Farming in Texas.

A Texan farmer, who removed from Sumner county, Ala., which is said to be one of the richest counties in the State, communicates to the Texan Banner, the result of his experience, touching the relative advantages of the two places considered in an agricultural point of view, and declares decidedly in favor of the State of Texas.

With good laws well administered, with good schools and academies, religious associations and good preachers, upon all sides flourishing towns and convenient places of doing business, society excellent and cultivated, security of person and property, peace and prosperity everywhere, surrounded by good neighbors and kind friends as I ever had in my life, myself and family enjoying excellent health, a mild climate, fertile soil, fine farming country, rich natural pastures, open to every one, and unobstructed way of passage and outlet on every side, I feel indeed that I am bettered by my removal to Texas, and truly wish that my old neighbors of Alabama were here to enjoy our pleasant and friendly country with us.

POTATO DISEASE; OR ROT.—We have received from Rev. C. S. GORDON of Hartford, Ct., an article first published in the Hartford Courant, in reference to the potato disease. An enumeration of some of the causes assigned for this malady is given from an English paper, the principle of which are:—Attacks of parasitical fungi, insects, (the most of all speculations,) says the English authority, frost, lightning, exhausted vitality, bad cultivation, manures, miasmata, such as produce cholera in men, and other epidemics. Mr. G. thinks none of these appear tenable, "unless it be the last."

Mr. G. holds that the leaves and stalks are first effected, through this atmospheric influence, and that the vitiated juices are transmitted to the tubers, thus laying a foundation for their disease and decay. Its effects, he believes, are something in proportion to the stage of growth the tubers are in when the tops are attacked. Hence he observes:—"If the tubers were but half grown, the stalk would be proportionately green, and the injurious process would be no longer continued. If the potatoe was nearly ripe, still the process might proceed, and acid food be transmitted sufficient to cause its decay in the course of a few months. And does not this," he continues, "account for the fact that potatoes which appear fair and sound for some time after they are harvested, ultimately betray symptoms of disease, and in the course of the winter become worthless? They were inoculated with the disease and in the process of time infection breaks out—Upon this theory different varieties would suffer unequally, being more or less hardy, and the variety on different soils might also be differently affected."

"Should the enquiry be made, why some fields either in whole or in part, escape the ravages of this disease, while contiguous crops are entirely ruined, the reply is, that it will be in season to answer the question, when the interrogator shall explain why some peach trees escape the yellow, while others wither and die under the same sky, or some pear trees escape the blight, while neighboring ones are ruined; and especially why the first played such 'fantastic tricks' in a field of corn, plying here and there some whole rows, and then again sparing nearly every alternate hill?"

As to remedies, Mr. G. thinks it is "by no means certain that a remedy may not yet be discovered," and he advises that experiments be multiplied every succeeding year. His "chief hope," however, is that "in the course of a few years the cause of the injury in the atmosphere will gradually disappear."

FAZELING IN SUMMER.—The atmosphere, no matter what its temperature, has always the power of absorbing a certain quantity of moisture. This process is known by the name of evaporation: by it moist bodies are deprived of their superabundant moisture, and that the more rapidly when the air is dry, warm, and moved by a brisk breeze. Evaporation is always attended by a vast loss of caloric; and thus man may be frozen to death in the hottest day of summer—the hotter the day, the quicker the process. For, by dressing him in flannel moistened with ether, the evaporation will be rapid, and the quantity of caloric extracted from his body to form the vapor so great, that he will be shortly deprived of that portion of vital heat essential to existence. The experiment may be less dangerously tried by wrapping a bottle in less dipped in ether, and exposed to the sun. In a few minutes the water will be frozen.

A Vermont paper contains an advertisement of a farm for sale, and as an inducement to purchase, says,—"There is not an Attorney within fifty miles of the neighborhood."

SUGGESTIONS TO FARMERS.—I fancy to myself, when I hear persons who live on the rich and fertile prairies of the west, praise the luxuriance of their soil, and boast of the bountiful crops they yield with little labor, that they ought to be regarded somewhat as we now look upon those early settlers in the Mohawk valley, who, it is said, were in the habit of carting the manure made upon their lands to the river, and throwing it in, for fear, that should it remain, their lands would become too rich.

In their wisdom, supposing their lands could never be exhausted, they continued to plow the same fields, until at last "a change came o'er the spirit of their dreams," and they found to their cost that the lands they supposed inexhaustibly fertile, had become sterile and unproductive; and such I think will be the result of the present system of cultivation pursued by our western friends. Chemistry shows us that by taking a succession of crops off from the same ground one year after another, without any return to it, the inevitable effect must be ultimately, that it will lose its fertility. The land is of our country, especially the richer portions of it, have quite too commonly met this usage. A few years since it was not unfrequently remarked by our farmers, that they formerly received good crops from particular portions of their lands, but that they could not get crops from the same ground that would pay the trouble of cultivation. Something, they said, must be wanting in the soil, but what they did not know. Chemistry has solved this problem, and it is now beginning to be understood by them, that their soil must be fed with proper food as their cattle if they would have it productive; and that true economy consists in highly cultivating smaller quantities of land, by deep plowing and manuring, rather than running over a large quantity of land with small tillage.

This lesson is one our farmers have been slow to learn. While it has been their practice in cultivating their gardens to resort to thorough tillage, and as a consequence, they produce more from them than from any other equal portion of their land; in the raising of field crops the hint thus given them has been entirely neglected. It is supposed that the fruit and kitchen gardens in the vicinity of the city of London, occupy 20,000 acres of land, and that the produce of this land is sold for over $7,000,000 while in the most favored portions of farming lands in our own country, $500,000 would generally be considered a good product for the same quantity of land. Knowledge and experience will in time correct the errors into which our farmers have fallen in regard to cultivating their lands, and even now I think I see a bright prospect for the future, in the information of agricultural associations, in the circulation of agricultural papers, and other periodicals, in the improvement of the farm stock; in the improved tillage and drainage of lands; and above all, in the increased attention given to the saving and use of manures. When these come to be well understood and practiced, we may confidently expect to see farms of 40 or 60 acres producing more & returning a better and more certain profit to the farmer, than farms now do which contain many additional acres.

NEW CANDLE MACHINE.—The St. Louis Reveille noticing the invention of a candle machine lately introduced there, says:—"It is a candle stick simply turning up the bottom, will answer to make a candle out of any common grease. The base of a candlestick forms a chamber, in which works a spiral screw, and through this screw the wax passes out at the top of the candlestick, the upper section of which forms the mould. The grease, hard or tallow—in short, any matter gathered about a kitchen which will burn—has to be poured in the lower chamber of the candlestick, and by turning the base with your hand you can form a candle, with a dry wick, which will burn like sperm. The length of the candle you can regulate to your own taste, by simply taking a turn more or less. Enough wick may be placed in a box in the base of this new machine to last a month. There is no running or waste of grease. And then all the grease produced about a house can be saved to a valuable purpose by the possessor of the machine. It is no cumbersome affair, but a neat candlestick."

Cows.—The following is good advice. The point in which farmers are most at fault is, that they overlook their farms—only half feed their animals, let skeleton cow-frames drag themselves over the premises, and complain because these dry bones do not give milk abundantly. Wherever cows are kept for the dairy, it is possible and proper—it is a duty to keep them well. This can be done. If you cannot keep four well, try two; the two well kept, will give more income than four half-starved ones. The goodness of the cow is determined partly by their native properties but the food also has very much to do in making her good otherwise. Keep no more than you can feed well—very well.

TAMING HORSES.—The taming of horses by breathing in their nostrils, seems to be gaining friends. Mr. David Clayton, of Tyrrell county, having seen an article in our paper stating that horses had been rendered gentle by breathing in their nostrils, determined to try it on a young male belonging to him, who would never suffer any one to handle him. Mr. C. fastened him in the stable and, after considerable trouble succeeded in breathing several times in his nostrils. Before he left the stable, the male became gentle and would stand and permit himself to be rubbed, and would snuff and smell around him. He followed Mr. C. out of the stable around the yard, and wanted to go into the house. We advise our friends who have colts to break to try the experiment; if it does no good it can certainly do no harm.—Newbern N. C. Advocate.

"CAN SHE MAKE A PENDING?"—Women are supposed to be very calm generally; but women feel just as men feel; they need exercise for their faculties, and a field for their efforts as much as their brothers do; they suffer from too rigid a restraint, too absolute a stagnation, precisely as men would suffer; and it is narrow-minded in their more privileged fellow-creatures to say that they ought to confine themselves to making puddings and knitting stockings, to play on the piano and embroidering bags. It is thoughtless to condemn them or laugh at them, if they seek to do more or learn more than custom has pronounced necessary for their sex.

A farm in Warren county, Ohio, has raised and carried to Cincinnati market a hog weighing nine hundred and thirty-nine pounds net.

CHALLENGE! CHALLENGE!

WE have observed very palpably for a long time past a supposition which professional skill alone must be able to give them. And we would continue our silent observation, under the consciousness of an unobscured merit, were it not more than probable that the course of fanatical error, which has been pursued for a number of minutes, is to the prejudice of the multitude of professors of the Quakerism art.

We would see merit such an honorable publicity, and thereby win for itself golden opinions; but we despise that miserable chicanery by which more pretence gains an evasive and genuine truth. It is to make this wretched ambition overlook itself or withdraw its spurious claims, that we now trespass on its fancied secrecy, by throwing the glove for an honorable test of skill. Our services are offered at the Duquesne Fallery of M. P. SIMONS, 179 Chestnut street, will exhibit a greater amount of perfection in the art than any similar average number from any other gallery in the United States. This is no idle boast—we mean what we say. We are desirous that the public should give their patronage to merit.

We ask investigation, free, rigid, impartial investigation. We have thrown the glove. Who will pick it up? M. P. SIMONS, 179 Chestnut street.

N. B. It will be observed that the country friends, that the above challenge has never yet been accepted, and we also wish it understood, that we did not intend to make by this wager, as we have already expressed our intention to appropriate the prize to some charitable purpose. M. P. SIMONS.

THE GREENBERG COMPANY having been re-organized a few weeks since, and having received the most unparalelled and extensive circulation, will henceforth issue MONTHLY BULLETINS, that they may more perfectly inform the public of the principles of the AMERICO-BRASSIENIAN SYSTEM, and of the vast superiority of their medicines over any others ever presented to the world. Each Bulletin will contain something of the greatest importance to the health of the community; and all classes of readers, the clergy, jurists, statesmen and private individuals, should not fail of reading them, to say the least. One trial alone of the medicines will convince the most sceptical of their extraordinary efficacy. In the present Bulletin we will only say that 1. The Greenberg Medicines are purely Vegetable. 2. They have been tested in tens of thousands of cases with success. 3. Of the Vegetable Pills alone, 30,000 boxes are sold each and every week. 4. The demand is constantly increasing. 5. Every article purchased of the Company or any of its Agents, is WARRANTED; and if it does not give satisfaction, the money will be refunded.

The Greenberg Vegetable Pills.

possess almost magical power in curing the ordinary diseases which afflict human beings. They are some facts connected with their composition and use, which the limits of the present notice forbid us to name. Suffice it to say, that they are the most extensive and philosophical remedy, aided by the lights of modern science, that has ever been made from the juices of less enlightened ages; they are from the combined wisdom of ancient and modern science. In fact they are A PERFECT PILL! worthy of the age and of a country.
