The United States claim to own more than 1.000,800,000,000 cres of unsettled lands.—SEXEER Doc. 406; Conorass, let

A billion acres of unsold land Are lying in grevious dearth; And millions of men in the image of God Are starving all over the earth ! Oh tell me ye sons of America, How much men's souls are worth!

Ten hundred million of acres good, That never knew spade or plow-And a million of souls in our goodly land, Are pining in want, I trow; And orphans are caying for bread this day, And widows in misery bow.

To whom does these acres of land belong, And why do they thriftless lie!

And why is the widow's lament unheard, And stifled the orphan's cry? And why are the poor-house and prisons full, And the gallows-tree built high?

Those millions of acres belong to man; And his claim is,—that he NEEDS!
And his title is signed by the hand of God— Our God, who the raven feeds. And the starving soul of each famished man, At the throne of justice pleads.

Ye may not heed it, ye haughty men, Whose hearts as rocks are cold— But the time shall come, when the fiat of God For the voice of the great I AM hath said, In thunder shall be told; That the Land shall not be sold.

Work for March.

As the time has arrived when every culturist's plan for the season should be matured-all his arrangements should have been completed, in order that there may be no hindrances occurring to intermot him in a vigorous prosecution of all his farm merations, we shall endeavor, in a friendly wav, to tell all that should claim precedence during the present month. But before we beginsour enumeration of the things to be done we would be permitted to admonish all, that system, order and regularsuccess,-that whatever may be done should be done well, as half work farming is never to be tolhe can properly attend to, as every acre so cultivahis profits. Nothing but the most imperious necessity should induce any one to put more acres in corn than he can manure well, unless the soil is already in a state of such fertility as to justify the belief of a productive yield. Corn being a crop that requires much labor and great strength of soil to ensure profits, should never extensively be undertaken without due culculation being made as to results. The ambition of having many broad acres covered with it, without one should have the ability to do justice both in putting in the crop and tending réputation of the agriculturist whilst it most generally tends to the improvement of the soil.

With these premonitory remarks we shall direct attention to what should be done

ON THE FARM.

Sowing of Clover Seed .- As we hold it to be an much winter killed after sowing the clover seed ing one. wheat plants encourage a disposition to tiller in them of the year. and fill up many places that would otherwise remain. the product of the field.

We do not recom state so soon as the wheat crop may be harvested mend lime as a panacea for the rot or any thing every field which may be thus situated should be else connected with the disease of potatoes, but both limed and plastered. Where it may not be purely because it is an excellent manue-for we convenient for the owner to put on a full dose of eschew all specifics for the potato malady. lime at that time, we would recommend the appliration of 10 bushels per acre and one of plaster .that time to become firmly rooted in the soil.

Clorer Fields.-Sow over every acre you may have set in clover a bushel of plaster sew early in nation and repair so that every temptation be taken the morning while the dew is on the ground.

Thus work. No young orchard should be set out in a treated, if given one years's protection from the worn out field, until that field is liberally manured stock, they may be converted into fair pastures, re—and the ground be subsoiled. The holes should here the eye of the owner, and make a source of Preparation of Corn Ground.-As every com grower should make his arrangements so that he may be able to plant his com at the earliest period allowable in the latitude in which he may be located he should at once go ahead, haul out his manure, spread and plow it in so soon as he may be justified in doing so by the weather. When that time may be, in a country like ours, must be determined by the judgment of the corn planter himself. all that we can say upon upon the subject is, that down with water around the roots, taking care to each should make it a moral duty to be forward in tread the earth tirmly around each tree as planted, spread. would be better that plaster were sown on all the manure, as it gives fixidity to it, prevents the lose its most active nutriment principle, and prolongs its

With regard to the quantity of manure to be applied to an acre of corn land, it is difficult to precribe what is the right quantity. The corn plant is a greedy feeder, and is difficult to be over-fed. It may, however, be very safely affirmed, that 20 double horse cart loads is a reliable allowance to to be given to an acre of corn. With what quantity under the influence of a favorable season, deep plowing and cleanly culture, a large crop may with certainty, be calculated upon.

As to distance of rows, that is with corn growers so much of a mooted point, that it might be considered almost an inviduous task for any one to undertake to say what is the right distance. Without assuming such an extreme position as would be that of undertaking to settle a point that has been debated for more than a century without any conclusion being arrived at, we may, in a spirit of humility, be permitted to state that, in course of our practice, on good ground, well manured, we have found 3 feet each way a very eligible distance. This allows ample room to work the com until it is fit to be laid by, as also for a free circulation of sun and air. At this distance we have left 2 stalks in a hill and found it answered well. This however, would be too close on poor land, unless the manuring were carried to a very high point-theretere, the question of of distance, must, of necessity, be left to the grower who alone is able to judge to what extent his land will bear to be taxed.

With regard to the depth of plowing for com, we go for the utmost depth that may be found practicable to be reached by the power and capacity of the team as we believe the deeper the pastures the more fuxuriant will the corn grow, and the better will it be able to resist the influences of excessive rain ane drought We go, too, for exact plewing and thorough pulverization, the accordance of all blaks, and the breaking of every clod.

Outs .- There is perhaps no crop of such uncertain product. The fault is not however, with grain, but ity, in whatever may be done, are indispensible to the grower. To this crop is assigned most generally, the poorest field on the farm, and under such circumstances how can it be expected to yield othercrated, as it can only end in disappointment. No wise than in a stinted measure. But give the oat a farmer should undertake to cultivate more land than fair chance and it will vindicate claim to being a remunerating crop. We have well attested facts betor, must necessarily prove to be a drawback upon fore us from 50 to 100 bu, to the acre being grown and we do know two cases in which fields of 40 acres averaged 60 bushels in the acre. These crops were grown on soils which were fertile.

It may be opportune to remark here, that lands intended for oa's should be got ready as soon as the frost is well out of them. They should be plowed well and deeply and thoroughly pulverized with the harrow and roller. Two bushels of oats to the acre should then be sown and harrowed in several tmes. This being done, a heavy roller should be passed over the field, so as to consolidate the it afterwards, is that kind of ambition, which, in its | s iil. If he has not money to buy lime for we advise who may not have already done so, to 100 or 50 acres, let him be content to begin with five sow 12 or 15 lbs. of claver seed on every acre of acres: that quantity once limed, he will find means kand which they may set in wheat. If the wheat is to lime 10 acres the next year, and 20 the succeed-

CHALLENGE! CHALLENGE! E bave observed very petiently for a year past the W severed attempt by some of our irakernity, to force a reputation which their professional skill alone must fail to give them. And we would continue our silent observation, under the consciousness of an unbolstered merit, were it not more than probable that this species of fanfaronade may divert the public eye from a candid examination into the merits of the multitude of profes-ors of the Darguerresn art. We would see ment seek an honomble publicity, and thereby win for itself golden opinions; but we despise that miserable chicanery by which mere pretence gains an ovation over genuine worth. It is to make this vaulting ambition overleap itself or withdraw its spurious claims, that we now trespass on its fancied security, by throwing the glave for an honorable test of skill. Our gage is $500 that the average of a given number of daguerreotypes executed at the Daguerrean Fallery of M. P. SIMONS, 179 Chestnut street, will exhibit a greater amount of perfection in the art than any similar av erage number from any other gallery in the United States.
