Awful Catastrophe!—Explosion and Dreadful Loss of Life!!

The most terrible catastrophe that has occurred in this City for many years, happened yesterday morning in Hague-st. near Pearl—a catastrophe involving a greater loss of life than ever before afflicted this City from a similar cause.

The large machine shop and printing press manufactory of A. B. Taylor & Co., 3 Hague-st. had just been supplied with a new boiler for the steam engine. It was located in the basement of the building, which was six stories high.

The boilers was made on the North River side some time since for Mr. Taylor. For some reason he did not take it, and it was sold to the Georgia Steamboat Company, and went to Savannah.

It did not generate steam fast enough for the purpose of a boat, and it was soon put out of use.—The boat agent came here and contracted for a new boiler with Messrs. Pease & Murphy, who took the old one in part payment.

Mr. Taylor subsequently purchased it, and removed it to his shop. Messrs. Pease & Murphy neither built nor set it. It was not injured by exposure to the weather.

At about half-past 7 o'clock yesterday morning the boiler exploded, the force passing upward and outward toward the street, crushing the building into a mass of ruins in less than one minute. We never saw a wreck so complete; the walls, floors, large timbers and roof lie in one compact pile, all on fire, and seething, smoking and steaming beneath the flood of water poured upon them.

As usual on Monday mornings, the fireman had started the fires under the boiler at an earlier hour than usual, on account of its getting cold while standing unused over Sunday, and hardly had steam been raised, and motion communicated to the shafting, when the explosion took place, and in an instant the upper part of the building was blown completely off, and fire communicated to the remainder.

The force of the explosion dashed in the windows, frames and doors of several adjoining buildings, and seriously endangering the walls of Hull & Sons' large soap and candle factory, which adjoined the ruined building.

The windows and doors across Hague-st. and in the rear of houses in Pearl-st. were burst in as if with cannon shot, and everything around indicates that the explosion was one of the most violent that could occur. So powerful was the explosion that the shock, like the trembling of an earthquake, was felt in some of the stores in Broadway, a distance, in a direct line, of about a quarter of a mile, and was probably felt at a grater distance. The floors of Messrs. Hull & Sons building were lifted up, and the thick walls, both those adjoining Mr. Taylor's establishment and those fronting on the next street, were bulged considerably, although built of unusual thickness, with reference to the possibility of fire or other contingency.

But the most awful part of this calamity, is the sudden and unwarned destruction of a large number of workmen. In the present excitement it is impossible to ascertain the number lost, but we fear it will be found to reach from FIFTY TO SIXTY!

The number employed in the machine shop, and a hat manufactory which occupied the upper part of the premises, is variously stated at from 100 to 125—but as it was rather early in the day it is hoped that a good portion was absent. From the best information we can get we believe there were very near one hundred persons in the building at the time of the explosion. About a dozen of the persons employed were girls.

A gentleman, who was in the immediate neighborhood when the explosion took place, informed us that in the brief interval between the falling of the building and the bursting out of the flames he saw the ruins, and from the number of limbs or other parts of the bodies projecting from among the ruins, he estimated the number of these partially visible at about twenty-five or thirty.

The building was owned by Messrs. Harpers & Brothers, and was worth $15,000, partly covered by insurance.

Bricks from the building, at the time of the explosion, were sent at a distance of thirty-six or forty feet.

P. S. The loss of Messrs. Taylor & Barr, is estimated at $70,000. As near as can be ascertained, not less than one hundred lives have been lost by this calamity.—New York Tribune.

Common School Convention.

The proceedings of the State Educational Convention which met at Harrisburg week before last, are too lengthy to publish in full. We make the following synopsis, which embraces the principal changes in the Common School System recommended by the Convention:

1st. That a department of education be established, the head of which shall devote himself exclusively to this important subject, visiting the various School Districts occasionally, by way of stimulating those in charge of them to greater exertions in the cause of education.

2d. That a state common School Journal be established, as a means of communication between the department and the schools, school directors and teachers.

3d. That two Normal Schools be established for the preparation of teachers to impart knowledge to the youth of the Commonwealth, in the most improved manner.

4th. That it be recommended to the various school districts to form associations of the directors and teachers, for the purpose of meeting and consulting in regard to the best means of imparting instruction and advancing the cause of education.

5th. That it be recommended to the different districts to appoint county superintendents.

6th. That a uniformity of school books be recommended in the different counties.

The Harrisburg Union in recommending these amendments to the favorable consideration of the Legislature, says: "It was acknowledged by every one in the Convention, that our School System was not inferior to that of any other State in the Union, and all that was wanting was to give it efficiency, and carry it out according to the design of its founders, with such improvements as were suggested by the experience of the age. The addresses delivered by Hon. Joel B Sutherland, Wm. D. Kelley, Hon. James M. Porter, President of the Convention, Edward A. Penniman, Esq., of Philadelphia, Mr. McCarthy, of Easton, Prof. Hamilton, of Carlisle, and other gentlemen, were calculated to awaken a spirit of inquiry on this vital question, which must lead to the most beneficial results."

THE VERDICT—THE DRURY TRIAL.—The jury in this important case came into Court a few minutes before eleven, and, having stated there was no possibility of their agreeing upon a verdict, were discharged. It was rumored, we know not on what authority, that they stood eight for an acquittal and four for a conviction. We presume another trial will not be had during this term, at least on this indictment. There are, however, other bills for high offences against the accused, on which they may be arraigned. The prisoner will be discharged on bail for his re-appearance.

☞ AT a meeting of the colored citizens of Bradford county, held in Towanda boro. on the 18th of January, inst., we the undersigned, were appointed a Committee to solicit aid in building a church and school house, to be located in this Borough, for the benefit of the colored people of this county; and as we feel deeply the importance of this enterprise to the end we have in view, of advancing our moral, religious and intellectual culture, and as our numbers are few and our means inadequate, we take this method of appealing to the liberality of the white citizens of Bradford for assistance; hoping that in the more favored situation in which Providence has placed them, they will be mindful of those upon whom His bounty has been more sparingly bestowed, and that they will give us countenance and support in this struggle for the improvement of our condition.

In addition to the subscribers, Timothy Coggins and David Jones, are authorized to receive contributions for the above mentioned object.
