Nevertheprudent or is it wise to involve ourselves

udetails of this plan may be established in from the degrading motive of a conscious weakness! For the honor of those who have gone before us, I cannot admit it. Men of the Revolution who drew the sword against the oppressors of the mother country, and pledged to Heaven their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor," to maintain their freedom, could never have been; actuated by so un worthy a motive. They knew no weakness or fear where right or duty pointed the way, and it is a livel upon their fair fame, for us while while we enjoy the blessings for which they so nobly fought and bled, to insinuate it. The the truth is that the course which they pursued was dictated by a stern sense of international justice; by a statesmanlike prudence and a far seeing wisdom, looking, not merely to the present necessities but to the permanent safety and interest of the country. They knew that the world is governed less by sympathy than by reason and force; that it was not possible for this nation to be-come a "propagandist" of free principle without arraying against it the combined powers of Europa and that the result was more likely to be the overthrow of republican liberty here than its establishment there. History has been written in vain for those who can doubt this. France had no sooner established a republican form of Government than she manifested a desire to force its hiessings on all the world. Her own historian informs us that, hearing of some pelly act of tyrranny in a neighboring principality. "The National Convention declared she would afford succor and frate nity to all national who wished to recover their liberty; and she gave it in charge to the executive power to give orders to the Generals of the French armies to aid all citizens who might have been or should be oppressed in the cause of liberty." Here was the false step that led to her subsequent misfortunes. She found herself involved in war with all the rest of Europe. In less than ten years her government was changed from a republic to an emp re; and finally, after shedding rivers of blood, foreign powers restored her extled dynasty, and exhausted Europe sought peace and repose in the unquistioned ascendency of monarchial principles. Let us learn wisdou tions do not always establish freedom. Our own free institutions were not the offspring of our revutution. They existed before. They were planted in the free charters of self governments under which the English colonies grew up and Revolution only freed us from the dominion of a foreign power whose government was at variance with those insti tutions. But European nations have had no such training for selfgovernment, and every effort to establish it by bloody revolutions has been and must without that preparation, continue to be a failure. Liberty unregulated by law, degenerates into anar chy, which soon becomes the most horrid of all despotisms. Or policy is wisely to govern ourselves, and thereby to set such an example of national justice, prosperity and true glory, as shall teach to all nations the blessings of self government, and the unparalleled enterprise and success . La free people. We live in an age of progress, and ours is emphat ically a country of progress. Within the last half century the number of States in this Union has nearly doubled, the population has almost quadrupled and our boundaries have been extended from the Mississippi to the Pacific. Our territory is chequered over with railroads, and forrowed with canals. The inventive talent of our country is exmarshalls : for authorizing an additional cited to the highest pitch, and the numerous applications for patents for valuable improvements distin ers against the Indians, and for fulfilling our guish this age and this people from all others. But whatever may be the cause of this

Our constitution, though not perfect, is doubtless the best that ever was formed. Therefore let every foundation to present day to abstain from proposition to change be well weighed, and if found Groceries, Provisions, Vankee Wotions, beneficial cautiously adopted. Every patriot will rejoice to see its anthority so extended as to advance the prosperity and honor of the nation, whilst he will watch with jealousy any attempt to mutilate this charter of our liberties, or pervert its powers to acis of aggression or injustice. Thus shall conservatism and progress blend their harmonious action in preserving the form and spirit of the Constitution and at the same time carry forward the great improvements of the country with a rapidity and energy which freemen only can eleplay.

In closing this, my last annual communication, permit me, fellow-citizens, to congratulate you on he flower of their numerous armies was the prosperous condition of our beloved country. Abroad its relations with all foreign powers are friendly; its rights respected, and is high place in the family of nations cheerfully recognised. At home we enjoy att amount of happiness, public and private, which has probably never fallen to the ther subjects still groun, and which must lot of any other people. Besides affording to our own citizens a degree of prosperity, of which on so large a scale I know of no other instance, our coun, try is annually affording a refuge and a home to nultitules, altogether without example, from the Old World.

We owe these blessings, under Heaven, to the green and dried apples. Almonds, filterts, genoble and maderia walnuts, brazil nuts, pranuts, chestpequeathed to us by our fathers, and which it is our sacred duty to transmit in all their integrity to our children.
