

THE SUBMARINE EXPLOSION.—Mr. Colt on Saturday made an experiment at Washington of blowing up a ship, in full of five hundred tons, with his submarine battery. The experiment took place in the presence of large number of persons. Two or three minor explosions were exhibited before the seamen on board the "doomed ship" made their exit. The ship moved slowly, in sailing order, along the navy yard channel, and in a few minutes after leaving her mooring place blew up with a grand explosion, which raised the bow of the vessel completely out of the water, and scattered her fragments in various directions. It would seem that the explosion was made a little too soon, as, had the battery struck the vessel a minute later, the would have been completely destroyed. As it was, the experiment was considered highly satisfactorily.
