The Parmer's Ode. -

Let Commerce spread her flowing sails And trade her path pursue, Without the Farmer what avails, Or what without him do?

Let learn'd Divines and Lawyrrs boast, Let Physic follow in her tain, The Farmer's skill is valued most In making golden sheaves of Grain.

Let Statesmen rack their brain with care Some mighty project to fulfill, The Parmer's wiser projects are His flocks to feed, his grounds to till.

His orisons at early dawn, To the Almighty Power he makes, Then treads the dew bespangled awn, Or pleasure in light labor takes,

He hears the robbin's early song, And the ruda notes of cheerful swains While heedful of his crops, along He travels o'er his own domains

A stranger he's to fretful care, No husy scenes perplex his life, Contented with his homely fare, His children and a prudent wife.

He labors to improve his soil. While Ceres shows him her regard. And blesses all his careful toil, In fruitful crops for his reward.

No prodigal nor careless waste On his domain is ever found: With open hand he yet will haste, To help the poor till they abound. And now his earthly labor's past,

And old in virtue he-has grown, To crown his well spent life at last Kind Heaven shall claim him for its own.

"What are you Doing ?"

What are youldoing, young man? You hands appear never to be soiled, and your bo-som is without a speck or wrinkle. You never work, and have time to devote to any amusement. Did you ever ask yourself, what would be the consequence of an idle life?—
Do you wish us to tell you? Go to the State prison, or to the work-house, and see for yourself. You will come away a better man, we'll be bound to say.

And you, sir, what are you doing? You are often seen at the door of a groggery.-Know you not the thoughts of many who see "There is a young man making a fool of himself. His cheek, his eye, his words, his general appearance, indicate it." Then why not turn about and become a man respected! Just turn over a new leaf to-day, and it will be the saving of you. Persist in your drinking and loafing propensities, and they will lead you down, down, down to destruction. This you know-at least you ought to know it. for you have examples enough before you to confirm the fact.

What are you doing, young man with a cigar in your mouth and whip in your hand?— On an excursion of pleasure, hey? You better take the money you pay for horse hire, and cancel your shoemaker's or your tailor's bill. Your extravagant habits will make a pauper of til you are able.
What are you doing, Miss Folly! No. won der you are considered a walking dry good dealer's sign, with such an abundance of fine clothing on your back. But who likes you the hetter for it ! Would it not be as well to keep at home and learn to sew and knit, to sweep the floor and rinse the clothes as to dash about the streets? Ask your mother, and if she has common sense, she will tell you so Your neighbors will, we know. Who do you suppose will be able to support you, if you continue to cut such a figure ? Scarcely a man in Christendom. Be wise then : dress neatly. but not gaudily. Spend less time in the streets than you do in the kitchen, and you will never regret it.

To all, we say, go straight forward in the path of duty, turning neither to the right nor the left, and you will be such persons as high Heaven looks down upon with approbation.

Napoleon Crossing the Alps.

Artists have delinented him crossing the Alpine heights, mounted on a fiery steed. The plain truth is, he ascended the St. Bernard in the grey surtout which he usually wore, upon a mule, led by a guide belonging to the country, evincing, even in the difficult passes, the abstraction of a mind occupied elsewhere, conversing with the officers scattered on the road, and then, at intervals, questioning the guide who attended him, making him relate particulars of his life, his pleasures, his pains, like bia, in the way of an apple tree, on which are an idle traveler, who has nothing better to do. spples as large as a man's fist and a number This guide, who was quite young, gave him a simple recital of the details of his obscure existence, and especially the vexation he felt, be- Spring. cause, for want of a little money, he could not marry one of the girls of his valley. The First Consul, sometimes liastening, sometimes questioning the passengers with whom the mountain was covered, arrived at the Hospice, where the worthy monks gave him a warm reception. No sooner had he alighted from his mule than he wrote a note, which he handed to his guide desiring him to be sure and at him." deliver it to the quarter master of the army, who had been left on the other side of St. Ber-

In the evening, the young man on returning to St. Pierre learned with surprise what powerful travelerlit was whom he had guided in the morning, and that Gen. Bonaparte had ordered that a house and a nice piece of ground should be given to him immediately, and that he should be suppled, in short, with the means requisite for marrying and for realizing all the dreams of his modest ambition. This mountaineer died not long since, in his own country, the owner of land given to him by the ruler of the world. This singular act of benificence, at a moment when his mind was engaged by such mighty interests, is worthy of attention. If there were nothing in it but a mere conqueror's caprice, dispensing at random, good or evil, alternately overthrowing empires and rearing a cottage, it may be useful to record such caprices, if only to tempt the masters of the earth to imitation; but such an act reveals something more. The human soul, in those moments when it is filled with ardent desires, is disposed to kindness ; it does good by way of meriting that which it is soli-citing of Providence. Thier's History of

The First Sleep.

BY THE AUTHOR OF THE "PURITAR'S GRAVE."

When man first awoke to his new-made being, it was of course without reflection, for he was unconscious of the state from which he 10se, but when he awoke from sleep, it was from a weaker to a stronger sense of being. and his walking was as gradually developed as his sleeping had been. The mystery of sleep was not revealed till the sleep was over, nor its beauty apprehended till the frame was awake again, even as the riddle of life is not solved till life be ended. Waking from sleep was beautiful, both for its novely and for the weet refreshment which it brought.

It seemed to make the world anew, for with Adam's first waking the world itself was waking again; the morning songs of the birds sounded gay ; there was a livelier look of the trees as their leaves trembled in the morning breeze and gleamed to the glancing of the sun's earliest rays: the little flowers which had folded their plussoms up for the repose of the night at the departure of vesterday's sun, now opened their beauties to the light, and by the gladness of their graceful forms looked to the day a welcome which they could not speak; the very air felt new and fragrant, and there was an especial source of wonder in the newly risen sun. Thus, a fresh and pleasant impulse was given to thought, and a new topic of adoration to the invisible Creator. Gladness is gratitude, and pure joy is praise to the Maker of all things. With renewed wonder and increased delight man looked upon the awakened animals moving gracefully around him, and there was a greater interest in the being of the second day than there had been in that of the first. At first he had looked upon the world with pleased admiration; but after his first sleep he regarded it with curiosity, and a spirit of philosophical investigation—and as his mind was not derkened by sin nor clouded by passion, as nothing, of the evil principle had yet been introduced or developed, knowledge and inquiry were purely satisfactory and unimpeded; he sought not with a mad ambition for knowledge that was too high for him; he was not wearied in his inquiries nor baffled in his pursuit; but on the contrary, all that he sought was accessible, and all that he acquired was delightful.

There is something truly divine in the pure development of thought, in the consciousness of a reflecting power; and the world looks more beautiful in proportion as it is regarded with an intellectual attention. As man's being is not complete without his intellectual powers, so his pleasure in being is not complete without the exercise of those powers. and these powers were developed and awakened by man's first sleep. He was taught by the closing of a bodily eye to open the eye of his mind. How different man's first eleep from the nights of pain, of anxiety, and even of horror, that have since been passed on earth But even yet, " day unto day uttereth speech, night unto night showeth knowledge," if man were wise enough to learn.

CHEERFULNESS .- Cheerfulness freshens the heart, and makes it healthy and vigorous. The gloom and shadows that pass over the mind. make man wretched and miserable; but the influence of sweet cheerfulness pass over in you, or something worse. Reform to-day.— like pleasant summer breezes, making creation. Throw away your cigar, and ride no more unwere it not warmed by the genial, sunny rays of cheerfulness. Spring with its smiles gladdens the earth, but when summer comes, nature bursts into a strain of cheerfulness tha makes the very face of all things to shine with beauty and fraitfulness. Then let man rejoice and be glad,

Boy Killed By a Dog .- Aboy about seven years old, son of Mr. Eslinger, of Greenfield, (W. T.) was going on an errand with his brother, a little older, when they met a neighbor ing young lad accompanied by a dog. The boys shook hands with each other, at which the dog, seemingly taking offence, sprang towards the younger of the Eslingers. and tore his head, throat and arms in a shock ing manner. The boys attempted beating off the dog, but failing in this, they immediately ran for aid to some friends, who, on arriving, found the boy had expired.

CAN SHE SPIN ?-A young girl was present ed to James 1. as an English prodigy, because she was deeply learned. The person who introduced her boasted of her proficiency in ancient Languages. "I can assure your majestv," said he, " that she can both speak and write Latin, Greek, and Hebrew." "These are rare attainments for a damsel," said James; but pray tell me, can she spin ?"

A CURIOSITY .- The Columbia, Pa., Spy ays. There is quite a curiosity at the residence of Mr. Charles N. Wright, near Columof blossoms. The blossoms have been coming out, from time to time, since early in the

To STOP A RUNAWAY HORSE .- The Bos ton Journal gives the following receipt:

" One way to stop a frightened horse when he is running away, is for the crowd on all sides to sing out at the top of their lungs, ... whoa! whoa!" and give him a general broadside of hats and canes, and to poke umbrella

A READY RETORT .-- A drunken lawyer go ing into church, was observed by the minister who addressed him thus :- "I will bear wit ness against that sinner in the day of judge-The lawyer shaking his head with drunken gravity, replied,-" I have practised twenty years and always found that the greatest rascal is the first to turn State's evidence.

CARTER AND PARKE. - The Court of Errors, at Trenton, on Friday, affirmed the judgments in the case of J. Carter and Peter W. Parke, so that the prisoners will be executed according to their sentence, at Belvidere, on Tuesday, the 22d day of August, inst.

WEALTH is no proof of moral character, nor poverty of the want of it. On the contrary, wealth is often the presumptive evidence of dishonesty; and poverty the negative evidence of innocence.
