Work for the Month.

HOGS FOR FATTENING-THEIR TREATMENT, &C. -If you have them not already prepared, you should forthwith prepare your pens and yards for the hogs you intend to fatten. The pens should consist of two apartments ; the one for them to sleep in, the other to feed in ; they both should be tight, dry, warm, with doorway leading from the feeding room into an enclosed vard ; the yard should be provided with a rubbing post. When the masts of the forest are consumed, the hogs should be withdrawn and confined in their fattening quarters, as it is important they should be placed therein in good condition, which condition they will be in as long as the mast affords them ample supplies of food. Before removing the hogs from the woods or other pasture, have your hog-vard covered some five or six inches deep with marsh or river mud, cleanings of ditches, woods-mould, road-scrapings, the earth from headlands, or any rough materials capable of being converted into manure. Every two weeks during the fattening season remove these substances from the yard into some convenient place, form them into compost heaps, intermixing therewith 1 bushel of plaster with every 20 loads, and cover the heaps with earth and compressing the earth with the back of the shovel. Each covering of the substances named, as removed, should be replaced with others. Let not the trouble and labor this may give you deter you from following our advice, as for every hog you may have in your pen, you may thereby obtain two loads of as good manure as ever fertilised the earth. Than hog manure, the solid and liquid, there is no animal manure so rich, or more so, in those elements which tend to fertilise the earth and ensure large crops. This will readily be admitted when we reflect upon the fact that every 100 lbs. of urine of the hog contains 5.64 per cent. of urea with a little slime and albumen-which may be considered as equal, on decomposition, to so much ammonia, and that the salts amount to 1.76 per cent ; while the solid and liquid, taken together, ranks hog manure is equal to nightsoil

When your hogs are first taken up for fatteniug, they should receive two or three doses of flour of sulpher, and as many of copperas, say a table-spoonful at a dose, to be given in messes of bran, or meal, made into slop, at in-tervals of a day apart. Their food for the first two or three weeks should be pumpkins, apples and roots, or other vegetables which should be boiled, or steamed, and made into mashes with bran or meal, the latter should be increased from-day to day, so that when they come to have corn, or meal altogether, the change of diet may not be injuriously felt by them.

In connection with the subject of feeding grain, we would remind our readers that ground corn meal, cooked, will go 30 per cent. further in fattening hogs than will the raw grain whole, and that the whole grain when boiled will go 15 or 20 per cent. further than when not boiled

COW AND CATTLE YARDS .--- These should be provided with warm, dry sheds, facing the south or south-east, for the animals to retire to in inclement weather, and to sleep in ; the sheds should be divided into stalls, and provided with racks and mangers to feed in; the beds of the stalls should be so graded to be higher than the yard, so as to keep the stalls dry, and if possible, the cattle should be provided with straw or other coarse litter as bedding, which should be removed twice a week and replaced with fresh materials. The young and old cattle should have seperate vards.

Before you bring your cattle into the yards for winter quarters, have such rough materials as we have recommended hauled therein and pread on your cow and cattle yards to the depth of 12 inches. Let your yards be basinshaped, so as to prevent the escape of the urine. Spread a dusting of plaster over these rough materials when first fashioned into shape, and occasionally as the deposites of your stock accumulate, give the yard a dusting of plaster. If practicable, in about six weeks after you have brought your cattle into the yards for winter, you should add 6 inches in depth of rough materials, preserving the basin-like shape of the yard, adding plaster as before. If you follow this advice, next spring when you come to remove your manure to the fields, if you mix it up well as you throw it into your carts and wagons, every pound of it will be better than any cow-yard manure you ever made in the ordinary way, because the ammoniacal elements of the manure will have been measurably preserved from deterioration.

If you have contracted the terrible disease, which when once seated in the system, will surely go down from one generation to another, undermining the constitution, and sapping the very vital fluids of life, do not trust yourself in the hands of Quacks, who start up every day in a city like this, and fill the papers with glaring falsehoods too well calculated to deceive the youfig and those not ac-qualated with their tricks. SECOND YEAR.

SECOND YEAR. A RRANGEMENTS for the Second Annual Collection of this new and popular institution for the diffusion of Literature and art, have been made on the most exten-sive scale. Among the works already engaged, is the far famed "GENOA CRUCIFIX," which originally cost Ten Thousand Dollars. In forming the new collection, the diffusion of works of AMERICAN ART, and the encouragement of American ge-nius have not been overlooked. Commissions have been issued to many of the most distinguished American artists who will contribute some of their finest productions.-Among them are three Marble Busts, executed by the greatest living Sculptor-HIRAM POWERS : GEORGE WASHINGTON-- The Father of his Country.

RULES FOR MILKING .--- If you would have a gentle cow, be gentle vourself.

If a cow kicks much, place a switch under the left arm, the pail in the left hand, and if, while milking she kicks, let it be followed invariably by a single blow. Never strike but once at a time, even though she kick so hard as to break your leg, and never omit it, if she hits nothing.

By never striking but once, she has no time to get mad, and it is all the more terrific, for who cares for a blow when stimulated by fury.

A small mess of pleasant food at the time will serve to do away with any disagreeable impression in connexion with milking.,

To be a good milker you must pare your nails short, sit on a stool, milk fast, never scold the cow, never get out of patience, tie her tail to her leg in fly time, never wet the teats with the first stream of milk, and never strike a cow for running or kicking.

Milk, applied to the teats to soften them, dries, and forms a glossy varnish, which tends to cause cracking or chapping of these parts. Cold water is much better, becoming quite dry by the time the milking is finished, and leaving the teats clean.

CHANGE OF FEED FOR HORSE .- The kind of feed for animals should be changed frequently. A horse long kept on shorts, will be affected by a fever in his legs and feet, producing a result similar to founder. Shorts, corn meal, or cob meal should never be given except in a mixed state ; with cut hay or straw. This will require them to eat slower, and the food is better prepared for digestion. If given alone it ferments rapidly in the stomach, produces a general fever, injures the digestive powers. and finally produces a stiffness throughout the limbs. When these results are discovered the remedy is a change of food. Continual feeding on oats alone will produce the same result as shorts, or meal ; and many a founder is caus ed by it, as well as by feeding, or drinking when the horse is warm. If necessity compels a person to feed a horse on shorts, corn meal, cat meal, cob meal, a supply of salt should be added to prevent fermentation in the stomach. -Ohio Farmer.
