Here are some hints in regard to eider mak ing, which may prove serviceable to those of our readers who contemplate producing that pleasant beverage for the coming winter even-

Whatever be the sort of apples employed, cer tain it is, that the longer the fruit remains on the tree, without decay or being injured by frost, the better; for not only is the perfect maturity of the fruit a great consideration, but such is the susceptibility of applejuice, that the colder the weather, short of actual frost, the more quiet and equable will be the fermentation. The proximate elements of this juice are held together very feebly, and tend to such a rapid fermen-tation, that the destruction of the whole is the inevitable result of too early an excitement by our mild temperature, The apples, therefore, should remain on the trees, and not be gathered until the approach of cool bracing weather; and then during the finest and driest occasion that offers itself. They should be carefully gathered. It is not that a bruise would of itself injure the price, but experience teaches, that whatever the cause of mould, mouldiness will meet with prompt attention.

April 4, 1854. ry wound of a fruit gathered in autumn ; and whenever this mysterious visitant establishes itself, it communicates a most disgusting flavor to a great bulk of any material, solid or fluid. Being gathered, the apples are to be stored in some shady, cool room-fenced in heaps, wherein they undergo a further ripening, acquire more sacharine matter, and lose a considerable quantity of watery juice. In the ordinary practice of extensive apple growers, they are suffered to lie for some days in heaps on the grass under the trees, and suffered this change there.'

Another writer of standard anthority says of this subject : "The characteristics of a good cider apple are, a red skin, yellow and often tough and fibrous pulp, astringency dryness and ripeness in the cider season." It appears to us that these are not the qualities usually sought for in apples by our cider makers. Mr. Knight, the distinguished horticulturist, asserts, that "when the rind and pulp are green, the cider will always be thin, weak and colorless; and when these are deeply tinged with yellow, it will, however manufactured, or in whatever soil the fruit may have grown, almost always possess color, and either strength or rich Nearly all writers of any repute, who have treated the subject of cider making, agree that the apple should be thoroughly ripe, and gathered on a dry day.

The soil has something to do with the quality of cider. That made from apples grown on a shallow loam with a limestone basis, has been found to be the strongest, as well as the most highly flavored. Calcareous soils are well adapted for cider orchards.

It is contended that the pomace should be exposed to the air sometimes before pressing, Mr. Knight ascertained by experiment, that pomace thus exposed for a few hours had the specific quality of the juice increased from 1.064 to 1.078. This accession was ascertained by after experiment to be oxygen, which, according to Lavoisier, contributes 64 per cent. of sugar. These are points of interest, and as an unusual quantity of cider will be made this season, we direct the attention of the reader to

Saving Manures .- After the hay harvest is over farmers have leisure time enough to attend to the making of composts. Stable manure must not be suffered to lie long in heaps without mixing it with much other matter. That from horses in particular will heat to excess in a very few days, provided it lies light and admits the air to the hear

But even this kind of manure will not heat in case it is trodden down to exclude the air. Let a horse in a stable, twelve feet square, stand on his mannre and tread it close and there is no danger of heating. It is on this principle that when we want to prepare manure for the field early in the spring, we overhaul it often and throw it up as light as possible.

This is a good time to gather weeds and sods and peat mud to increase the compost heap. All the scrapings should be gathered, for all will be wanted for September seeding, or for spreading on grass lands in October. As to the barn-yard, that may be plowed before the compost matter is carried out. But we doubt much of the propriety of the practice of plowing often in the summer in barn-yards. We only expose the strong portions of the manure to evaporation. And if the cow-yard in the spring was well covered with loam or other matter, it may lie till September to be enriched by what is dropped by the cattle.

We object not to the use of a plow in the yard a few days before carting out to the field, for this makes the labor of shoveling easier and also serves to mix up the ingredients. It is a good practice to cover all the fresh manure by throwing on a little loam each morning. Have two or three heaps of loam in different parts of the yard, and use a shovel instead of a plow .--Mass, Plowman, STACKING CORNSTALKS.—A correspondent of the Boston Cultivator has tried various methods of curing his cornstalks, but without satisfactory success. Last fall after the stalks were sufficiently cured, he carried them into the barn, and instead of setting them up, as formerly, he packed them down and on every layer of stalks put a layer of fine salt, say a bushel The cattle eat them up clean and he to a ton. is satisfied with the result.

CABBAGE FOR Cows .- The editor of the Agricultural Gazette, (Eng.) estimates one acre of cabbages to be worth three acres of turnips for cows. He recommends sowing seeds in beds, either in antumn or spring, and trans-planting towards the end of May, at the rate of 8,000 plants to the acre. One pound of seed will produce about 1,400 plants.

To FATTEN FOWLS .- The best food for fattening fowls is potatoes mixed with meal. Boil the potatoes and mash them fine while they are hot, and mix the meal with them just before it is presented. They fatten on this diet in less than half the time ordinarily required to bring them to the same condition of excellence on corn, or even meal itself.

Subsoiling.—The roots of wheat have been traced four feet. Farmers usually plow four inches. Well, let the other three feet eight inches of roots take care of itself! A man must be in small business to be fussing over a place for wheat roots to run! The fact is, they have no business to run so far .- Exchange

If you have contracted the terrible disease, which when once seated in the system, will surely go down from one generation to another, undermining the constitution, and sapping the very vital fluids of life, do not trust yourself in the hands of Quacks, who start up every day in a city like this, and fill the papers with glaring falsehoods too well calculated to deceive the young and those not acquainted with their tricks. You cannot be too careful in the selection of a remedy in these cases.

The fluid extract Buchu has been pronounced by eminent Physicians

Discovery of the FOREST WINE is the greatest blessing of the age. Put up in Quart Bottles, a single bottle of which does more good, and goes further in the cure of Disease, than ton bottles of any Sarsaparilla in use, and warranted to cure without an unpleasant or weakening effect.

The method by which all Sarssaparillas, and other similar medicines are prepared, is by boiling the Roots of plants to obtain the extracts. Their medicinal virtues are thus principally evaporated and destroyed.

It is not to be wondered at then, that 10 and even 20 bottles of these Sarsaparillas are sometimes taken without

Not so with the Forest Wine.— By the invention of a wonderful chemical apparatus, a perby the invention of a wonderfur-terminal apparatus, a per-fect wine is produced without beating; retaining, at the same time, all the primitive healing properties of the rare medicinal plants of which it is composed, thus rendering the Forest Wine the most efficient medicine the world ever produced, at the same time time the most agreeable.

MORE TESTIMONY FROM COHOES.

DR. G. W. HALSEY—Dear Sir: My wife last autumn was reduced to a low state of Debility. My family physician advised her to take your Forest Wine. Accordingly I went to Mr. Terry's, your agent in this town, and procured a bottle of it, which restored her in a very short time to perfect health.

Br. Halsey: Hempstead, Dec. 1, 1847.

A bottle of your Forest Wine and box of Fills, which I procured of James Carr, (your agent for this place,) has done wonders for me. I had been in a state of decline for more than a year, afflicted with a dreadful cough, pain in the breast, general debility, and loss of appetite. I became almost a skeleton, and had been unable to leave my room for more than two months; my friends told me I had taken, or my physician, until your Wine and Pills were procured. The first dose of the Pills brought up from my stomach, much phlem and greenish matter, and my stools were perfectly black. I then commenced taking your Forest Wine three times a day, my appetite began to return immediately, my cough left me, and in less than two weeks I was almost well. I now enjoy better health than I ever did before, having increased twenty-five pounds in seven weeks. Your Forest Wine and Pills are highly valued in this vicinity, and I owe my recovery entirely to their virtues.

Dear Sir—In the summer and fall of last year I had a severe complaint of the Kidneys, which rendered me quite unfit for business. I procured your Forest Wine and Pills which cured me in a few weeks time, and I have since enjoyed better health than I had for many years previously. From their efficacy in my own case, and from what I know your medicines to have done for others, I am induced to recommend them as the best medicines with which I am acquainted.

Yours, respectfully,
