I roung the operation of plowing, it is requisite, 1st. That the lines traced by the plow should of so that they may not overlap each other, or torin any inequality on the curtace of the ground; or equal breadth, the operation becomes more difficient and best rates. c it licenuse at every deviation from a straight line the resistance which the earth opposes to the instrun.ent becomes increased.

2d. That the plow advance at a regular uniform depth, and on a line parallel to the surface ofd the soil; that is to say, that it does not as is the case when it is not well guided, sometime cut thick and other times thin stees.

3d. That the plaw empty the 'urrow as com- foats, per day. pletely as possible, so that the earth may not fall in again after the plow has passed, and that the portion of the soil not yet raised, but which has just been divided by the plowshare, may form not an acute, but a right angle with the bottom of the fur tow on which it borders.

And lumber, that the divided slices be always of the same breadth, that they likewise preserve the d 19th which it is desireble to give them.

The fulfilment of these desirable ends is secured to a certain extent by taking care that the plow is properly constructed; but it also depends in great mensure on the skill of the plowman, who requires to understand the use of the instrument. The suc. Price of Grant's Fan Mills, adapted for cess which will attend the growth of the crops, very much depends upon the skill, and faithful performance of duly on the part of the plowman.

The width of the sod or furrow-slice must be regular according to the nature of the soil, and the object to be attained by the plowing. The greater the tenacity of the soil, the narrower should these slices be cut, for when they are too broad, it is impossible to break and divide them properly with the harrow. From a light or sandy soil, on the other and with Emer. & Co.'s two-horse power, $185 00. hand, wide slices may be cut without any inconvemence; because the harrow always has sufficient power over such soil to pulvetize it completely.

The greater the depth of the furrows, the less should be their width, both because the plow would have too great resistance to overcome, and because if the pieces of earth or sods out of them, are troad and thick, they cannot be turned over so complete ly as they ought to be.

If the object in view is only to bring stabble, or turn up the turt of land lying in fallow, plowing in CORN SHELLERS, HAY & STRAW/CUTTERS wide slices is admissible, and in some respects

Two or three inches in the width of a slice, makes a day by the plow.

When the object is to divide a tenacious sod immediately, the proper breadth for the slice is six or seven inches, but where the soil is light, an equal STUBBLE, SWARD, SUB-SOIL & other PLOWS advantage will be gained by making the slice a DOG POWERS FOR CHURNS, KENDALL'S

Supposing the rate of progress, or in other words, the pace at which the cattle or horses move, to be agnal in both cases, twelve hours are spent in plowing a field with forrows seven inches wide, while only seven hours would be required to plow it if the turows were twelve inches wide. - Maine Far-

Every day I had violent fever creeping chills, and profuse sweats at night, with great difficulty of breathing and great loss of appetite; my system was entirely pros-trated, being confined to my bed most of the time. Two of the most emment physicians of this city attended me, and after exhausting all their skill, pro-nounced my case incurable. Indeed, one said my lungs were almost gone, and I could not possibly ; cover. At this stage of my disease, I was prevailed upon to try Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, and before I had taken half-a dozen bettles, was so far recovered as to be, to go about the house. It seemed to strength. en thy whole system-it loosened the cough and stopped the bleeding-my bowels became regular, and every thing I ate, seemed to digest easily and nourish my whole system. Indeed, such was the rapid pro gress of my besith and so sudden the change, that I became too sanguine of a speedy cure, and abandoned the use of the medicine before the disease was thoroughly eradicated, which resulted in another attack of bleeding at the lungs last tall, accompanied by a distressing cough. I again commenced taking the Pul-monic Syrup, and sent for Dr. Schenck who, upon a careful examination, advised me to continue qu Before I had taken four bottles, an abscess formed in my side, which gathered and broke, discharging, as near as I can judge, a pint of very disagreeable yellow matter. This seemed to cleanse and purify my whole system, From this time I began to get better, and am happy to say emirely recovered. I am sure at this time I enjoy better health than I have for the last ten years. Since I commenced taking the Pulmonic Syr up, I have never failed to recommend it wherever went, that others, as well as myself, might be saved saved from that awful disease; for I feel it a duy I owe to the afflicted to publish it to the world. Permit me to mention a few cases which have come under my immediate observation. Being on a visit to Camden M. J., last summer, I saw a child, evidently in the last stage of bowel consumption. The mother informed me that the physicians had given the child up as incurable. I told her what benefit I had received from the use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, and induced her to procure a bottle. I heard nothing more from the little sufferer until about three month after; being in the market, my attention was drawn to a lady wh observed me very attentively. She finally approache me, and asked if I was not the lady who recommend ed Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup to her dying child lan summer in t'amden. I replied that I was. She said that her child had entirely recovered, and was uncom-monly healthy. Her name is Mrs. Wilson, and now resides in Bridesburg. Another lady I would mention in particular, who had a scrofulous affection. Her face and neck presented one continued sore, and one of her eyes was reriously affected with it. She had become greatly emaciated, and to all appearances past recovery induced her to try Schenck's Pulmonre Syrup, which she did, and is now perfectly cured. Another lady, Mrs. McMullen, whose residence I will give on application, was evidently in the last stage of Consumption I prevailed upon her to try the Pulmonie Syrup. Interest short time she was entirely recovered, and nownjovs excellent health, having become exceedingly fiesby These are three cases within my knowledge, which know were cured by Schenck's Pulmonic Syrop, All who doubt this statement, and will take the trouble to call on me at my residence Parrish street five doors above tenth north side, I think I will be able to satisactorily convince them by own case, and others that I know have been cured by this Syrup. Since my cure, there have been so many to see me to know what I took, that I have had a very good opportunity of knowing a great many that have taken it, and have been greatly benefitted thereby, and I think if persons afflicted with Consumption or Liver Complaint, would send for Dr. Schenck, and let him carefully examin r lungs, and if he says he can cure th directions, and prevent taking cold, they will rapidly
