Tree Planting.

Among fruit trees, the apple, the quince, and the peach emits roots much more freely than the pear, plnm and cherry-and in light, sandy, triable soils, much more easily than in stiff, moist, adhesive soils. These are familiar facts to all cultivators, and they serve as a guide in pis ting:

But under all circumstances it is unsate to plant a tree without reducing its branches in such manner as to compensate for the loss of root and general derangement inseparable from removal. Let us take for instance an apple tree, six feet high, with a five Primary Department, head and numerous side branches. This tree was growing vigorously in the nursery, with its roots spread out and well at home in the soil; but the tree is dug and pulled up, part of its large roots are cut off, many of the smaller ones are, dragged on, and before it is planted a great many more are dried or rotted and killed off. Thus the tree is left minns, a great portion of its feeding roots, on which the top must depend for support. Its nice balance. which nature and art gave it in the nursery rows, is destroyed and without some compensation it can not live-at least it cannot grow for a long time to come. The opening bads seek for nourishment. but after the line stock laid up previously is exhausted, they can find none and perish they must.

If a tree has attained a considerable size, and cut a branching head, these branches should be cut back according to circumstances. A tree with large and healthy roots, and abundance of fibres, will sustain short, poor, or badly mutitated roots, and lew fibres Apples, quinces, or penches, will bear more head than pears or plums, and sooner. Trees taken fresh from the soil and replanted do not require the same degree of cutting as those that have been transported to a great distance. Trees that are planted in a light, mellow, warm soil, favorable to the formation of roots, will require less cutting than those planted in a colder, stiffer soil, where roots will be emitted slowly. Trees taken up with the earth around the roots, and evertreens, are the only exceptions. These are a few of the circumstances to be well considered by every one who plants a tree.

Praning and cutting back, must not only be done, but done well. It is next to manslaughter, to cut and slash the branches of a tree, with an old rusty jack-knife. It is nothing else than tree slaughter. A pruning knife should be as sharp and smooth on the edge as a razor. When a branch is wholly to be removed, it should be done smoothly close to the trank or limb on which it grows. It a limb is merely to be shortened, it should be jout close to a good plump and healthy locking bad that promises to make a vigorous shoot. If the future shoot is desired to grow erect, the bad should of course be on the upper side of the branch cut: and it desired to take a spreading or horizontal direction, the bad should be on the under side -The object in cutting close to the bud (not so close as the injure it) is to avoid the piece of dead wood that must remain, if cut between two buds. Then the balance of the tree must be thought of. If the branches, are left longer on one side than on the other, the tree will inevitably grow one sided; the shoots on one side will be more vigorous than on duals wanting a superior article of the other, and this will be another disaster. This is as plain as we can at present make the matter in a few words. To sum it up, in short, we would

1st. Place the roots of your trees in a soil favorable to the formation of roots.

2d Reduce the heads in such a manner as to correspond with the character of the tree, the condiston it is in and the reason and situation in which it is planted.

3d. In every operation, exercise reason and care, for it is astonishing what even the unpracticed hand

PRILADELPRIA, April 16, 1850. Dr. Swayne-Dear Sir-Being severely afflicted with a violent Cold and Cough, which settled upon my dungs, attended with great difficulty, soreness my side, that I could scarcely breathe, spitting of blood no appetite, could get no rest at night, owing to the severity of my cough, would spit as much as a pint of blood at a time. This mournful state of things continued until I almost despaired of being cured, having tried physicians and numerous things without relief; but having heard of the great virtues of your Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry, and its being approved f by physicians of the first eminence, I concluded to nake a trial of it, and am happy to state that three ottles performed a perfect cure ; my sleep is now undisturbed and sweet, and I firmly believe that to your nedicine I am indebted for this great cure. I shall be glad to communicate with any person or Aledica. Afflicted do not Despair !

Inother fellow being rescueit from Death by Schenck a Pulinonic Syrup. The following case is one of the greatest triumphs of medicine aver disease ever published in medical his ory. Read it ! Prompted by no otherithan the feeling of henevolence and for the benefit of my afflicted fellew beings, I deiresto make known a short description of my disease, and the unexpected cure'l obtained from SCHENCKS PULMONIC SYRUP. About three years ago I was flicted wit a violent cold, which settled up my breast indicide with a violent could, which settled up in y detail and side, and every tow days would raise considera-ble blood; my cdugh was tight and distensing. Every day I had violent fever creeping chills, and profase sweats at night, with great difficulty of breathing and great loss of appetite; my system was entirely prosrated, being confined to my bed most of the time. I'wo of the most eminent physicians of this city at-tended me, and after exhausting all their skill, pronounced my case incurable. Indeed, one said my lungs were almost gone, and 1 could not possibly recover. At this stage of my disease, I was prevailed apon to try Dr. Schenek's Pulmonic Syrup, and before I had taken half a dizen bottles, was so fai - recover en my whole system—it foesened the cough and stop ped the bleeding-my bowels became regular, and every thing I ate, seemed to digest easily and neurish my whole system. Indeed, such was the rapid progress of my health and so sudden the change, that I became too sanguine of a speedy cure, and abandon-ed the use of the medicine before the disease was thoroughly eradicated, which resulted in another attack of bleeding at the lungs last tall, accompanied by a distressing cough. I again commenced taking the Pul-monie Syrup, and sent for Dr. Schenck who, upon a careful examination, advised me to continue using it. Before I had taken four bottles, an abscess formed in my side, which gathered and broke, discharging, as near as I can judge, a pint of very disagreeable yellow mat-ter. This seemed to cleanse and parify my whole sys em, From this time I begau to get better, and am tem, rrim this time I begau to get better, and am happy to say entirely recovered. I am sure at this time I enjoy better health than I have for the last ten years. Since I commenced taking the Pulmonic Syr-up, I have never failed to recommend it wherever I went, that others, as well as myself; might be save saved from that awful disease ; for I feel it a duty i owe to the afflicted to publish it to the world. Permi me to mention a few cases which have come under my ediate observation. Being on a visit to Camder N. J., last summer, I saw a child, evidently in the last stage of howel consumption. The mother informed me that the physicians had given the child up as incurable. I told her what benefit I had received the use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup; and induced her to procure a bottle. I heard nothing more from fierer nntil about three month after; being in the market, my attention was drawn to a lady who observed me very attentively. She finally approached me, and asked if I was not the lady who recommended Schenck's Polmonic Syrup to her dying child last summer in Camden. I replied that I was. She said that her child had entirely recovered. and was uncommonly healthy. Her name is Mrs. Wilson, and now resides in Bridesburg. Another lady I would mention in particular, who had a scrofulous affection. Her face and neck presented one continued sore, and one of her eyes was veriously affected with it. She had become greatly emaciated, and to all appearances past recovery, f induced her to ary Schenck's Pulmonre Syrup, which she did, and is now perfectly cured. Another lady, Mrs. McMullen, whose residence I will give on appli-cation, was evidently in the last stage of Consumption, I permiled upon her to try the Pulmonic Syrap. In a very short time she was entirely recovered, and now enjove excellent health, having become exceedingly fieshy

These are three cases within my knowledge, which I know were cared by Schenck's Pulmonic Syrap, All who doubt this statement, and will take the trouble to call on me at my residence Parrish street five doors above tenth north side, I think I will be able to satisfactorily convince them by own case, and others that I know have been cured by this Syrup. Since my ure, there have been so many to see me to know what

I took, that I have had a very good opportunity of knowing a great many that have taken it, and have been greatly benefitted thereby, and I think if persons afflicted with Consumption or Liver Complaint, would and for Dr. Schenck, and let him carefully examine their lungs, and if he says he can cure them, follow the directions, and prevent taking cold, they will rapidly RECOTET.

Tilling Orchards.

All fruit trees experience great advantages from the tilling of the earth even if no manure is applied, by keeping the ground free and open to the influ ence of sheat, water, and air. When the grasses forms a firm, compact sod over the entire roots, they not only absorb a great portion of the nutri ment required by the tree, but, from the close and fibrous nature of the grass roots, absorb and keep back all the water that falls in ordinary summer showers, depriving the tree, which, from the great exertion required to produce fruit, and make new wood, needs all and often more during certain periods than nature supplies.

Timothy grass is the least objectionable for an orchard, as it alone never forms a very close interwoven sward; only increasing by offsets, like wheat, it exists in climps. White előver belongs to the same class of non-combatants of fruit trees : as its roots skim over the surface and never penetrates deep, they leave a tender permeable sward. Red clover perhaps maintains the most open and porous soil of any of the articles used for stocking, or rotating crops, but still it is esteemed as having a very deleterious effect on orchards, particularly on young trees, as the roots penetrate deeply, and dispute the possession of the moisure and nutritive gasses belonging to and necessary for the life and existence of the tree.

But those grasses that indrease by snake heads or runners under ground, like June, quack, red-top, and various others, are the most decidedly detrimental, from their impervious compactness and hard feeding on the soil.

Young orchards should be kept under the hoe till the trees acquire a strong healthy growth, and begin to bear eleverly, when they may be rotated with grain and grasses; and in manuring for corn and other hoad crops, manure the trees and hoe and dress them out as carefully as you would the som plants.

In plowing, he careful to shallow the furrow near the roots, which reach as far or further than the tops do, or you not only cut of the supplies of the tree, but cause the broken roots to send up a rutu-tude of suckers, detrimental to the fruit, and being to the public, bring on your watches and clocks, I will New Arrangements and New Firm. troublesome in celtivation.

Where grass has got possession of an orchard or fruitery, and it is not convenient to cultivate it, a very good process is to give a strong coat of manure, straw, or injured hay from stacks, so thick as to smother the grasses and cause the turf, to rot. Care must be taken in the fail to clear it away from the base of the tree, to deter the depredations of mice.

Many persons think if they throw rotten vegetable substances a foot or two around the tree that ble substances a foot or two around the tree that they have done a clever thing, but it is a great mis-take; the roots extend many feet, and the fine usual. Very Strange but true,

A Gentleman of Utics, N. Y., has obtained from the Witch-hazel, a simple remedy, which lays a more just claim to the name of "family cure all" than any Medicine we have ever before known. Nothing is connected with it but a lutile Alcohol to preserve it, and yet it acts with great certainty in removing pain and all local information, curing all soles, burna, brui-act and lameness, rapidly. Piles, bowel complaints, Loiers-morbus, reploif. Files, bowei complaints, choiers-morbus, hemorrhage, car ache, tooth-ache, sore eyes, and all nervous affections. It is white as water and as harmless, and it is called "Pond's Pain Destroyer and Healing Extract." None is genuine except "Pond's Extract" is blown in the bottle. Mr. Pond first introduced this medicine to the public and has expended a vast deal of time and more is being it to a bis in the fact of sore ey in bringing it to a high state of perfection, and mo we now warrant every bottle to give satisfaction.

A man by the name of Spencer has put forth an article called "The Coyle Extract" which claims to be from the Wilch-hazel. If from that shrub, its name s a perfect 'deception, and it is a very imperfect article ; be not deceived, get a pamphlet and see.
