Stable Floors on a New Plan.

The stable floor of the celebrated English farmer, . Mr. Mechi, are described ty the editor of the English Farmer, who saw them last summer, as of a particular construction. They are formed, not of plank, but of pieces scantling three inches square, placed nearly two inches spart, so that the manure solid as well as liquid, drops into a vault underneath where both are preserved, and at the same time, clearing the stable two or three times a day, a disagreeable and time-comsuming business, is rendered unnecessary. The vaults are not deep, and the stables are so aranged that the manure from them can be pitched out at once, into carts for the removal whenever its accumulation or other causes render it desirable.

The scantling are framed into sections, four by ten feet in size or thereabouts, and laid upon the so as to be readily removed when

JACOB WATERMAN, JR. JAMES C. CALVER.

The undersigned, residents of Tacony, eight miles above Philadelphia, being well acquainted with John C. Green, and the circumstances attending his case, feel impelled by a deep sense of imperative duty, to nake universally known to the public his entire recovery from the very last stages of Pulmonary Consump-tion. So entirely helpless was his condition, having been but a brief period since in that rapidly sinking ion of his physicians and friends, who watched by his bedside, all hopes of even a temporary recovery and restoration to his present robust health. Thus the careul use of your invaluable Specific, the Pulmonic Syrup, makes it our belief, under the circumstances of his previous prostrate, not to say dying condition, one of he most startling results that the whole annals of mediof the loss they sustain in suffering their liquid ma. | cal skill or science can produce. It deserves to be imperishably recorded to your credit, and secure to you, case, a lasting monument and a world-wide reputation vegetable nutrition, than the solid portion, particu- in the healing art, that no time may either diminish or destroy. Having witnessed Mr. Green's distressing struggles and sufferings from a continued cough, superailded to the other symptoms consequent upon, or attending to the last stages of a pulmonary disease; and moreover, it being so generally believed by his nu-merous friends that no human power could relieve, or rotract his life, much less restore him back again to his former health, we feel it thus our duty to give our unqualified testimony of Mr. Green's perfect recovery, by means of the exclusive use of your wonderful Syr

I have passed through the inclement weather of the latter ever I felt in my life, and I am this day a living testimony of the great efficacy of Schenck's Pulmonic Byrup in curing pulmonary diseases.

ary. The cost of such a floor cannot be as great as that of plank of the same thickness, and it is thought , that scantling two and a half or two inches thick would be strong enough for the purpose.

But the greatest advantages of such a floor, (upon which the cattle stand with the same ease and security as upon one of plank,) is the saving of the liquid portion of the manure, and the preservation of the solid parts from leaching and evaporation which they must inevitably undergo when thrown into the open yards, as is too often practiced. "Farmers generally" says Mr. Ishem "have no conception nure to be wasted. Analysis proves it to be far richer in some of the most important elements of larly in phosphates. A farmer in the neighborhood of Bath, informed me that he had a cistern which held ten bogsheads, into which the liqu'd manure was all drained from the stable and dung heap, (which was in the yard.) and that he had found it to be better by far for his crops than the solid part of his manure."-Rural New Yorker.

Ewes and Lambs.

A large number of our tamers in this neighborhood, give no more fond attention to their ewes that are suckling tamber than to other sheep. A large part of the nourishment taken by the mother is appropriated to the young. Ewes that are fed with the flock get no more than the others, and as stocksheep seldom get more than is wanted to keep them from running down, it is easily seen that an ewe with her lambs get but little more than half the food they need, for a lamb a few weeks old require as much actual nourishment as a grown sheep. A very small bunch of hay will satisfy a six or eight week old lamb, but the bunch required to produce milk enough to satisfy it, compared with what its mother would or could eaf, is not so inconsiderable. It is important to consider that while they are at the tenderest age, the mother is more or less effected by the enervating influence of spring These. considerations should induce those who wish to have vigorous lambs and healthy ewes, to give shern food of the best quality, at least till the pasture has acquired age and strength.

In March, 1850, two of my ewes each brought forth twins. Not having plenty of oats, I let them shift on hay, and what they could pick off the field. The ewes with twins became very weak in a short time. I put them in a separate lot, and gave them from two to or three pints of oats twice each day o for about five weeks. It being then about the middie of May, they did very well after, and I have the four lambs now. They are the largest sheep I rais- stand unrivalled. We offer our goods for nett Cash, ed that year, notwithstanding they were twins. I doubt whether any of them would have lived without the oats, which was worth-three quarts a day, for thirty-five days, one hundred and five quarts, or shree and a quarter bushels, at thirty-five cents-$1,14. In October each lamb was worth the price of the -asis,
