Of life cease to harrass and goad it ; After death, give his body to earth whence it rose, And his spirit to Hix who bestowed it."

A FATTHFUL Dog -Some years since, a family residing in one of the Southern states possessed a Newfoundland dog which conceived a strong friendship for the little daughter of its owner. This child he used to escort regularly to school, carrying her satchel in his mouth, and was generally at the door when the hours of her penance were over, to trot along by her side home ward.

One day, the girl, having strayed away without the knowledge of her parents, sauntered along to the water, and was annusing herself by walking upon the string pieces of a pier. The dog, as usual, was her only attendant, and seemed to watch her pranks with much attention and considérable uneasiness. Frequently warned by various persons upon the the wharf, to keep farther from the edge, she never heless, with juvenile way wardness, continued her dangerous pastime, until finally missing her footing, she fell into the water. Instantly the neighborhood was in an uproar ; some ran to loosen a boat, others flung boards into the stream, and a sailor present stripped off his jacket and shoes for a plunge after the little cast away. But Towser fully comprehended the matter at a glance, and before it was fairly known that she was in peril, was by the side of his young mistress, and seized her by her floating dress and was paddling back with his precious burthen to the wharf. The generous Jack tar had now only to leap into a ship's yawl hard by, and pull both of the dripping creatures into it, and depos-ite them upon the dock in safety. Towser, of course, became more than ever : favorite with the family, and held a very enviable rank above others of his species. As his mistress increased in strength and stature she was never let to forget the debt of gratitude due her canine companion, although she had out-grown the necessity of calling upon him for farther services, so that he slept and grew fat upon his laurels, like some old soldier, whose youthful privations and evidences of valor have procured him a pension for the remainder of his pil grainage.

Some five years after this occurence, the fami ly had resolved upon changing their place of residence for the city of St. Augustine. The morning of their departure had arrived ; the schooner which was to convey them to their new home was casting off from the pier, the very one which had been the scene of Towser's the captain became restive, swore he would wait no longer, gave the order, and the craft swept slong the waters with a spanking breeze, and was soon a quarter of a mile from the shore.

The girl and her father were standing at the etern of the vessel, looking back upon the city which they had probably left forever, when suddenly Towser, was seen running to the edge of the wharf with something in his mouth. With a glass they discovered that it was his 'master's pocket handketchief, which had been somewhere dropped upon the road down to the vesel, and which he recollected, with some com-

A Wife worth Having.

The distinguished William Wirt, within six or eight mouths after his first marriage, hecam addicted to intemperance, the effect of which operated strongly upon the mind and health of his wife, and in a few months more she was numbered with the dead. Her death led him to leave the country where he resided, and move to Richmond, where he soon rose to distinction. But his fabits hung about him, and occasionally he was found with jully and frolicksome spirits, in bachanalian revelry. His true friends expostulated with him, to convince him of the injury he was doing to himself. But he still persisted. Ilis practice began to fail off, and many looked upon him as on the road to ruin. He was advised to get married, with a view. of correcting his habits. This he consented to do, if the right person offered. He accordingly paid his addresses to a Miss Gamble. After some months' attentions, he asked her hand in marriage. She replied, " Mr. Wirt, I have been well aware of your intentions for some time back, and should have given you to understand that your visits and attentions were not acceptable, had I not recipro. cated the affection which you evinced for me. But I cannot yield my assent until you make me a pledge never to taste, touch or handle any intoxicating drinks." This reply to Mr. Wirt was as unexpected as it was novel. His reply was, that he regarded the proposition as a bar to all further consideration of the subject and left her. Her course to him was the same as ever-his resentment and neglect. In the course of a few weeks, he went again, and again solicited her hand. But her reply was, her mind was made up. He became indignant, and regarded the terms she proposed as insulting to his honor, and vowed it should be the last meeting they should ever have. He took to drinking worse, and seemed to run headlong to ruin. One day, while lying in the outskirts of the city, near a little grocery or grog-shop, dead drunk, a young lady, who, it is not necessary to name, was passing that way to her home, not far off, bebeld him with his face upturned to the rays of a scorching sun. She took her handkerchiel, with her own name marked upon it, and placed it over his face. After he had remained in that way for some hours. he was awakened and his thirst being so great, he went into the little grocery or grog-shop to get a drink, when he discovered the handkerchief, which he looked at, and then at the name that was on it. After pausing a few minutes, he exclaimed, " Great God, who left this with me ? Who placed it on my face?" No one knew. dropped the glass, exclaiming, " Enough !enough !"

He retired instantly fram the store, forgetting his thirst, but not the debauch, the handkerchief or the lady, vowing, if God gave him strength never to touch, taste or handle intoxicating drinks. To meet Miss G, again was the hardest effort of his life. If he met her in the carriage or on foot, he would dodge the nearest corner. She at last addressed him a uote, under her own hand, inviting hum to the house, which he finally gathered courage enough to accept. He told her if she still bore affection for him, he, would agree to her own terms. Her reply was-" My conditions now are what they ever have been.' "Then," said the disenthralled Wirt, " I accept of of them." They were soon married, and from that day he kept his word, and his affairs brightened, while honors and glory gathered thick upon his brow. Ilis name has been enrolled high in the temple of fune, while his deeds, his patriotism and renown live after him with imperishable How many noble minds might the lustre. young ladies save, if they would follow the example of the heroine-hearted Miss G., the friend of humanity, of her country, and relative of La Fayette .--- [8. ANECDOTE OF GEN. LEE.-General Lee was remarkably slovenly in dress and manners; and was often by the the meanness of his appearance, subjected to ridicule and insult. Lee was once attending Gen. Washington to a place distant from the camp. Riding on they arrived at the house where they were to dine, sometime before the company. He went directly to the prections of conscience, that he had sent his kitchen and demanded something to eat ; when the eook taking him for the servant, told him she would give him victuals in a moment, but he must first help her take off the pot. This laged boldly into the water. His master immeat which she placed for him on the table. tain, and requested thin to throw his vessel in The girl was remarkable inquisitive about the the wind until the animal could near them; he also offered a large sum if he would drop his who, she said, she heard was one of the who, she said, she heard was one of the boat and pick him up, told him of the manner most oddest, and uglicst men in the world, in which he had preserved the life of his daugh-In a few moments she desired the General again to assist her in placing on the pot, and searce had he finished, when she requested him to take the bucket and go to the well. Lee made no objections, but began drawing the water. In the meanwhile, Gen. Washington arrived, an Aid-de-camp was despatched in search of Lee : whom, to his great surprise, he found engaged as above. But what was the confusion of the poor girl on hearing the Aid address the man with whom she had been so familiar by the title of Excellency. The mug fell from her hands and dropping on her knees, she began crying for pardon, when Lee, who was ever ready to see the impropriety of his own conduct, but never willing to change it, gave her a crown; and turning to the Aid observed-" You see, young man, the advantage of a fine coat. The man of consequence is indebted to it for respect; and neither virtue nor abilities without will make him look like a gentleman." THE CLERK AND THE DEVIL .--- A merchants clerk came into a printing office, a short time since, and seeing the papers lying on the table (it being publication day.) unceremoniously helped himself to a copy, and uttered the fol-lowing to the printer's devil : "I s'pose you don't take any pay for just one paper ?" "Not always," replied the devil. Shortly after-"Not wards the devil entered the store where the clerk belonged, and called for a pound of raisine, saying--" I s'pose you don't charge any thing where a fellow don't take but a pound? No, said the clerk, after seeing the diadvan-tage under which he was placed by his own stingy, impodent illiberality towards the pen-nyless prinser's devil, and looking daggers at the little imp, indignantly exclaimed : "When what I get any more papers from a printer, I'll pay

THE TOWANDA

THE preceding figure is to represent the INSEN-SIBLE PERSPIRATION. It is the great evac-nation for the impurities of the body. It will be noticed that a thick cloudy mist issues from all points of the sir-face, which indicates the wonderful process going on within. This perspiration flows uninterruptedly when we are in health, but coases when we are sick. It should be the care of every one to see that it is not abcked... if a cannot be antisined without it. It is thrown off be the care of every one to see that it is not anceded. Life cannot be sustained without it. It is thrown off from the blood and other juices of the body, and dispo-ses by this means, of nearly all impurities within use.— The blood by this means only, works itselfpare. The language of Scripture is, "in theblood is the life." If it over becomes impure, it may be traced directly to the tracement of the increasible perprincipal. it over becomes impure, it may be traced directly to ine stoppage of the insensible perspiration. It never requires any internal medicines to cleanse it, as it always puri-fies itself by its own heat and action, and throws off all the offending humors, through the insensible perspiration. Thus we see, all that is necessary when the blood is stagnant or infected, is toopen the pores, and it relieves itself from all impurity instantly. Its own heat and vi-table of medicine without one particle of medicine. itself from all impurity instantly. Its own heat and vi-tality are sufficient, without one particle of medicine, except to open the pores upon the surface.—Thus we see the folly of taking so much internal remedies. All practicioners, however, direct their efforts to restore the intensible perspiration, but it seems to be not always the proper one. The Thompsonians for instance, steams.

insensible perspiration, out it seems to be not always the proper one. The Thompsonians for instance, steams the Hydropathist shrouds us in wet blankets, the Ho mopathist deals out infinitissimals, the Allopathist bleeds and doses us with mercury, and the blustering quack gorges us with pills, pills. But one object only is in view, viz: to restore the in-sensible perspiration. If this can be done, they say, we will take care of the rest. It will be seen, therefore thet all physicians understand alike what is necessary to that all physicians understand alike what is necessary a recovery, how much they may differ as to the mo of obtaining it. f obtaining it. To give some idea of the amount, and consequently the importance of the insensible perspiration, we will state that the learned Dr. Lewenhock, and the great Boer-haave, ascertained that five-eights of all we received into the stomach, passed off by this means. In other words, if we cat and drink eight pounds per day, we evacuate five pounds of it by the insensible perspiration. This is none other than the used up particles of the

This is none other than the used up porticles of the, blood, and other juices, giving place to the new and fresh ones, by carrying with it all the impurities within up to the surface. To check this, therefore, is to retain in the system five eights of all the virulent matter that nature demands should leave the body. And even when and intestines must relieve themselves of all their worn-out particles, and poisonous humors, and they must go through the pores as nature designed. Let me ask now, every candid mind, what course seems the most reasonable to pursue, and unstop the pores, after they are closed and let the perspiration flow, that the blood may relieve itself of its impurities ! Would you give physic to unstop the pores! Or would you apply something that would do this upon the surface, where the clogging actually is ! Would not this be com-mon sense? And yet I know of no physician who makes an internal application to effect it. The reason I assign is, that no medicine within their knowledge, I preassign is, that no medicine within their knowledge. is capable of doing it. Under these circumstances, I pro-sent to physicians and to all others, a preparation that has this power to the fullest extent, --It is McAllisters All-Hsaling Ointment or the World's Salve. It is generally seated in the sides of the neck, behind the cars and under the Ain, yet scarcely any part of the body is exempt. It concines falls upon the lungs and produces consump-tion. It is a dreadful circumstance, that this disease is fansmitted from parents to childhen. The Salve will stract all the morbid matter by causing the sores to dis-harge; and then let then the Solar Tincture be used to any it to one point, which done, a continuance of the finter it to one point, which done, a continuance of the Diatment will completely remove this disorder. It is a ramedy that forbids the necessity of so many and deleterious drugs taken into the stomach. riably, when worms are present. Of course the remedy is not applicable to the complaint. Now let me say to parents, that this salve will always tell if a child has and deleterique drugs taken into the stounch. It is a remedy that neither sickens, gives inconveni-ence, or is dangerous to the intestines. This remedy is probably the only one now known, that is capable of producing all these great results. Its great value is in restoring at once, the circulation of the juices when checked, or disarranged by cold or other causes. It preserves and defends the surface from all derangement of its functions, while it keeps open the channels for the blood to avoid all its impurities and di-pose of all its useless particles. There is a connection parents, that this salve will always tell if a child has worms. Let it be rubbed on the neck and chest, to keep them from going up, and then down on the bowels and they will soon leave. It will drive every vestige of them away. "This is a simple and safe cure. No mjury can come of it in any way. But should it be cholic, infla-tion of the bowels, or grippe of the intestines, it will ef-fectually cure them as the worms. There is probably no medicine on the face of the earth at the come of worms. pose of all its useless particles. There is a connection barmony, and feasibility in all that defices contradiction. barmony, and feasibility in all that defices contradiction. It is a simple, but wonderful principle that preserves in healthy operation the entire machinery of our being. It indissolubly holds together the surface and the intermal viscers, the internal viscers and the surface. They are inseparably connected and cannot be disjoined. The surface is the outlet of five-eights of the bile and used up matter within. It is pierced with millions of openings to relieve the intestines. Stop up these porce, and death knocks at your door. It is rightly termed All-Healing, for there is scarcely a discase, external or în-ternal, that it will not benefit. It will be found the most useful as well as the cheapest family medicine in the world. I have used it for the last fourteen years will success without a parallel. I havened it for all discuss

They may bring their oils far and near, and mine will restore sponsibility, and I declare before Heaven and man, that not in one single case has it failed to benefit, when the the hair two cases to their one. These are no idle words, for I am ready to back it with any reasonable amount. 107 1 am ready to back it with any reasonable amount. Old Sores, Mortification, Ulcers, &c.—There is no ef-ectual way of curing these, but drawing off the putid matter. To msrely dry it up would only endanger one' health more. That some sores are an outlet to the im purities of the system, is the only reason, because they cannot pass off through the natural channels of the In-sensible Perspiration If such sores are healed up, the impurities much have some ather outlet or it will and an

not in one single case has it failed to benefit, when the psiont was within the reach of moral means. I never, to my recellection had more than five or fir among the thousands who have used it, say that it was not favorable to their complaint. On the contrary I have had hundreds return voluntarily, and in the warmat and most pathetic language speak in its praise. I have had physicians, learned in the profession; I have had hi-nisters of the gospel, Judges on the bench, aldermen and lawyers, genilemen of the highest crudition and multitudes of poor, use it in every variety of way, and there has been but one voice, one united, universal voice saying "McAllister your continent is good." Consumption.—Of all discasses, we find this the most important, and concerning which we meet with the most opposition. If can hardly be credited that a salve can have more effect upon the lungs, sented as they are with in the system. But we say once for sall, that this oint-ment will reach the lungs quicker than any medicines that can be given internally. Every body consents to the fact that if healing medicine could be applied on the lungs, there would be great hopes of recovery. The difficulty is to got the medicine them. Now the Selve has the wonderful virtue of extracting the putrid hu-mors from all external sores by causing them to dia-charge. In like manner it operates upon internal effec-tions by driving all the impurities through the poirs to the sartice. Thous with consumption, if placed bpon the chest, it penetrates directly to the lungs, esparates the poisonous particles that are consuming them and ex-pets them from the system.
