I declare as follows, of truly the death of my wife, Maria B. About one hundred persons witnessed the execution. A large crowd was collected on the outside of the jail-some of whom clambered on the root of the adjoining houses, and disturbed the funeral exercises by their demoniacal shouts. Two well dressed young ladies before the prisoner teft his cell, entered the jail yard, assended the gallows, and inspected, with looks of great curiosity, the implement of execution. Several other females were admitted to the jail yard, to witness the exe-cution. Upon the scaffold Pearson read his bible west 45 & 7-10 p to a post, thence north 493° west with great apparent devotion. He ascended the steps of the gallows with a firm step, and as he walked upon the drop gave a last look at the sun and the scenes around him. His body was taken to Wilmington, his pa-tive place and the scene of the murder, for burial. He lost all hope of a reprieve after he had heard of the result of the case of Professor Webster.

In Southport, Chemung Gounty N. Y. by Hiram Roushy Esq. on the 4th inst. Miss Exna A. Pan-novs of Columbia Bradford Co. Pa. to Mr. WILLIAM E. SARBNAN of Springfield Bradford Co. Pa.

Died, In this Dorough on Monday, 15th inst. JENTHA, wife of Jon P. KINNY, aged 27 years, 7 days.

The death of Mrs. Kieby has left a blank swhich will long be felt. Bereft at an early age of ther mother, she grew up to appreciate the more highly Francisco, to the 15th of June, arrived at New a mother's duties; and seldom has a family of small it, on Monday afternoon. The passengers on children suffered a greater loss in the death of a parent, than hers. She left five-the eldest scarcely eight years of age.

To-her husband she was what the divine description represents a wife to be, "ashelp meet" in every sense of the word, and " the heart of her husband did safely trust in her." Few men whose business calls them much from home have confided more in the care and judgment of their companion during absence, and we may believe none ever found that confidence more worthily placed. She was indeed, what the wise king of Israel declared of a virtuous woman-" a crown to her husband."

Devoted as she was to her family and her domestic duties, and unobtrusive by nature and habit, it is not surprising that an intimate friend should remark at her death, "Her worth has not been known !" But a circle of warm friends besides her family shed itears of sincere sorrow over her grave, and worshippers in the sanctuary, where her voice was raised to sing the praises of God, and the absence of that voice at once an abatement of their enjoyment in public worship, and a solemn, though silent admonition " be ye ready also."

Her early religious instruction laid the foundation for a just sense of religious obligation, which she manifested as occasion offered, before she enjoyed scase of pardoned sin, and this encouraged her christian friends to the belief that a good work had been begun which God would not fail to carry on to perfection ; and that belief was most consolingly realised at last. She retained her senses and her speech till near her last breath, and in those solema moments when the soul seems lingering between time and elernity-and with a fervency which a wife and mother only knows, she committed her husband and her children to the mercifal Redeemer. into whose hands she had intrusted her own immortal interests. With cheerful resignation to the divine will, and bright anticipations of the joys of heaven

she left her friends, to go to be with Christ. "Bleased are the dead that die in the Lord."
