

are other steamers authorized under contracts made in pursuance of law by the Postmaster General, making an addition, in the whole, of eighteen war steamers, subject to be taken for public use. As further contracts for the transportation of the mail to foreign countries may be authorized by Congress this number may be enlarged indefinitely.

The enlightened policy by which a rapid communication with the various distant parts of the globe is established, by means of American built sea steamers, would find an ample reward in the increase of our commerce, and in making our country and its resources more favorably known abroad; but, the national advantage is still greater, of having our naval officers made familiar with steam navigation; and of having the privilege of taking the ships already equipped for immediate service at a moment's notice; and will be cheaply purchased by the compensation to be paid for the transportation of the mail in them, over and above the postage received.

A just national pride, no less than our commercial interests, would seem to favor the policy of augmenting the number of this description of vessels. They can be built in our country cheaper and in greater numbers than in any other in the world.

I refer you to the accompanying report of the Postmaster General for a detailed and satisfactory account of the condition and operations of that department during the past year. It is gratifying to find, within so short a period, that the reduction in the rates of postage, and notwithstanding the great increase of mail service, the revenue received for the year will be sufficient to defray all the expenses, and that no further aid will be required for that purpose.

The first of the American mail steamers authorized by the act of the third of March, 1845, was completed and entered upon the service on the first of June last, and is now on her third voyage to Bremen, and other intermediate ports. The other vessels authorized under the provisions of that act are in course of construction, and will be put upon the line as soon as completed. Contracts have also been made for the transportation of the mail in a steamer from Charleston to Havana.

A reciprocal and satisfactory postal arrangement has been made by the Postmaster General with the authorities of Bremen, and no difficulty is apprehended in making similar arrangements with all other Powers with which we may have communications by mail steamers except Great Britain.

On the arrival of the first of the American steamers, bound to Bremen, at Southampton, in the month of June last, the British post office created the collection of discriminating postage on all letters and other mail matter, which was taken out to Great Britain, or which was taken to the British post office on their way to France or other parts of Europe. The effect of the order of the British post office is to subject all letters and other matter transported by American steamers to double postage, one postage having been previously paid on them to the United States, while letters transported in British steamers are subject to pay but a single postage.

This measure was adopted with the view of protecting the British line of mail steamers now running between Boston and Liverpool, and if permitted to continue, must result in an end to the transportation of all letters and other matter by American steamers, and give to British steamers a monopoly of the service.

A just and fair reciprocity is all that we demand, and on this we must insist. By our laws such discrimination is made against British steamers bringing letters into our ports, but letters arriving in the United States are subject to the same rate of postage, whether brought in British or American vessels. I refer you to the report of the Postmaster General for a full statement of the facts in the case, and of the steps taken by him to correct this inequality, which has exerted all the power conferred upon him by the existing laws.

The minister of the United States at London brought the subject to the attention of the British government, and is now engaged in negotiations for the purpose of adjusting reciprocal arrangements, which shall be equally just to both countries. Should he fail in concluding such arrangements, and should Great Britain insist on enforcing the unequal and unjust measure she has adopted it will become necessary to request additional powers on the Postmaster General, in order to enable him to meet the emergency, and to put our own steamers on an equal footing with British steamers engaged in transporting the mail between the two countries; and I recommend that such powers be conferred.

In view of the existing state of the country, it may not be inappropriate, in closing my communication, to call to mind the words of wisdom and admonition of the first and most illustrious of my predecessors, in his farewell address to his countrymen.

That greatest and best of men, who served our country so long, and loved it so much, forewarned with "serious concern," the danger to our country of characterizing parties by geographical discriminations—northern and southern, eastern and western—whence designing men endeavor to excite a belief that there is a difference of local interests and views, and to seduce our country against it.

So deep and solemn was his conviction of the importance of the Union and of preserving harmony between its different parts, that he desired to his countrymen in that address, "it is a solemn moment that you should properly estimate the immense value of your national Union for collective and individual happiness; that you should cherish a cordial, habitual and inviolable attachment to it; accustoming yourselves to think and to speak of it, as a palladium of your political safety and prosperity; watching for its preservation with jealous anxiety; discountenancing whatever may suggest a suspicion that it can in any event be abandoned; and indignantly frowning upon the first dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the rest, or to enlarge its frontiers by the acquisition of territory by war."

After the lapse of half a century, these admonitions of Washington fall upon us with all the force of truth. It is difficult to estimate the immense value of our glorious Union of consolidated states, to which we are so much indebted for all that constitutes us a great and happy people. How unimportant are all our differences of opinion, upon minor questions of public policy, compared with its preservation; and how scrupulously should we avoid all agitating and partying tendencies, separated by geographical lines, whereby it may be weakened and endangered.

Looking the blessing of the Almighty Ruler of the Universe, upon your deliberations, it will be my highest duty, no less than my sincere pleasure, to co-operate with you in any measures which may tend to promote the honor and enduring welfare of our common country.

JAMES K. FOLK.

THE NATIONAL ERA:

The leading purpose of this journal is, the discussion of the question of Slavery, and the advocacy of the main principles of the Liberty Party. Due attention is given to Social and Political Questions of general importance; nor are the interests of a Pure Literature overlooked.

It aims to preserve a faithful record of important events; of inventions or discoveries affecting the progress of Society; of public documents of permanent value; and, during the sessions of Congress, to present such reports of its proceedings, as will convey a correct idea not only of the action, but of its spirit and policy. The debates on the exciting subjects of Slavery and the Mexican War, expected to arise in the next Congress, will occupy a large share of its columns.

Arrangements have been made for extending and enriching its already valuable Department of Home and Foreign Correspondence.

It is printed a month ahead of the very finest quality, in the best style, at $2.00 a year, payable in advance.

The generous spirit in which the Era has been welcomed by the public Press, and the very liberal patronage it has received during this, the first year of its existence, encourages us to hope for large accessions to our circulation, and to the use of active persons. As well it might be required to eat a separate dish in order to nourish each particular part of the body, so we require a different remedy for every apparently different ailment. The truth is all diseases arise from one cause, acting in different parts of the body. This doctrine is self-evident that but few at the present day dispute it.

Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills remove this cause wherever it is located, because they enter the circulation and aid the salutary workings of Nature to expel the offending matter. Beware of Counterfeits. Remember the only original and genuine Indian Vegetable Pills have the signature of William Wright written with a pen on the top of each box.

PULMONARY CONSUMPTION.—From its having almost always baffled the most skillful medical treatment, has very justly been termed the "Opportunities of Physicians," and, until within a few years, been generally considered incurable, although many medical men of the highest standing, among whom may be mentioned Lacaze and his friend Bayle—both distinguished authors, admit that this much dreaded disease may be cured, if treated in season, and when the lungs are not completely destroyed. This remedy which we now offer, Wright's Balsam of Wild Cherry, for the cure of this disease, not only emanates from a regular Physician, but has also been well tested in all the complaints for which it is recommended. It is not my intention, therefore, either to cloak it in mystery, or to any way deceive the public by overrating its virtues, or to correspond, I shall simply endeavor to give a brief statement of its usefulness, and flatter myself that its surprising efficacy will enable me to furnish proof, which will satisfy the most incredulous, that Consumption may be cured. CAN BE CURED, if this medicine be resorted to in time.
