We have no doubt from the ex-sheriff's "antecedents," that this affair will be a grand one; and we advise all who have not (like ourselves) given up such vanities, to attend, as we are certain they will find everything to their liking.

[For the Bradford Reporter.] Educational.

At a meeting of the Bradford County Teachers' Association, held at Orwell Hill, on the 8th and 9th instant, it was ordered and decreed that there be a committee of one male and one female appointed to prepare, or cause to be prepared, an article for the Reporter, upon the subject of popular education, once in two weeks: also a similar committee for the Argus. It was further ordered and decreed, that your humble servant should be one of said com-

Now, therefore, in accordance with said order, and with your assent, I will proceed to present to your readers a few thoughts, hints and suggestions, upon school house, their locality, structure, arrangement and so forth. I am aware, that I am treading upon a delicate subject; every tax payer in the County, who has no children to educate, and who cares nothing for the education of the rising generation, only so far as that education will increase the actual value of his property during his lifetime; I say every such person is ready to say. "why, I do not see but our school house will a swer well enough for some years yet-it is as good as the one I went to school in." Now, although I may perchance tread upon the toes of some such person, I shall give my views plainly.

First as to the locality of a district schoolhouse. The general practice is, to select a piece of ground that is either in such a shape that it is not worth fencing, or so poor that it will not pay for cultivating; or else put the building in the corner where three or more roads cross each other, so as not to be obliged for their dwelling houses? When a man is about to build a habitation for himself and family, does he look for the poorest spot on his farm, because the land occupied by the house will be rendered valueless for cultivation? By no means, the pleasantest spot on the farm is selected. The place must be easy of access, sightly, descending in the right direction, and free from everything that shall in the least degree impair the beauty of the situation. Is it not as important to have a pleasant, healthful locality for the building in which the children and youth of successive generations are to rein a convenient and pleasant part of the district, of sufficient size to have large play grounds for both males and females, which grounds should be enclosed by a neat fence, and tastefully ornamented with trees and shrubbery.
