SELECTION OF A FARM .-- In the selection of land for a farm there are thoughts and things land for a farm there are thoughts and things to be taken into consideration that a volume would scarcely serve to discuss, yet some of them may be profitably hinted at within the main street, Towanda. Tebruary 24, 1855. limits which here circumscribe us. What is a farm? should first be asked ; for in the cona farm? should first be asked ; for in the con-sideration of any subject it is time well ap-plied which is spent in getting a clear idea of the user d which names it A farm for us. A farm for us. plied which is spent in getting a clear idea of the word which names it. A farm, for us, aged by the orener, who lives upon it; and hence it takes in the thought of home, so that hemestead is almost a synonomous term. Hence among things to be considered in the defined among things to be considered in the choice of a farm, we shall say :

1. The farm should be pleasantly situated as home. The health, comfort and happiness of those who are to occupy it are of prime importance-so every social and physical influence which bear upon them should have due weight in determining a choice. However fertile a farm may be, if the locality is an unhealthy one, it cannot make a home. If fertile and healthy, but surrounded by a moral miasmaor with but few social privileges and advantages-it cannot be a pleasant home. 2. The farm should be in agreement with the means and circumstances of the owner. A farmer needs capital as well as land in order to operate profitably. The great error of Ame-rican husbandry is that farms are almost universally too large for the labor and capital at the command of those who carry them on. Hence arises a train of evils which we have often sought to bring before our readers.

3. The farm should be suited to the products proposed-and these should conform with the demands of the market, and the taste and experience of the owner. Some farms are best calculated for grain-growing, others still for stock and grain-growing. In many locali-ties these may be profitably combined, and land secured which shall be appropriated to such a course of husbandry. The recent great increase in the facilities of transportation, influences a large extent of country, and many places, heretofore of small value on account of distance from market, have now become desirable for farming purposes. Still, it is worthy to be thought of, whether it will cost ten cents or one hundred to bring a product before the consumer, and the value of a farm will depend materially upon the expense of intercommunication. The domestic demand is also of importance, and always exists, varying with lo-cality. The taste and experience of the farmer should of course influence his choice-he will be most successful who is most favorably and agreeably situated, and who best knows how to employ the advantages at his command.

Other influences exist and should be considered-these we have rather hinted at than discussed-we prefer to leave the latter to our readers. If we can only start topics in such a way as to call out and suggest further thinking by those who read, our object will be accom-plished.-Rural New Yorker.

THE FARMER'S FUTCRE.—An English cor-respondent of the New York Tribune, expa-tiates on the prospective introduction of steam power as an aid in agricultural operations as follows:—The Farmer's Future will be found in the application of steam to the cultivator of the soil ! We are rapidly coming to the con-clusion here, that the good old plow is a hum-bug. We begin to think that spade-husband-ry applied by steam is the right thing ; indeed, there are some among us of the opinion that a machine may be invented which should, in effect, plow, sow, harrow and roll altogether— a machine, in fact, which should make a seed. THE FARMER'S FUTURE .- An English cora machine, in fact, which should make a seedbed and sow the seed all at one operation. There has already been one steam-engine exhibited in this country which will walk anywhere, and do anything it is required to do. It has feet about the size of yours, Sir, and it puts them down upon the ground, one after the other, very much in the fashion of a dandy going up Broadway, only the feet of the machine are fixed on wheels, and revolve regularly, instead of moving up and down awkwordly, like his. This machine will go through a plowed field very comfortably, and rather quicker than a good hunter will get over it; and as it will drag a dozen plows after it I do not see, for my part, why it should not be made to carry, as part and parcel of itself, a mechaism that will readily convert the untilled ground into a seed-bed. Well, then as to drainagr. I saw a machine the other day that would dig, drain, and lay down sixteen and a half feet of piping per minute, the pipes rather more regularly and satisfactorily laid than any skilled workman can lay them. The machine labored under the disadvantage of being cumbrous. and of being made to be worked by a stationary engine. But having got thus far, it seems to be only one step futher to give us steam application to the soil so as to enable twenty times the quantity of land to be put under cultivation by the same amount of labor, and at no greater cost than now. Then we may hope for a produce of cheap corn, the great desideratum in this land of sweat and toil, where it depends upon a shilling or two, more or less, in the price of food, not only whether a man can reap the advantages of his labor, but absolutely too often, whether he can continue to exist. Yes, to the application of improved machinery to the earth must we look for an accession of home comforts, of world-wide prosperity, of universal happiness ! To Thee ! O, bountiful God of Nature, we offer our first thanks that Thou hast given us the great seed bed whereon we live and move, and whence we have our being. To Industry be given our next best tribute, and then let us thank Art and Science that teach us how to make the best uses of the means so bountifully placed at our disposal."
