Temperance Address. (FROM THE FIRST PAGE)

depressing as is the belief-relax our efforts. On the contrary, it should nerve us for more vigorous and extended exertions. We at least may do something toward rendering the dominion of the Tyrant less burdensome-we may by perseverance, lead men to the knowledge of the dangers, which link in waiting for them-we may even, now and then, bring back to society some unfortunate, who has torgonen his duty to God, his family and society. . The work of combatting the progress of Intern perance falls upon the Sons of Temperance. To us most exclusively belongs the task of reforming men once led astray, and guiding and sustaining their feeble steps in the path of rectifule. But there are influences which go back of all this-primary prin ciples, to be inculcated by other means, powerful in their nature, and which must be exerted as we hope ultimately, to be completely successful.

It is far easier to teach men to shon an evil habit, than to reclaim them, when once they have commenced practicing it. How infinitely easier to imbue the minds of the young, with correct views in regard to Temperance, than to stop their career when once going headlong to destruction? In this respect, there is a radical defect in the manner of educating children. It is a fault for which nearly every parent is responsible. In view of the danger to which every child will be subjected, as he tries the walks of life alone, the principles and advan tages of sobriety should be early enforced upon him. He should be taught to be temperate as he is taught to be honest. Let not your Sons, if they fall, turn to you with a merited reproach to impart a sting

"Sharper than a serpent's tooth " Point out to them early the evils which result from Intemperance-warn them of the danger there is in its use-learn them to taste not, touch not, handle not, and your children will never prove a fruitful source of affliction.

But it is principally upon the Church of Christ, as made visible upon the Earth, that devolves the propagation of those truths which will guide men in the way of Temperance. The pulpit has immense power to overthrow Error of every description. It exerts a power wielded by no other influence. Its labors are sanctioned by the recognition and authority of Divinity. Total abstmance is necessary to the full enjoyment of the virtues and graces of Religion-Intemperance is incompatible pared to furnish to order with the practice of those duties enjoined upon the followers of the meek and lowly. A better day has dawned upon the Church in this respect—a low years have effected a radical change. The pulpit is no longer afraid to denounce the truitful source of sin and ungodliness, for fear of offending some prominent member who might consider its language as having a personal application. Total abstinence should be a feature in the creed of every church, for the professing Christian is no ornament to the Church, who is in the habit of becoming intoxicated, or indulging in the use of spirituous drinks, however sparingly. His example is a bad one, and should not be tolerated. It proves that his appetites are more powerful than his reverence. What a spectacle it would be, to see a man obliged to have recourse to the brandy bottle, before he could offer up his morning orison to the throne of Grace. The idea is as ridiculous in its conception, as it would be imploys in its realization.

By illustrating the truths of Temperance-by inforcing its practice as a duty & necessity-the church can effect more towards a total reformation than any other one power. The cause appeals particularly to those who are seeking the spiritual welfare of you must make them sober. The beautiful truths of Religion fall upon a barren soil, when addressed to the Intemperate man, for his degraded habits

" Harden all within, And petrify the feeling." He makes them a scoff and a jest. But Temperance is the handmaid of piety—the two are inseparable. To the Church, then we look with the expectation that it will be the greatest and most effectual means in forwarding the Temperance movement, Upon Woman we rely, in no small measure, for the prosperity of the cause. She has been foremost in every movement intended to benefit mankind, which has engaged the attention of the workly since she lingered with pious love the last at the cross of her dying Savior, and hastened to be the first at his sepulchre. Her influence has always been on the side of Right. She is never wrong. Patient and enduring under suffering, her courage and zeal never flag, when the sterner sex become dismayed or disheartened. Upon her falls the heaviest evils -her lot is to bear its most grievous buidens. She drinks the deepest dregs of the bitter chalice. She realizes all the agony which the devoted heart may feel at the unkindness and degradation of the best beloved. Keenly alive to the sufferings already endured, to the incalculable advantages she will derive from the Temperance reform,-Woman has ever been zealous and active in its furtherance,-She has upheld its banners when its folds were drooping in neglect and inattention. And she may effect much. The man is debased, indeed, who will not be moved by a woman's affectionate solicitude. The heart is corrupted, which will not own her power. Oh, woman! you have an influence over the welfare of man which has no bounds, and I beseech you for his sake-lor your sake-as you value your peace and happiness through life, exert it to shield him from the semblance of danger. As Prompted by no other than the feeling of benevolence, and for the benefit of my afflicted fellew beings, I desire to make known a short description of my disease and the merupected cure I obtained from SCHENCES PULMONIO SYRUP. About three years ago I was afflicted with a riolent colds which mettled on my breat and side and sweet few days, woulld raise considerated.

afflicted with a notent cond, wanten settien on my breat and side, and every few days, would raise consider, ble blood; my clugh was tight and distinguing. Every day I had violent fever creeping chills, and prohise sweats at night, with great difficulty of breathing and great loss of appetite; my system was entirely pro-trated, being confined to my bed most of the time. Two of the most eminent physicians of this city at fended me, and after exhausting all their skill, pro-nounced my case incurable. Indeed, one said my unge were almost gone, and I could not possibly to cover. At this stage of my disease, I was prevailed upon to try Dr. Schenek's Pulmonie Syrup, and before I had taken half a dozen bottles, was so far recovered as to be to go about the house. It seemed to strength en my whole system—it loosened the cough and stop ped the bleeding—my bowels became regular, and every thing I ate, seemed to digest easily and nourismy whole system. Indeed, such was the rapid progress of my health and so sudden the change, that became too sanguine of a speedy cure, and abandoned the use of the medicine before the disease we horoughly eradicated, which resulted in another attach of bleeding at the lungs last fall, accompanied by a date tressing cough. I again commenced taking the Polymore Syrup, and sent for Dr. Schenck who, upon 1 careful examination, advised me to continue using a Before I had taken four bottles, an abscess formed a my side, which gathered and broke, discharging, as nex as I can judge, a pint of very disagreeable yellow may ter. This seemed to cleanse and purify my wholesy, tem, From this time I began to get better, and as happy to say entirely recovered. I am sure at the time I enjoy better health than I have for the last to years. Since I commenced taking the Pulmonic 8y. up, I have never failed to recommend it wherever went, that others, as well as myself, might be saved saved from that awful disease; for I feel it a duty! owe to the afflicted to publish it to the world. Permi me to mention a few cases which have come under n mmediate observation. Being on a visit to Cambe N. J., last summer, I saw a child, evidently in the lix stage of bowel consumption. The mother informal me that the physicians had given the child up as a curable. I told her what benefit I had received in the use of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, and inducing the procure a bottle. I heard nothing more translation. the little sufferer until about three month, after; bein in the market, my attention was drawn to a lady we observed me very attentively. She finally approached me, and asked if I was not the lady who recommend ed Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup to her dying child is summer in Cauden. I replied that I was. She say that her child had entirely recovered, and was uncommonly healthy. Her name is Mrs. Wilson, and not resides in Bridesburg. Another lady I would mention in particular, who had a scrofulous affection. Her far and neck presented one continued sore, and one of her eyes was veriously affected with it. She had become summer in Camden. I replied that I was. She at greatly emaciated, and to all appearances past recore, I induced her to try Schenck's Pulmonre Syrap, which she did, and is now perfectly cured. Another last, Mrs. McMullen, whose residence I will give on apply cation, was evidently in the last stage of Consumption I prevailed upon her to try the Pulmonic Syrup. In I prevailed upon her to try the l'ulmonic Syrup. Inivery short time she was entirely recovered, and nowa-joys excellent health, having become exceedingly field. These are three cases within my knowledge, which i know were cured by Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Ai who doubt this statement, and will take the troublety that the statement of the statem worth of his money.
