The mother informed me that the physicians had given, the child up as in-curable. I told her what benefit I had received from the use of Schenck's Pulmonie Syrup, and induced her to procure a bottle. I heard nothing more from the little sufferer nutil about three month? after; being in the market, my attention was drawn to. a lady who observed me very attentively. She finally approached me, and asked if I was not the lady who recon ed Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup to her dying child last summer in Camden. I replied that I was. She mid that her child had entirely recovered, and was uncommonly healthy. Her name is Mrs. Wilson, and now resides in Bridesburg. Another lady I would mention in particular, who had a scrofulous affection. Her face and neck presented one continued sore, and one of her eyes was seriously affected with it. She had become greatly emaciated, and to all appearances past recovery. I induced her to try Schenck's Palmonre Syrup, which she did, and is now perfectly cured. Another lady, Mrs. McMallen, whose residence I will give on application, was evidently in the last stage of Consumption, I prevailed upon her to try the Polmonic Syrup. In a very short time she was entirely recovered, and now enjoys excellent health, having become exceedingly fieshy

Preparation of the Ground .- The ground should be plowed deep-say 8 or 10 inches-if the soil will admit of that depth. It should also be sub-soiled, if force of 'teams be sufficient for this purpose. It stands to reason that a plant so stout, so luxuriant. as the corn plant, when well fed, requires a deep and thoroughly pulverized pasture to graze in. I's tap-root will descend from 4 to 6 feet, white its leteral roots, if not cruelly lacerated, cut, and torn up, as they usually are by the plow, will fill up the entire space between the rows, whether they be three feet, or six feet apart, if there be any food in the rearched after, the corn-plant will find it, absorb, and drink it in by the mouths of its rootlets or sporgioles.

Deep ploughing, thorough harrowing, and effective rolling, we hold to be three of the pre-requi sites to insure a good erop of corn : next to gune. rous manuring, we estimate their importance; we have always thought that perfect preparation of the soil was one of the great essentials in successful farming-like the first blow in personal conflicts, if well directed, it is one-half the battle. Give then we beseech you, deep, fine tilth, plenty of manure, and cleanly culture to your com-plants; if you do so, they will repay you with more than the measure of a generous product.

Distances of Rows .- Now we desire not to be consilered as dictating to any one, as to what shall be the width of his rows, we only wish to say that large products cannot be secured unless there be stalks enough on an acre 16 bear the corn, and that all the very large crops have been the result of close planting Avoiding the inconvenience of very close planting, we would say that 4 feet by 3 would be an eligible dutance. It is far enough to admit the working of the corn by plow, or cultivator, wide enough to allow a free admission of air, and elose enough for a fair stand of statks. It was the distance we settled down apon, alter trying several others, some wider, and some narrower.
