Another Mode of Planting Potatoes.

For two years we have been trying to in duce some of our readers to try an experiment in the cultivation of potatoes, but whether we have been successful or not we have no means of knowing, as no person has reported progress There is no crop that has paid so well the past season as potatoes, and there is no crop so certain or so easily raised. Potatoes have been a legal tender in this market ever since free bank money began to depreciate, at one dollar and fifty cents a bushel. There is no crop that may be raised so easily as potatoes, nor one that can be raised more profitably. With the hopes that some of the readers of the Courier may be induced to try the experiment the coming season, and report the results, we again publish the plan for raising this indispensable vegetable. Let the farmer or the gardener select some refuse lot, or part of a lot, of sod ground. Do not plow it, but when planting time comes, say between the 10th of May and first of June, place potatoe cuttings on the grass of the said ground, from 12 to 18 inches apart, using about the same amount, or perhaps a little more seed than is used in the ordinary way of planting. Cover the ground thus sown with coarse straw, corn stalks, leaves, or any refuse matter of the kind, to a depth of 6 to 10 inches-just enough to kill the grass and prevent it growing. The potatoe vines will find their way through this covering without difficulty, and form a mat, which will prevent the straw or other covering from being blown off by the wind. Potatoes planted in this way will need no plowing or hoeing. In the fall, when the vines are killed with frost, take a strong rake and uncover the potatoes, which will be found covering the ground, large, dry, and clean enough for the dinner kettle without washing. The ground will be found to have lost none of its virtue, but will, in fact, be enriched by the process. The labor prescribed, it will be seen, s much less than will be required by the old method of plowing, planting, hoeing and digging. The result will be, in nine cases out of ten, a much larger crop of much nicer potatoes-and what is better still, they will not be subjected to the rot.

Almost every farmer has stacks of straw which have been run over by his stock during the winter, and which is of no use except for this purpose. Why not at least try this simple experiment? Its cost is trifling, except for the Farmers of Tippecanoe, how many of you will give the experiment a fair trial-measure your ground, and report the the result for the information of the rest of the readers of the Courier? Select two spots of ground, if you choose-one wet and the other dry-so as to meet the season. If the season should be dry, your wet ground will be more likely to succeed if the season be wet, your dry ground will produce the best. Several farmers and gardeners pomised to try the experiment last year, but we have heard of none that did so. For your encouragement we will state that we have ourselves raised at the rate of over nine hundred bushels of potatoes to the acre by this simple method. A big story, but true notwithstanding. If this table vegetable should command the price of the past winter, we presume our farmer readers would be satisfied with one third of that amount, and make more money at that than by raising corn .- Lafayette (Indiana) Courier.

ULTIMATE EFFECTS OF GUANO.-The great value of guano as an application to worn or exhausted soils is very generally conceded, especially when used in giving poor land a start so that a course of rotation and cropping car be commenced with encouraging results. But further observation and experience are needed to show whether it can be depended upon year after year for the fertilizing of the farm, the same as barn-yard manure. We find this subject started in the Piedmont (Va.) Whig, a paper containing editorial articles of value to the agriculturist. It is well known that guano has been the great manure for the renovation of the exhausted soils of that section, and that its use and value is probably better understood there than elsewhere in the country. The law of action and reaction is applicable to the soil, as well as to all else in nature .-"Everything stimulated or excited to an unusual degree of action, must suffer a corresponding depression after the excitement is And all ammoniacal manures seem to have an active, stimulating effect, perceived almost immediately in the increased growth of the products of the soil to which it is applied. This is illustrated, and also its ultimate results, in a case mentioned by Liebig, and referred to by our authority. The vine-growers of one of the principal Rhine wine regions made a disco very by means of which they doubled their crop of grapes.

Unfortunately, in a year or two, their specific not only failed to accomplish the purpose expected, but their crops dwindled away almost to nothing. They had stimulated their vines by manuring them with shaving of horn, which contains a large quantity of ammonia and when the re-action came, the product fell as far below the medium standard as it had for a year or two been above it. The vines, too, were permanently injured by this treatment, and were never restored to their original condition. Another case is related of a Virginia gardener who, when guano was first introduced, made a trial of it upon some rose bushes.

'The consequence was such a developmen of flowers as no one had ever seen before .-The trees were loaded with a profusion of roses. of the finest quality. But it soon became manifest that it was only a temporary excitement, soon to be succeeded by a corresponding depression. The trees never recovered fully from the shock which they had received, and

Some of them perished outright." From this it would appear that on perennial plants, the continual application of guano produces very injurious effects in the end, but these effects would probably be much less on annuals, renewed from year to year, like the grain crops. But still some results must be produced, and this it should be made the object of careful experiment to ascertain. There can be no question, however, of the importance of this manure to the country, and everything going to show how it can best be employed, and giving a better understanding of the results which may be expected, will be of value .-Rural New Yorker.

Manure is the capital upon which farmers do business; and the man who teaches them how to obtain it at a reasonable rate, and in sufficient quantities, does the public better service, than if he lectured the live-long day on copper and eilver mines, and amused their eleepy hours with golden dreams.

AYER'S PILLS.

A ND CHERRY PECTORAL.—The following remedies are offered to the public as the best, most perfect, which medical science can afford. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS have been prepared with the utmost skill which the medical profession of this age possesses, and their effects show they have virtues which surpass any combination of medicines hitherto known. Other preparations do more or les good; but this cures such dangerous complaints, so quick and so surely, as to prove an efficacy and a power to uproot disease beyond any thing which men have known before. By removing the obstructions of the internal organs and stimulating them into healthy action, they renovate the fountains of life and vigor—health courses aney through the body, and the sick man is well again. They are adapted to disease, and disease only, for when taken by one in health they produce but little effect. This is the perfection of medicine. It is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender children may take them with impunity. If they are sick they will cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm. ND CHERRY PECTORAL.—The fol-will cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm.

Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with bilious complaint; see his bent-up, tottering form straighten with strength again; see his long-lost appetite return; see his clammy features blossom into health. Give them to some sufferer whose foul blood has burst out in scrofula till his skin is covered with sores; who stands, or sits, or lies in anguish. He has been drenched inside and out with exery every potion which ingenuity could suggest. Give him these Pills, and mark the effect; see the scabs fall from his body; see the new, fair skin that has grown under them; see the late leper that is clean. Give them to him whose angry humors have planted rheumatism in his joints and bones; move him, and he screeches with pain; he too has been soaked through every muscle of his body with linaments and salves; give him these Pills to purify his blood; they may not cure him, for olas! there cases which no mortal power can reach; but mark, he walks with crutches now, and now he walkes alone; they have cured him. Give them to the lean, sour, haggard dyspeptic, whose gnawing stomach has long ago eaten every smile from his face and every muscle from his body. See his appetite return, and with this health; see the new man. See her that was radiant with health and loveliness blasted and too early withering away; want of exercise, or mental anguish, or some lurking disease has deranged the internal organs of digestion, assimilation, or secretion, till they do they do their office ill. Her blood is vitiated, her health is gone. Give her these Pills to stimulate the vital principle into renewed vigor, to cast out the obstructions, and infuse a new vitality into the blood. Now look again—the roses blossom on her check, and where sorrow sat, joy bursts from every feature. See the sweet infant wasted with worms. Its wan, sickly features tell you without disguise, and painfully distinct, that they are eating its life away. Its pinched-up nose and ears, and restle arm. Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with

Through a trial of many years and through every nation for $1.

Through a trial of many years and through every nation of civilized me, AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has been found to afford more relief and to cure more cases of pulmonary disease than any other remedy known to mankind. Cases of apparently settled Consumption have been cured by it, and thousands of sufferers who were deemed beyond the reach of human aid have been restored to their friends and usefulness, to sound health and the enjoyments of life, by this all-powerful antidote to diseases of the lungs and throat. Here a cold had settled on the lungs. The dry, hacking cough, the glassy eye, and the pale, thin features of him who was lately lusty and strong whisper to all but him Consumption. He tries everything; but the disease is gnawing at his vitals, and shows its fatal symptoms more and more over all his fame. He is taking the Cherry Pectoral now: it has stopped his cough and made his breathing easy: his sleep is sound at night: his appetite returns, and with it his strength. The dart which pierced his side is broken. Scarcely any neighborhood can be found which has not some living trophy like this to shadow forth the virtues which have won for the Cherry Pectoral an imperishable renown. Influenza, Croup, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Pleurisy, Whooping Cough, and all irritations of the throat and lungs are easily cured by the Cherry Pectoral if taken in season. Every family should have it by them, and they will find it an idvaluable protection from the insidious prowler which carries off the parent sheep from many a flock, the darling lamb from many a home.

The method by which all Sarssaparillas, and other similar medicines are prepared, is by boiling the Roots of plants to obtain the extracts. Their medicinal virtues are thus principally evaporated and destroyed.

It is not to be wondered at then, that 10 and even 20 bottles of these Sarsaparillas are sometimes taken without any perceptible benefit. Not so with the Forest Wine.—By the invention of a wonderful chemical apparatus, a perfect wine is produced without beating; retaining, at the same time, all the primitive healing properties of the rare medicinal plants of which it is composed, thus rendering the Forest Wine the most efficient medicine the world ever produced, at the same time time the most agreeable.

MORE TESTIMONY FROM COHOES.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: My wife last autumn was reduced to a low state of Debility. My family physician advised her to take your Forest Wine. Accordingly I went to Mr. Terry's, your agent in this town, and procured a bottle of it, which restored her in a very short time to perfect health. ed a bottle of 16, which to perfect health.

APPETITE.

DR. HALSEY: Hempstead, Dec. 1, 1847.

A bottle of your Forest Wine and box of Pills, which I procured of James Carr. (your agent for this place,) has done wonders for me. I had been in a state of decline for more than at year, afflicted with a dreadful cough, pain in the breast, general debility, and loss of appetite. I became almost a skeleton, and had been unable to leave my room for more than two months and included. in the breast, general debility, and loss of appetite. I became almost a skeleton, and had been unable to leave my room for more than two months; my friends told me I had the Consumption and despaired of my recovery. I could not obtain any permanent relief from any medicine I had taken, or my physician, until your Wine and Pills were procured. The first dose of the Pills brought up from my stemach, much phlem and greenish matter, and my stools were perfectly black. I then commenced taking your Forest Wine three times a day, my appetite began to return immediately, my cough left me, and in less than two weeks I was almost well. I now enjoy better health than I ever did before, having increased twenty-five pounds in seven weeks. Your Forest Wine and Pills are highly valued in this vicinity, and I owe my recovery entirely to their virtues.

AFFECTIONS OF THE KIDNEYS.

Mr. T. J. Gillies, a highly respectable Merchant of No. 308 Broadway, New York, cured of a severe affection of the Kidneys by the Forest Wine and Pills.

Dr. G. W. HALSEY: New-York, March 12, 1853.

Dear Sir—In the summer and fall of last year I had a severe complaint of the Kidneys, which rendered me quite unfit for business. I procured your Forest Wine and Pills which cured me in a few weeks time, and I have since enjoyed better health than I had for many years previously. From their efficacy in my own case, and from what I know your medicines to have done for others, I am induced to recommend them as the best medicines with which I am acquainted.

Yours, respectfully,

T. J GILLIES.
