THE HUSBANDMAN. BY STERLING.

Earth of man the bounteous mother, Feeds him still with corn and wine; He who best would aid a brother, Shares with him this gift divine.

Many a power within her bosom. Noiseless, hidden, works beneath; Hence are seed, and leaf, and blossoms, Golden ear and clustered wreath.

These to swell with strength and beauty Is the royal task of man; Man's a king, his throne is Duty, Since his work on earth began.

Stamped in clay, a heavenly mintage, All from dust receive their birth. Barn, and mill, and wine-vat's treasures, Earthly goods for earthly lives;

Bud and harvest, bloom and vintage,

These, like man, are fruits of earth;

These are Nature's ancient pleasures, These her child from her derives. What the dream, but vain rebelling.

If from earth we sought to flee? 'Tis our stored and ample dwelling, 'Tis from it the skies we see. Wind and frost, and hour and season

Land and water, sun and shade -Work with these, as bids thy reason, For they work thy toil to aid.

Sow thy seed and reap in gladness! Man himself is all a seed; Hope and hardship, joy and sadness, Slow the plant to ripeness lead.

The Prosperous Farmers.

What happy fellows the farmers must be now. Hard times! Hard times! is the incessant cry of the merchant, manufacturer and mechanic. Business is nearly prostrate,money at a premium of thirty per cent., and not to be had at that, without first class collaterals, princely firms of half a century's standing are tottering, falling, and carrying distress and ruin to all around them, -giant manufactories suspending operations, --workshops, closing, food of all kinds exorbitantly high, thousands of mechanics and laboring men, with tens of thousands of helpless ones dependent upon them, without employmenn, and with no immediate prospect of securing any, and to add to the chilling gloom of the picture, cold cheer- pendent, and vet so free from vanity and pride less winter encircling us in his icy arms .-

They serve to show how strong and steadfast is the man whose success in life is dependent, not upon the fluctations of stocks, or the risks and perplexities of trade, but upon the risks and perplexities of trade, but upon the soil, the grateful soil, which like an honest employer, pays the full value for every hour's labor bestowed upon it. In primitive times when agricultural opera tions were carried on with a few rude implements, the words of advice contained in the heading of this article were unnecessary. The because of the abstruse and highly scientific the whole of the early husbandman's stock of sickle, flail, plow and harrow comprised nearly manner in which they treat subjects. The implements, and these were of such rude conknowledge they impart is of value only to those struction, that but little care was needed to costly machinery and fertilizers can only be made profitable. What our readers want, is only great, but many of them are of a charthe plain, every day experience of working acter requiring considerable care and attention, men, not the vain theories of visionary dream- not merely in operating them, but in protecting ers. They want that kind of information which Although most of the business of the farm is one farmer communicates to his neighbor, when simple in character, requiring simple and strong describing the mode of culture by which he implements and machinery, still important and has raised an unusually large crop, or the pro- complicated working parts have been introduccess by which he has fattened his cattle. Take our advice, and have all your moveable implements carefully cleaned, examined and stored away in their appropriate place, just as soon as you are done with them for the season, Wash the dirt from your plows, and while the mold-board and the landside are bright, apply a light coat of good oil. This will save the trouble of repolishing, when wanted for next season's plowing. Examine your mowers and reapers when harvesting is completed, repair damages, oil the knife and those parts which revolve, and wear rapidly, and the first time you are in town, purchase a paint pot, paint and brush, and the very first leisure half day you have, give all the wood work of your mathematical properties. Pursue this plan with all your implements, and our word for it, your complaints against the manufactureers will be less frequent. Drought and chines a coat of paint, and then, store them rain affect implements injuriously, and a good coat of paint serves to protect them in a great degree from bad effects of both.

A celebrated English Agriculturist expresses our views so clearly on this subject, that we commend his remarks to the careful attention of our readers. He says: "I would advise care and good manag ment, to make their implements durable as possible. The cost of this will be triffing, compared with the advantages. In order to effect it, select the most likely laberer on the farm; put the implements under his care and make it a strict rule with all the men, that each implement done with for the season, shall be brought to one particular place, say near the pond or pump, the man having charge of the implements must then wash and clean them well before putting them into the shed, and at a convenient time, when not otherwise engaged, or in weather when out door work cannot be performed, get them repaired, and paint them. The man should be encouraged to make his duty a pleasure, and to feel a pride in showing employer's implements in fine order." Such advice doubtless sounds strangely in the ears of many farmers; but it is sound and judicious, and if followed strictly, there will be fewer complaints in regard to the durability of farming implements

AYER'S PILLS.

AND CHERRY PECTORAL.—The following remedies are offered to the public as the best, most perfect, which medical science can afford. Ayer's Catharder Pills have been prepared with the utmost skill which the medical profession of this age possesses, and their effects show they have virtues which surpass any combination of medicines hitherto known. Other preparations do more or les good; but this cures such dangerous complaints, so quick and so surely, as to prove an efficacy and a power to uproot disease beyond any thing which men have known before. By removing the obstructions of the internal organs and stimulating them into healthy action, they renovate the fountains of life and vigor—health courses anew through the body, and the sick man is well again. They are adapted to disease, and disease only, for when taken by one in health they produce but little effect. This is the perfection of medicine. It is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender children may take them with impunity. If they are sick they will cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm.

Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with

Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with bilious complaint; see his bent-up, tottering form straight-en with strength again; see his long-lost appetite return; see his claumay features blossom into health. Give them to some sufferer whose foul blood has burst out in scrofula till his skin is covered with sores; who stands, or sits, or lies in anguish. He has been drenched inside and out with exery every potion which ingenuity could suggest. Give him these Pills, and mark the effect; see the scalas fall from his bady, see the new fair skin that has grown unexery every potion which ingenuity could suggest. Give him these Pills, and mark the effect; see the scals fall from his body; see the new, fair skin that has grown under them; see the late leper that is clean. Give them to him whose angry humors have planted rhematism in his joints and bones; move him, and he screeches with pain; he too has been soaked through every muscle of his body with linaments and salves; give him these Pills to purify his blood; they may not cure him, for olas! there cases which no mortal power can reach; but mark, he walks with cratches now, and now he walkes alone; they have cured him. Give them to the lean, sour, haggard dyspeptic, whose gnawing stomach has long ago eaten every smile from his face and every muscle from his body. See his appetite return, and with it his health; see the new man. See her that was radiant with health and loveliness blasted and too early withering away; want of exercise, or mental auguish, or some lurking discase has deranged the internal organs of digestion, assimilation, or sceretion, till they do they do their office ill. Her blood is vitiated, her health is gone. Give her these Pills to stimulate the vital principle into renewed vigor, to cast out the obstructions, and infuse a new vitality into the blood. Now look again—the roses blossom on her check, and where sorrow sat, joy bursts from every feature. See the sweet infant wasted with worms. Its wan, sickly features tell you without disguise, and painfully distinct, that they are eating its life away. Its pinched-up nose and ears, and restless sleepings, tell the dreadful truth in language which every mother knows. Give it the Pills in large doses to sweep these vile parasites from the body. Now turn again and see the raddy bloom of childhood. Is it nothing to do these things? Nay, are they not the marvel of this age? And yet they are done around you every day. and see the raddy bloom of childhood. Is it nothing to do these things? Nay, are they not the marvel of this age? And yet they are done around you every day. Have you the less serious symptoms of these distempers, they are the easier cured. Jaundice, Costiveness, Head-ache, Sideache, Heartburn, Foul Stomach, Nausea, Pain in the Bowels, Flatulency, Loss of Appetite, King's Evil, Neuralgia, Gout, and kindred comploints all arise from the decangements which these Pills ranidly cure. Take them derangements which these Pills rapidly cure. Take them perseveringly, and under the counsel of a good Physician if you can; if not, take them judiciously by such advice as we give you, and the distressing, dangerous diseases they cure, which afflict so many millions of the human race, are east out like the devils of old—they must burrow in the brates and in the sea. Through a trial of many years and throughevery nation of civilized me, Ayea's Cherry Pectoral has been found to afford more relief and to cure more cases of pulmonary disease than any other remedy known to mankind. Cases of apparently settled Consumption have been cured by it, and thorsands of sufferers who were deemed beyond the reach of human aid have been restored to their friends and usefulness, to sound health and the enjoyments of life, by this all-powerful antidote to diseases of the lungs and throat. Here a cold had settled on the lungs. The dry, hacking cough, the glassy eye, and the pale, thin features of him who was lately lusty and strong whisper to all but him Consumerton. He tries everything; but the disease is gnawing at his vitals, and shows its fatal symptoms more and more over all his fame. He is taking the Cherry Pectoral now; it has stopped his cough and made his breathing easy; his sleep is sound at night; his appetite returns, and with it his strength. The dart which pierced his side is broken. Scarcely any neighborhood can be found which has not some living trophy like this to shadow forth the virtues which have won for the Cherry Pectoral in imperishable renown. Influenza, Croup, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Pleurisy, Whooping Cough, and all irritations of the throat and lungs are easily cared by the Cherry Pectoral if taken in season. Every family should have it by them, and they will find it an idvaloable protection from the insidious prowler which carries off the parent sheep from many a flock, the darling lamb from many a home.

The method by which all Sarssaparillas, and other similar medicines are prepared, is by boiling the Roots of plants to obtain the extracts. Their medicinal virtues are thus principally evaporated and destroyed.

It is not to be wondered at then, that 10 and even 20 bottles of these Sarsaparillas are sometimes taken without any perceptible benefit. Not so with the Forest Wine.—By the invention of a wonderful chemical apparatas, a per-By the invention of a wonderful chemical apparatus, a per fect wine is produced without beating; retaining, at the same time, all the primitive healing properties of the rare medicinal plants of which it is composed, thus rendering the Forest What the most efficient medicine the world ever produced, at the same time time the most agreeable.
