ascending this hill," be placed at the foot of every steep hill in Allegheny, Pittsburg and vicinity.

The society's agents were instructed to watch for horses that were smooth shod. A great many accidents have been reported from this cause, and it is the desire of the society to prevent any further complaints. Much gratification was expressed over the result of the society's recommendation re-garding the use of horse blankets. There were very few cases of horses being with-out blankets reported.

COLD WEATHER PARTIES.

HER TALK TOMOTHERS. They Kick Their Heels at the Corner Waiting for Belated Street Cars-Wail Miss Wheelock Continues Her Lec-From One Who Has Been There and Then Been Left.

"Even the noise and rattle of the motors cannot drown the wails and complaints to say nothing of the execrations that are coming from the East End patrons of the Duquesne electric road," said a prominent gentleman who resides on Highland avenue. 'During the summer the many inconveniences and annoyances were borne with as much complacency as could be expected, but the biting winds of winter have caused the discriminations to be more forcibly called to the attention of the patrons, and the result has been that a general rebellion against the methods and manner of conducting the road has been begun. Highland avenue patrons are longing for the days of old when Martin and his rickety coaches did service on that thoroughfare. They were slow, but they were at least sure. The old methods had some good features. The Negley avenue branch has perhaps the worst service of all. From 15 to 30 minutes' wait for a car in such weather as it has been the past few days is not an experience that would tend to make a person's temper even and unruffled.
People along the Wilkinsburg branch are holding corner parties. It is no unusual thing to see five or six people on each corner along Penn avenue awaiting the pleasure of the cars to come.

"It seems to come.

"It seems to be the policy of the management to not let their right hand know what their left hand is doing. It is seldom you can find a conductor who can inform you when you will have to change cars, or at what point you will land if you stay with him. The running arrangements are accounted almost daily such as parson has an changed almost daily, and no person has an opportunity to get accustomed to them. I know a gentleman who stood for 30 minutes on Highland avenue waiting for a car. You can imagine his anxiety, as he was about to catch a train for the East. After waiting for that period, becoming tired, he com-menced to trudge through the snow down showing the strong imitative instinct in the child, which is made such a strong point in had gotten about half way down when he at last discovered a car approaching. He waited patiently for it, but it ran past him like a shot, the motorman pointing his thumb backward in an autocratic way, indicating for him to take the next car. The next car came, but ten minutes more had elapsed before it arrived. The result was that the gentleman was forced to postpone his trip until a later train.

"The habit that conductors and motormen have of running past people after they have been waiting a long while is to say the least extremely disagreeable. A lady with two small children waited for a Highland avenue car for ten minutes in a pouring rain, then had this same experience, except that when the next Highland car did come, the motorman went through the same pan tomime, telling her to wait for the next

"A real estate dealer who sold a large tract of property for a residence on Negley avenue told me to-day that the gentleman who bought it had come to the office and offered to sell it for $1,000 less than he has paid for it. He said he would not live on a street that had a railway on it which was run like that one. He added that whoever was responsible for the management couldn't run a sled going down hill.

"To go into the details of the numerous complaints made would be to talk all day. You can scarcely converse with anyone who travels on the line, who cannot give one or more instances of the bad management."

The Humane Agent Finds a Family Destitute and Suffering.

Agent O'Brien of the Humane Society yesterday discovered a family named Kilgore in Spring alley, Allegheny, who were in a state of absolute destitution. Kilgore is a hod carrier, but does not work much of the time. At home he has a bed to sleep on, and compels his wife and four children to sleep on the floor. There was not a pane of glass in any of the windows, and the wind whistled through the states abilities rough mother and children. Agent O'Brien purchased 26 panes of glass and hired a man to put them in.

He also gave Mrs. Kilgore some money to buy food with, and told Kilgore if he did not brace up and take proper care of his family he would land in jail. About two weeks ago one child died, presumably from exposure, and another is very stek. The society will see that the family does not want in the future.
