"How can that be ?"

'I have one acre."

" One acre ! and here you are taking the New England farmer ; the Cultivator, Hovey's Magazine and Horticulturist, and all because you have one acre of ground? How many such papers would you have to take if you had a hundred acres ?"

"If I shouldn't probably need more than I take now : you know, Mr. Chapman, one can "go through with all the motions," on one acre as well as on a liundred."

"A man can throw away money without any, if he is a mind to. For all the good you get from such periodicals, you might as well, probably, throw the money they cost into the fire ; they are nothing but humbugs."

'I pay two dollars for the New England Farmer, one dollar for the Cultivator, three dollars for the Horticulturist, and two dollars for Hovev's Magazine-in all eight dollars."

"Eight dollars ! enough to buy a "tip top" barrel of flour, and a leg of bacon ; and then if you read these periodicals, there is twice the amount of money spent in time reading them."

"I do usually read or hear read, almost every word there is in them; my boys and I us about the price of some fruit trees I bought take turns in reading, and one reads aloud five years ago last spring?" while the rest work."

" Complete nonsense ! no wonder your shop don't turn out any more boots in a day than it does !"

" Perhaps we don't do as great a day's work. It will come very handy just now." some days, as some of our neighbors, but I guess that in the course of the year, we turn it won't "come very handy just now." That out as many, according to the hands at work, | was what I was dunning you for, that twentyas most do."

"I suppose it is out of these publications you get your foolish notions about so many kinds of fruit trees. One of my boys came home a while ago, and said Mr. Briggs had "More got lots of fruit trees and such things, that cost, I don't know how much, and wanted me to buy some grape vines, pear trees and so on. I told him it was all foolishness, and not to let him say anything about spending money so foolishly. You have I dare say, laid out ten or fifteen dollars, this spring."

"Yes nearly as much again ; I have laid out twenty-five dollars for trees and garden fruits." "Twenty-five dollars ! I wonder you are not on the town, or in jail at least, before now. "I'm not afraid of either; I'll bet you the twenty-five dollars, I'll sell you that amount of fruit from these things for which I paid the twenty-five dollars, in five years !"

Done ! I'll stand you ; so your trees will cost fifty dollars sure, in money, besides the time thrown away in setting them out and taking care of them.'

As for the time spent in setting them out, or taking care of them, it is a good exercise as as playing ball, wicket, or anything else .-While we were setting them out, one of your boys came to get my boys to go over to Mr. Moody's where he said was to be a great time playing ball ; and I have no doubt your boys spend just as much time playing as mine do with our trees and so forth ; and then something is done, but in playing, the strength is all laid out for nothing.'

"Well, it don't cost anything to play ball, but trees cost money."

The foregoing conversation occurred in the shop between two neighbors, both boot makers, in a town not more than thirty miles from Boston.

Aver's CATRABTIC PILLS have been prepared with the utmost skill which the medical profession of this age possesses, and their effects show they have virtues which surpass any combination of medicines hitherto known. Other pre-parations do more or les good ; but this cures such dan-gerous complaints, so quick and so surely, as to prove an efficacy and a power to uproot disease beyond any thing which men have known before. By removing the obstruc-tions of the internal organs and stimulating them into healthy action, they removate the fountains of life and vigor—health courses anew through the body, and the sick man is well again. They are adapted to disease, and disease only, for when taken by one in health they pro-duce but little effect. This is the perfection of medicine, it is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender chil-dren may take them with impunity. If they are sick they wilk cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm.

took place, was a man of more than ordinary intelligence for one of his advantages and eircumstances in life. He had been a poor boy, and by industry, observation and economy, had worked his way on in life and reared and well educated a family of children, who like hinself, were industrious and steady. For the few years past, he had become interested in horticulture, and both for exercise and amusement, had turned his attention to cultivating "one acre farm." If is attention was first called to this by means of a "back number" of the New England Farmer which was put round some things bought at the store. Mr. Briggs found this so interesting, that he purchased another number at the periodical depot, and then he became a regular subscriber. His sons soon became interested in the same direction, and the interest of the father and sons increased to the pitch indicated in the foregoing conversation.

In time, every inch of that acre of ground was "brought under the spade," and almost every "best" variety of fruit trees had a place there, and the father and sons found pleasure and profit in the garden after being cooped up in the shop till the "stent" was done, and the exercise was far more profitable than the spasmodic, violent exercise taken in games.

Mr. Chapman, the other neighbor, was a man of the "common stamp." He looked upon everything new or uncommon as "folly" and "nonsense," and was ready to sucer at every one who stepped aside from the common track. It looked simply silly to him to see a man stay at home from "muster," or " training," or "shows," spending his time in cultivating a instead of loitering away the garden ; or, evening at the store, smoking, and hearing and telling a deal of nothing or to spend the evening at home, reading such "nonsense" as the Farmer and Horticulturist affords.

Years pass, and Mr. Briggs' " one acre farm" shows that he and his boys have not read "the papers" in vain. They have learned to "set out" a tree, and how to "take care" of it after it was set out. Everything showed it received the right kind of food and care, straightway began to bring forth fruits meet for good cultivation. In a short time the wants of the family were more than supplied, and the surplus found a ready market with the neighbors at good prices.

Those early apples, so rich and tempting, when all other apples were so green and hard ! and then such pears ; they went as fast as the sun and house could ripen them at three, four and five cents apiece. Then such clusters of rich, ripe grapes-too tempting for the coldest to pass without a watering mouth. Mr. Chapman's family were among the best customers for the tempting fruit-first having learned their excellency by the liberality of Mr. Briggs, who never failed to send a specimen of his best to his neighbor.

The fifth season came. It was a fruitful year. Apples, pear, peach, plum, and all other trees were loaded with fruit. Keeping thought of : but it takes so much time and bother to get these things started-then it is an everlasting job to take care of them."

"It needs no more time and money than you throw away on things that amount to nothing at all, and with abundance of fruit you save the expense of a heavy meat bill, which is not healthy in hot weather. No doctor has been called to step foot into my door for over four years past ! Fresh ripe fruits are sure remedies for all ailment, and they are not hard to take.

Mr. Chanyman put the "fifty" into his weaselskin," and left with a "flea in his ear.

For the past ten years I have succeeded in reserving my corn from the depredations of birds and worms, by a very simple and easy process. I throw about half a bushel of seed at a time into an iron kettle, and then add about three half gills of tar, stirring the mass briskly in the meanwhile ; then continue stirring until every grain looks as if it had received a coat of varnish. To know when the process is completed, throw the corn into a heap against one side of the kettle, and if right it will creep slowly back again, and in time regain something approaching a hard suface .---This part of the operation, which need not a

any time occupy ten minutes, is faciliated by doing it under a hot sun. Next sift about a quart of dry lime over the corn, and then stir until every grain is coated with lime and rendered perfectly dry. Three minutes will suffice to do this. In the absence of lime, wood ashes will answer very well. Birds cannot or will not eat corn so treated. They may pull up a stalk or two, but when they find how matters stand, they leave for some other field.

It was to guard against the depredations of birds, that I adopted this device ; but I found by experience, that it not only preserved corn against them, but that worms would not cut stalks springing from tarred seed. Doubtless some slight traces of the tar is taken up by the young plant, and being as is well known, highly offensive to all animals of that kind, the plant escapes from the attacks of this enemy also.

The seed germinates as quickly, and the plants come up as uniformly and vigorously, as f planted bare. Indeed, ever since I adopted this method, I have had neither loss, trouble nor anxiety from birds or worms; and if I could have my way, no one should kill a crow or blackbird on my premises, or in my neighborhood. NATURAL MISTAKE .- An agricultural gentleman while reading a fashionable newspaper, a few days since, was perfectly horrified at the description of a "marriage in high life," in which the reporter stated, "we have been favored with a peep at the bride's trousseau."-He indignantly exclaimed, "To have them in mind his conversation with Mr. Chapman, made beforehand showed her full determination Mr. Briggs had directed his family to set down to wear them after marriage." (your agent for this place,) has done wonders for me. I had been in a state of decline for more than a year, afflicted with a dreadful couch, pain in the breast, generial debility, and loss of appetite. I be-came almost a skeleton, and had been unable to leave my room for more than two months; my friends told me I had the Consumption and despaired of my recovery. I could not obtain any permanent relief from any medicine I had taken, or my physician, until your Wine and Pills were procured. The first dose of the Pills brought up from my stemach, much phlem and greenish matter, and my stools were perfectly black. I then commenced taking your Forest Wine three times a day, my appetite began to return immediately, my cough left me, and in less than two weeks I was almost well. I now enjoy better health than I ever did before, having increased twenty-five pounds in seven weeks.
