Yesterday was celebrated by an important and auspicious event, which may be termed the harbinger of an increased traffic for Philadelphia, through a new and highly interesting region of Pennsylvania. We refer to the opening of the First Division of the Northern Pennsylvania Railroad to Gwynned, a distance of about nineteen miles. A Committee of the City Councils, representatives of the press, and many prominent citizens were invited on the been nearly one hundred in number. Judge Kelley and several distinguished members of the Bar were also present. The cars left the new and very commodious station of the Company, shortly after eleven o'clock, and were drawn by mules to Master street, where a locomotive was attached to the train and we were whirled along with great speed over an exceedingly beautiful country, in which highly cultivated farms and fields were agreeably alternated with majestic and park-like groves. hill and dale, and watered with sparkling brooks and streams.

After leaving Master street, the cars stoped at the following s tations :- Tioga street. Fisher's Lane, Green Lane, Oak Lane, City Line, Old York Road, Chelten Hills, Taconev. Edge Hill, Camp Hill, Fort Washington, the Wissahickon, Pennlyd, Gwynned.

The rails on the road are 70 pounds to the vard, and the rail-layers were Messrs. Wher & Myers. Their work is substantially executed. The Company have three engines of great power, the Aramingo, the Cohocksink, and the Shackamaxon, built by Baldwin & Co., while the passenger-cars are numerous, large, handsome, and well furnished. The train was decorated with flags along the entire line of the excursion, and at every village and station, the arrival was greeted by crowds of people. Mr. John Miller was the engineer, Thomas M'Cann, fireman. We were informed by Mr. Du Barry, Principal Assistant Engineer, that the first three or four miles of the road were slightly undulating, with ascending and descending grades, but betweeen sections six and eight, the ascent for a mile was 60 feet, passing over summit and descending to the waters of Taconey Creek. To Edge Hill Summit, the grade s 40 feet to the mile, and there is a deep cut through hard rock, 47 feet in the deepest part, and more than 1400 feet in length. Then the road descends to Sandy Creek, thence rises again to Fort Washington Station, and passing over the waters and valley of the Wissahickon by means of lofty and substantial tressel work bridges, it arrives at Gwynned, where a handsome hotel is in progress of erection .-About a mile beyond Gwynned, the road passes through a cut 60 feet deep, and then a tunnel 500 feet in length, which is now nearly finished 260 men being there at work, the incessant blasting of rocks sounding like the explosions of beavy artillery.

We learn that the road will then go over Hatfield Plains, and that there will be another cut 35 feet deep, and another tunnel 2170 feet long-soon after which it will reach the Lehigh valley and river, and thus open an extensive agricultural and mineral traffic to Philaelphia enterprise. The regular business of the road will commence to-day. A. F. Hopkins Esq., member of Councils, Mr. Peck, Mr.
M'Call, and other gentlemen acted as conductors, and to these gentlemen, as well as to Mr.
John W. Gillingham, the regular conductor, all who participated in the celebration are indebted for much politeness and attention. After examining the Gwynned terminus and its

S. Fernon, Esq., President of the Company, rose and briefly addressed his guests to the following effect :-

GENTLEMEN: -We are assembled to inaugurate into public use the North Pennsylvania Railroad. Although, but a short space is completed, yet that portion is of the most substantial character. Mr. F. described the prospects to the country between Philadelphia and Gwynned, and expressed his belief that ere long, the road would be entirely open to the Lehigh river. The wealth of the Lehigh Valley, in coal, zinc and other minerals, was dwelt upon to the Lehigh Valley. The land is situated in Overton township, in the centre of the Coal and Iron region of Bradford County, and on it have been found large deposits of iron ore of a superior quality. This property to Lumbering men offers greater inducements than any other in Noruhern Pennsylvania, inasmuch as the timber has never been culled out, and lying as it does within 2½ miles of the Barclay Coal Company Railroad, now in process of construction, and connecting by said Railroad, with the River and Canal at this place.

There have been opened upon this property three beds of IRON ORE, of a very superior quality and richness, two of which are ten feet in thickness each, yielding about 35 to 40 per cent, pure metal, and one smaller yielding a much greater per cent.; all extending through 900 acres of the property. This ore is easy of access, and can be procured at a very small expense.

Persons desirous of viewing the premises will call on the subscriber at this place.
