likely soon to become so.

It has been remarked, that few horses sleep without pointing one ear forward and one backward in order that they may receive notice of the approach of any objects in any direction. When horses or mules march in company at night, those in front direct their ear forward; and those in the middle of the train turn them laterally, thus seeming to be actuated by one feeling, which watches their general

The ear of the horse is one of the most beautiful parts about him, and by this is the temper more safely indicated. The ear is more intelligible even than the eye; and a person accustomed to the horse, can tell, by the expressive motion of the organ, almost all that he thinks or means. When a horse lays his ears flat back on his neck, he most assuredly means mischief, and bystanders should beware of his heels or feet. In play the ears will be laid back, but, not so decidedly nor so long .-A quick change in their position, and more particularly the expression of the eye at the time will distinguish between playfulness and make impression in the human ear, are readily perceived by him. It is a well known to every nunting man, that the cry of hounds will be recognized by the horse, and his ears will be erect, and he will be all spirit, and impatience, a considerable time before the rider is conscious of the least sound .- The Horse and the Rider.

PREPARE BONES FOR MANURE. - Let a barrel or hogshead be set in some convenient place, wherein all the bones usually scattered from the kitchen may be collected. This will save the farmer's back yard from one source of offence, and his premises from the annoyance of prowling curs, if no more. Put in first a layer of ashes, and then spread on the bones -the more evenly the better-then add more ashes and sufficient water to keep them well moistened, but not so as to leach. Continue the addition of bones, keeping on sufficient ashes to cover them, and generally before the barrel is full those at the bottom will become a soft paste-like mass, readily cut with a shovel, and then should be mixed with ashes. The whole forms an excellent application to almost any crop, either of the field or garden. We have tried it upon the latter with the best effect, especially upon cabbages, turnips, beans and various vines.

Such a preparation of bones have been applied to corn in the hill, at the rate of half a pint to each, and produced a greater product than half that quantity of guano applied at the same time for the purpose of comparison. It has been used year after year, upon the same field and always with the best success-each crop seeming better than the last. We hope these remarks will set our economical people to work, for if this be done manure, compared with guano, is worth $30 per ton, it is will well worth saving—and the thousands of scattered and wasted sources of fertility may better be employed than to go to Peru for an article far less profitable, considering cost and result .-Rural New Yorker.

APPLES FOR STOCK .- We have a mine of wealth scarcely opened in fruit and fruit growing. The cultivation of apples particularly will yet prove to be the strong point of American farming. What the root crop is to Great Britain, apples are to America! Our dry seasons, while they are greatly prejudicial to root husbandry, admit of a fine growth of fruit .-I have seen statements which go to show that our good varieties of apples are superior to turnips in their nutritive qualities, and quite equal to potatoes and other popular roots .-When I commenced raising Durham calves, I feed them on about the usual allowance of milk. and added after a little moderate quantity of apples, which I continued through the winter. In the spring a cattle buyer of extensive practice declared my calves the best he had seen. They owed their excellence to apples.

Though I had, perhaps, as much orcharding as any man in my town, I have just set out 1,000 additional trees, and at my earliest convenience I intend to double the dose. If apples will sell, say for 25 cents per bushel, they are more profitable for market than anything I can raise, and if they won't sell sell for as much as that, they afford cheaper and better nutriment for man and beast than we can get in any other way. I have never found anything in the way domestic stock but what will eat them, and If I should find such a reprobate, I would not keep it an hour.

Some sort of succulent food is required by all animals, and apples in this country are just adapted to that necessity .- Mr. Brock's Ad-

DWARF PEAR TREES .- Drarf pears on quinces stocks are not only beautiful objects, but bear earlier and more freely and certain, and produce larger and finer fruit than those grown on free stocks. They are also, by their small height and size, better adapted to gardens and restricted grounds, easier managed, giving greater room for variety, as well as presenting fruit easy of access, and secure from high winds, often very injurious to standard trees. The pyramidial form of training is the most beautiful, takes up the least room, and gives the best fruit. No garden should be without its dwarf pear trees, at once so productive and ornamental.

CANADA THISTLES CHANGING TO CHESS .- A correspondent in a late number of the Michigan Farmer, gives a statement of the successful destruction of a patch of Canada thistles, by repeated plowing through sammer-a mode that has often before proved successful. But the whole field being sown with wheat, the exact portion on which the thistles were killed, was covered with nothing but chess. He thinks the the wheat changed to chess, but we are rather inclined to think the injured thistle roots must have been the progenitors, on the principle that a weed will be more likely to produce another bad one. Should we expect to gather grapes of thorns, figs of thistles, or inversely, chess from good grain? We at least commend this enggestion to our Michigan friend—Country

Medical.

A ND CHERRY PECTORAL.—The following remedies are offered to the public as the best, most perfect, which medical science can afford. Aver's Caphartic Pills have been prepared with the utmost skill which the medical profession of this age possesses, and their effects show they have virtues which surpass any combination of medicines hitherto known. Other preparations do more or les good; but this cures such dangerous complaints, so quick and so surely, as to prove an efficacy and a power to uproot disease beyond any thing which men have known before. By removing the obstructions of the internal organs and stimulating them into healthy action, they renovate the fountains of life and vigor—health courses anew through the body, and the sick man is well again. They are adapted to disease, and disease only, for when taken by one in health they produce but little effect. This is the perfection of medicine. It is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender children may take them with impunity. If they are sick they will cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm.

Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with

It is antagonistic to disease, and no more. Tender children may take them with impunity. If they are sick they will cure them, if they are well they will do them no harm.

Give them to some patient who has been prostrated with billious complaint; see his bent-up, tottering form straighten with strength again; see his long-lost appetite return; see his clammy features blossom into health. Give them to some sufferer whose foul blood has burst out in scrofula till his skin is covered with sores; who stands, or sits, or lies in anguish. He has been drenched inside and out with exery every potion which ingenuity could suggest. Give him these Pills, and mark the effect; see the scabs fall from his body; see the new, fair skin that has grown under them; see the late leper that is clean. Give them to him whose angry humors have planted rheumatism in his joints and bones; move him, and he screeches with pain; he too has been soaked through every muscle of his body with linaments and salves; give him these Pills to purify his blood; they may not cure him, for olas! there cases which no mortal power can reach; but mark, he walks with cratches now, and now he walkes alone; they have cured him. Give them to the lean, sour, haggard dyspeptic, whose gnawing stomach has long ago eaten every smile from his face and every muscle from his body. See his appetite return, and with it his health; see the new man. See her that was radiant with health and loveliness blasted and too early withering away; want of exercise, or mental anguish, or some lurking disease has deranged the internal organs of digestion, assimilation, or secretion, till they do they do their office ill. Her blood is vitiated, her health is gone. Give her these Pills to stimulate the vital principle into renewed vigor, to cast out the obstructions, and infuse a new vitality into the blood. Now look again—the roses blossom on her cheek, and where sorrow sat, joy bursts from every feature. See the sweet infant wasted with worms. Its wan, sickly features tell you with

Through a trial of many years and through every nation of civilized me, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been found to afford more relief and to cure more cases of pulmonary disease than any other remedy known to mankind. Cases of apparently settled Consumption have been cured by it, and thousands of sufferers who were deemed beyond the reach of human aid have been restored to their friends and usefulness, to sound health and the enjoyments of life, by this all-powerful antidote to discases of the lungs and throat. Here a cold had settled on the lungs. The dry, hacking cough, the glassy eye, and the pale, thin features of him who was lately lusty and strong whisper to all but him Consumption. He tries everything; but the disease is gnawing at his vitals, and shows its fatal symptoms more and more over all his fame. He is taking the Cherry Pectoral now: it has stopped his cough and made his breathing casy: his steep is sound at night: his appetite returns, and with it his strength. The durt which pierced his side is broken. Scarcely any neighborhood can be found which has not some living trophy like this to shadow forth the virtues which have won for the Cherry Pectoral an imperishable renown. Influenza, Croup, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Pleurisy, Whooping Cough, and all irritations of the throat and lungs are easily cured by the Cherry Pectoral if taken in season. Every family should have it by them, and they will find it an idvaluable protection from the insidious prowler which carries off the parent sheep from many a flock, the darling lamb from many a lome.

to obtain the extracts. Their medicinal virtues are thus principally evaporated and destroyed.

It is not to be wondered at then, that 10 and even 20 bottles of these Sarsaparillas are sometimes taken without any perceptible beneit. Not so with the Forest Wine.—By the invention of a wonderful chemical apparatus, a perfect wine is produced without beating; retaining, at the same time, all the primitive healing properties of the rare medicinal plants of which it is composed, thus rendering the Forest Wine the most efficient medicine the world ever produced, at the same time the most agreeable.

DREADFUL COUGH, DEBILITY, AND LOSS OF APPETITE.

DR. HALSEY: Hempstead, Dec. 1, 1847.

A bottle of your Forest Wine and box of Pills, which I procured of James Carr. (your agent for this place,) has done wonders for me. I had been in a state of decline for more than a year, afflicted with a dreadful cough, pain in the breast, general debility, and loss of appetite. I became almost a skeleton, and had been unable to leave my arm for more than a year than two months, and founds to the say. came almost a skeleton, and had been unable to leave my room for more than two months; my friends told me I had the Consumption and despaired of my recovey. I could not obtain any permanent relief from any medicine I had taken, or my physician, until your Wine and Pills were procured. The first dose of the Pills brought up from my stemach, much phlem and greenish matter, and my stools were perfectly black. I then commenced taking your Forest Wine three times a day, my appetite began to return immediately, my cough left me, and in less than two weeks I was almost well. I now enjoy better health than I ever did before, having increased twenty-five pounds in seven weeks. Your Forest Wine and Pills are highly valued in this vicinity, and I owe my recovery entirely to

AFFECTIONS OF THE KIDNEYS.

Mr. T. J. Gillies, a highly respectable Merchant of No. 308 Broadway, New York, cured of a severe affection of the Kidneys by the Forest Wine and Pills.

Dr. G. W. HALSEY: New-York, March 12, 1853.

Dear Sir—In the summer and fall of last year I had a severe complaint of the Kidneys, which rendered me quite unfit for business. I procured your Forest Wine and Pills which cured me in a few weeks time, and I have since enjoyed better health than I had for many years previously. From their efficacy in my oan case, and from what I know your medicines to have done for others, I am induced to recommend them as the best medicines with which I am acquainted. Yours, respectfully, Yours, respectfully,
