"Have a Place for Every-thing, and Every-thing in Its Place."

For want of this, much valuable time lost, and by observing it much perplexity is avoided. Let no one say this as stale as A, B, C; for A, B, C, must be taught and taught again, and it is by repetition that primary lessons at school are mostly impressed.

A farmer who commenced his career in the observance of this rule, after a time suffered his vigilance to abate, and before he was thirty, both his hired men and his boys would very often leave his tools where they were last us ed, and many of the most important moments of their time were spent in searching and enquiring for the missing implements; and as those who had last used them were not always to be found, he was, at times, obliged to send some distance to a neighbor, to borrow. His children becoming addicted to the same easy habits, they were thus entailed upon children and grandchildren, and most have had an important influence in stamping upon them that characteristic want of system and thrift for which they are now remarked.

A clerk who had occasion to use his scissors many times a day, would lay them at one time on his desk, at another in his window, sometimes among his papers, and not unfrequently in his drawer. The consequence was, that when there was the most occasion for despatch. then there was the most confusion and delayall which might have been avoided by proper care in this and similar cases.

A youth whose habits had not been sufficiently watched by his mother, (though a most affectionate one she was,) when he retired 'to bed, had no particular place for his clothes, but would mostly throw them about upon the floor, the bed, or the chair, without caring which, so that whatever was the emergency when he had occasion to dress in the night, each particular garment was to be felt after, and adjusted before he could be dressed. Even the calamities he so often read about occurring from fires and robbery, the disturbance at times occurring among his father's cattle, or sheep, or fowls-all were not sufficient to impress upon him the importance of having a place for each article of his clothing, and each one at all times in its place; and so never acquiring these habits himself, his children grew up with the same defect, and it might be said that the parent's want of system in this respect was transmitted from children to grand children.

A child who had been very carefully trained by his mother, when he was sent to boarding school, reflected real honor upon his home instruction, by the temarkable neatness and syswith which his books and other matters were always adjusted in his desk; and his clothing in his trunk and his cupboard were so carefully placed, that he was never at a loss to find any article he needed, even in the darkest night. A person well acquainted with his mother, remarked, on opening his trunk, "Ah! I see in this the print of his mother's fingers." When this youth would undress himself at night, you might see his shoes and stockings at the foot of the bed post near the head of the bed, with a garter in each shoe, his pants hung upon the top of bed post, and his coat and vest upon the back of a chair near by, so that he knew at all times where to lay his hand upon any article of dress he needed. The same kind of order and system was to be seen throughout the family, and in every drawer and closet of the house, so that the daughters of these parents were not less thorough than the son, and in after life honored their mother's care, and transmitted the same orderly habits to after generations.—Farm Journal.

Regularity in Feeding Cattle. Stephens in his " Book of the Farm " give the following illustration of the necessity of regularity and method of agricultural duties: In thus minutely detailing the duties of the cattle-men, my object has been to show you rather how the turnips and fodder should be distributed relatively than absolutely; but whatever hour and minute the cattle-man finds, from his experience, he can devote to each portion of his work, you should see that he performs the same operation at the same time every day. By paying strict attention to time, the cattle will be ready for and expect their wonted meals at the appointed times, and will not complain until they arrive. Complaints from his stock should be distressing to every farmer's ears, for he may be assured they will not complain until they feel hunger, and if allowed to hunger they will not only lose condition, but render themselves, by discontent, less capable of acquiring it when the food happens to be fully given. Wherever you hear lowings from cattle, you may safely conclude that matters are conducted there in an irregular manner. The cattle-man's rule is a simple one, and easily remembered. "Give food and and fodder to cattle at fixed times, and dispense them in a fixed routine." I had a strikwhen taken without other branches, ing instance of the bad effects of irregular attention to cattle. An old staid laborer was appointed to take charge of cattle, and was quite able and willing to undertake the task.

He got his own way at first, as I had observed many laboring men display great ingenuity in arranging their work. Lowings were soon heard from the stock in all quarters, both in and out of doors, which intimated the want of irregularity in the cattle-man; while the poor and out of doors, which intimated the want of irregularity in the cattle-man; while the poor creature himself was constantly in a state of bustle and uneasiness. THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

THE GREATEST REMEDY EVER KNOWN.

It is a medicine perfectly pleasant in its taste, and very innocent in its action, and yet as thorough that it annihilates every particle of the rank and poisonous virus of this disease; and, unlike other remedies, it does not dry up the disease in the blood.

Constitutional Debility, brought on by self-abuse, a most terrible disease, which has brought thousands of the hu man race to untimely graves, thus blasting the brilliant hopes of parents, and blighting in the bud the glorious ambition of many a noble youth, can be cured by this INFALLIBLE REMEDY.

And as a medicine which must benefit everybody from the simply delicate to the confined and despairing invalid, no equal is to be found, acting both as a cure and preventive

HEMBOLD'S HIGHLY CONCENTRATED

Compound Fluid Extract Sarsaparilla.

For purifying the Blood, removing all diseases arising from excess of Mercury, exposure and imprudence in life, chronic constitutional disease, arising from an impure state of the blood, and the only reliable and effectual remedy known for the cure of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ulcerations of the Throat and Legs, Pains and Swellings of the Bones, Tetter, Pimples on the face and all Scaly Eruptions of the Skin.

This article is now pre-cribed by some of the most distinguished Physicians in the Country, and has proved more efficient in practice than any preparation of Sarsaparilla yet offered to the public. Several cases of secondary Syphilic, Mercurial and Scrofulous diseases have entirely recovered in the incurable wards of our public institutions, which had for many years resisted every mode of treatment that could be devised. These cases furnish striking examples of the salutary effects of this medicine in arresting some of the most inveterate diseases, after the glands were destroyed and the bones already affected.

Notice.—Letters from responsible Physicians and Professors of several Medical colleges, and certificates of cures from patients will be found accompanying both preparations.
